So Far, So Fair: The Local Remedies Rule in the Jurisprudence of the African Commission on Human and Peoples' Rights		1
	Nsongurua J. Udombana
After reviewing the African Commission on Human and Peoples' Rights' application of the exhaustion of local remedies rule and comparing it to the practice of other human rights bodies, the author recommends a context-sensitive and flexible approach that can maximize the promotion and protection of human rights by avoiding inadmissibility decisions at the international level when local remedies are ineffective.
Subsidiarity as a Structural Principle of International Human Rights Law		38
	Paolo G. Carozza
Thanks to its capacity to embrace a conception of common good, consonant with human rights, while still affirming and protecting the pluralism of the global community, the idea of subsidiarity, more than classic notions of state sovereignty, can help to understand and evaluate the fundamental structure of international human rights law.
