International Criminal Law, 3rd edition

Edited by M. Cherif Bassiouni

• SET PRICE: 3 Volumes EUR 385.- / US$ 385.-

The definitive treatise on international criminal law, M. Cherif Bassiouni's unique 3- volume collection is now in its third edition. Written by more than 50 outstanding authorities from 19 countries, it covers the entire field, from the theory of what makes a crime "international" to the step-by-step conduct of an international prosecution. Its in-depth coverage includes:

- analysis of the doctrinal basis of international criminal law
- the historical development of international criminal law and policy
- detailed treatment of 16 crimes that have been given international jurisdiction, including torture, genocide, war crimes, and crimes against humanity
- issues of immunity and jurisdiction
- judicial assistance
- recognition of foreign penal judgments
- extradition and transfer of prisoners
- taking evidence abroad
- seizure of foreign assets
- international criminal tribunals procedure
- international criminal prosecutions in domestic courts and a great deal more. Attention is paid throughout the presentation to the complex cultural and regional issues that often arise in this field of practice.

This new third edition has been thoroughly revised, making it the most current and comprehensive treatment available of this major area of international law theory and practice.

The Principle of Complementarity in International Criminal Law

Origin, Development and Practice

Mohamed M. El Zeidy

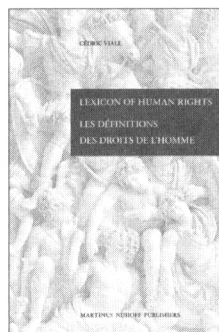

- September 2008
- ISBN 978 90 04 16693 6
- Hardback (xxxii, 368 pp.)
- List price EUR 100.- / US$ 149.-

“The concept of complementarity lies at the heart not only of the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court, it is in many respects the underlying paradigm of international criminal justice as a whole. In this important study, Mohamed El Zeidy has drawn on historical sources, tracing the evolution of the concept and then showing how it has become operationalised in the first cases before the International Criminal Court. This book belongs in the library of every international criminal lawyer”.

Prof. William A. Schabas, OC MRJA, National University of Ireland, Galway.

Lexicon Of Human Rights / Les Définitions des Droits de l’Homme

Cédric Viale

Presenting the Finest and Freshest Thinking in International Law

Darfur and the Crime of Genocide

John Hagan and Wenona Rymond-Richmond

"This is a remarkable book and an urgently important one.

Bringing together a close review of the empirical evidence and a creative use of criminological concepts, the authors assemble a compelling argument that the events in Darfur amount to an intentional, racialized, state-supported, act of genocide. In doing so, Darfur and the Crime of Genocide presents a criminological case for the prosecution that will be hard to ignore.

But that's not all. Hagan and Rymond-Richmond also argue that the discipline of criminology must begin to address crimes of genocide and crimes against humanity – the collective crimes that increasingly define our time but do not yet shape our research. Sixty years ago, Edwin Sutherland transformed criminology with his argument for the inclusion of 'white collar crimes.' The ambition of this book is to expand the criminological imagination once more and to demonstrate what such an undertaking would look like.

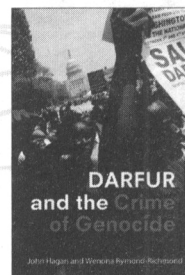

Darfur and the Crime of Genocide succeeds on all these counts. It makes a powerful case that the mass killings, rapes and expropriations taking place in Darfur have the actus reus and mens rea of genocidal crimes. It demonstrates that criminology can explain the social mechanisms that drove these collective events. It contributes to public awareness of these crimes and their causes. And it provides crucially relevant evidence for the political and legal processes designed to allocate responsibility, restore peace and prevent the recurrence of such atrocious criminal activities."

Preemption Choice

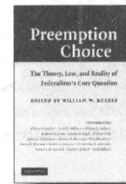

The Theory, Law, and Reality of Federalism's Core Question

William W. Buzbee

"Preemption Choice is the best collection of essays ever published on the critical issue of federal preemption of state law. This volume brings together leading scholars articulating a variety of doctrinal and theoretical points. A common theme is that the Bush Administration and the Supreme Court have undermined both federalism and good regulatory policy by heeding business demands for preemption of state common law across whole areas of law. This is most reading for any lawyer — or Supreme Court Justice — interested in federalism, preemption, or regulatory policy."

State Regulation
and Non-state Law

Edited by Hanneke van Schooten and
Jonathan Verschuuren,

Tilburg University, The Netherlands

Around the world, the role of national regulation is debated. This book takes as its starting point the fact that legislatures and regulators are criticized for overregulation and for producing poor-quality regulation which ignores input from citizens and stifles private initiative. This has enhanced the role of non-state law, such as self-regulation and soft law. In this book, international scholars in various fields of law, as well as socio-legal studies, address to what extent non-state law currently influences state regulation, and what the consequences of non-state law for state regulation should be.

Drawing lessons for the state legislature and state regulators, this innovative book will be of great interest to academic researchers and post graduate students in the fields of law, regulation, legal sociology, legal theory, law and economics, and environmental law. It will also be of interest to policy makers and regulators – those working at ministries and government departments drafting legislation.

A Responsibility to Assist

Human Rights Policy and Practice in European Union Crisis Management Operations
A COST Report edited by Tom Hadden

This report, written as part of a wider review of human rights in EU foreign policy, describes and assesses the current decision-making structures and procedures for EU military, police and civilian crisis management missions throughout the world. EU interventions or missions in non-member countries are a relatively recent development, and have largely been undertaken to ensure more effective co-ordination of humanitarian, peace-keeping, and peace building efforts by Member States in response to international conflicts and crises. The main aim of this report is to describe the often complex and confusing structures developed over the past decade and to assess the past, present and future of the EU's responsibility to intervene in international crises.

Tom Hadden is a former Professor of Law at the Queen's University Belfast.

International Investment Law Reconciling Policy and Principle

by Surya P Subedi

This book presents an up-to-date and scholarly overview of the law of foreign investment, as well as a comprehensive and succinct analysis of the main principles and the standards of treatment available to foreign investors in international law. It is authoritative and multi-layered, offering an analysis of the most pressing issues, and an insightful assessment of recent trends in the case law on the interpretation of established and evolving principles, from both developed and developing country perspectives. A major feature of this book is that it deals with the emerging tension between the law of foreign investment and other competing principles of international law. This book is essential reading for students, scholars, practitioners and diplomats interested in the contemporary law of foreign investment.

Surya P Subedi, OBE, DPhil, FRSA, is Professor of International Law, University of Leeds, and a Barrister at Tanfield Chambers in London.

Property Rights and Natural Resources by Richard Barnes

The use of private property rights to regulate common pool natural resources is a controversial topic, which must address two critical issues: the allocation of wealth in society and proper conservation and management of limited resources. Given the privatisation of many natural resources within the confines of States, the most significant common pool natural resources are those located in international areas, such as the high seas and the atmosphere. This book explores the extension of private property rights and market mechanisms to the regulation of resources in these areas. The author assesses the impact of international law on the use of property rights showing how, because many natural resources straddle international boundaries, jurisdictional and international law issues must be taken into account if they are to be regulated.

Richard Barnes is the Sir QW Lee and Dr Peter Thompson Lecturer in Maritime Law at the University of Hull.

The Criminal Responsibility of Senior Political and Military Leaders as Principals to International Crimes

by Héctor Olásolo

As shown by the recent trials of Slobodan Milosevic, Charles Taylor and Saddam Hussein, the large-scale and systematic commission of international crimes is usually planned and set in motion by senior political and military leaders. This book deals with the highly topical issue of the mechanisms now existing for bringing political and military leaders to justice for alleged war crimes and humanitarian crimes.

Héctor Olásolo, LL.M (Columbia University), PhD in Law (Salamanca University) is Legal Officer in Chambers at the ICC.

New Online Services from

OXFORD REPORTS ON INTERNATIONAL LAW

The full scope of international case law – available in one place for the first time

Oxford Reports on International Law (ORIL) is a new online service integrating important decisions on public international law from international courts and tribunals, domestic courts and ad hoc tribunals. For the first time, the full scope of international case law is available in one place, accompanied by expert analysis and powerful navigation.

Offering a wider range of international case law than ever before, ORIL provides users with a greater understanding of the output and workings of foreign legal systems and courts. Expert translations of key decisions in other languages are provided, bringing to life a new world of relevant case law. Written and edited by a team of distinguished experts, each case report is enhanced with high-quality commentary and analysis.

This service consists of five content modules defined by subject focus, available as standalone or multi-module subscriptions.

Oxford Reports on International Law in Domestic Courts (re-launched fall 2008)
Oxford Reports on International Criminal Law
Oxford Reports on International Human Rights Law
Oxford Reports on International Investment Claims

Georgetown Law offers one of the largest transnational legal education programs in the world. With an ideal location and a campus of major new buildings that include an international and comparative law library, Georgetown Law is one of the leading global law schools.

The array of courses dealing with transnational, international, and comparative law is extraordinarily comprehensive, numbering over 150. This curriculum is generated and sustained by over 110 full-time faculty members, more than 30 of whom are currently focused on transnational and international curriculum subjects. These full-time faculty members are joined by over 90 distinguished Washington, D.C. practitioners from inside and outside the government. In addition, faculty exchanges bring several foreign law professors to visit each year.

Two recent initiatives set Georgetown squarely at the forefront of transnational legal education, as taught in the United States or anywhere else in the world. The first, "Week One: Law in a Global Context," was inaugurated in 2006. It engages the entire first year J.D. class in a week-long simulation exercise built around a complex transnational legal problem. The program blends U.S. law with foreign or international law, various dispute resolution mechanisms and structured role-playing.

In 2008, Georgetown inaugurated the new London-based Center for Transnational Legal Studies (CTLS). The Center offers second and third year students a unique, semester-long opportunity to study transnational legal topics in a truly transnational setting. Georgetown students join others drawn from over a dozen select partner schools located in almost as many countries, around the globe. A truly transnational faculty, drawn from the same schools, offers a curriculum specifically designed for those intent on transnational careers.

At its Washington, D.C. campus, Georgetown's overall student body include about 300 students from over 70 countries. Of these, approximately 190 are foreign trained lawyers enrolled in Georgetown's advanced Master of Laws (LL.M.) programs.

Georgetown offers a vast array of additional transnational opportunities. For more information, please see visit the Office of Transnational Programs website at: www.law.georgetown.edu/otp.

The international Rule of Law

Public International Law at the Amsterdam Law School

From September 2009 onwards, the Amsterdam Law School offers a challenging research LL.M. programme in Public International Law. The programme focuses on 'the international rule of law', and the core courses explore this theme from the perspectives of International Criminal Law, International Human Rights Law, Law of Public International Organizations, State Responsibility, and International Law in the National Legal Order. In addition, students are trained in Methods of Legal Research, Comparative Law and Comparative Legal Research, Research Skills, and will participate in research projects of the renowned Amsterdam Center for International Law (ACIL). The programme is intended for excellent students. Graduates will be well-placed for a career in international law both within and outside academia. For more information about the programme, application procedure and scholarships, please visit www.studeren.uva.nl/law-programmes or call the International Office of the Amsterdam Law School at +31-20-525 3359.

WASHINGTON AND LEE UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF LAW TRANSNATIONAL LAW INSTITUTE

W&L's LL.M. in United States Law is a one-year program open to a small, highly selective group of foreign-trained lawyers and other graduates of non-U.S. law schools. The program leads to a Master of Law (LL.M.) in United States Law.

- All students enroll in Introduction to United States Law, a 2-credit course offered exclusively to LL.M. students and taught by full-time members of a law faculty renowned for its teaching prowess.
- All other course work for the LL.M. program is elective. Students take the same classes as those offered to those enrolled in the J.D. program, and they study those areas of law of greatest relevance and interest to them. The Washington and Lee curriculum offers a wealth of beginning and advanced courses in all major areas of study, including, business and commercial law, taxation, public and private international law, environmental law, and criminal and civil litigation.
- For students with an interest in international law, comparative law, transnational law and trade law, W&L offers a number of great opportunities. Courses include theoretical research seminars, participation in academic journals (including the peer review German Law Journal), and experiential courses in Cambodia and Liberia.

Interested students should consult our LL.M homepage for additional information at law.wlu.edu/admissions or contact us at LLMAdm@wlu.edu.

The University of Geneva, situated at the hub of many of the world's international organizations and at the foot of the Alps, is an international lawyer's paradise. Masters level programs take full advantage of the proximity to international organizations.

Choose from three fascinating Masters programs taught by internationally renowned professors and practitioners:

International and European Law focusing on international law, conflict of laws, arbitration and European law (taught in French) [www.unige.ch/droit/etudes/formation/master.html].

International Humanitarian Law exploring international humanitarian law, international criminal law, the legal regulation of the use of force (public international law), and human rights law (taught in parallel in English and French at the Geneva Academy of International Humanitarian Law and Human Rights) [www.adh-geneva.ch].

International Dispute Settlement inviting in-depth study of all aspects of dispute settlement in the international arena, with an emphasis on commercial and investment arbitration, negotiation and WTO dispute settlement (taught in English) [www.mids.ch].

In addition, the Certificate in Transnational Law program provides a solid grounding in subjects such as public international law, conflict of laws, comparative law, uniform legislation and European law (taught in French) [www.unige.ch/droit/transnational/index.html] and the Duke-Geneva Institute in Transnational Law is a summer program (taught in English) bringing together American and European law students from across both continents [www.law.duke.edu/internat/europe].

The Law School of the University of Geneva also welcomes foreign students who wish to pursue a bachelor's degree in Swiss law (in French), which includes compulsory courses in both public and private international law and offers many options in international law [www.unige.ch/droit/etudes/formation/bachelor.html].
