Applying the Death Penalty to Crimes of Genocide Jens David Ohlin 747

When Rwanda reserved the right to execute genocidal criminals, many international lawyers objected, believing that the emerging norm of customary international law generally prohibiting the death penalty is categorical. Linking the death penalty's role in national reconciliation with the UN Charter's primary goal of restoring peace and security, this article argues that if this prohibition hardens into customary law, it should be sensitive to extreme circumstances such as genocide by not denying justice by local standards to its victims.

Feminism and Its (Dis)contents: Criminalizing Wartime Rape in Bosnia and Herzegovina Karen Engle 778

This article critically examines early feminist debates over the treatment of rape in Bosnia and Herzegovina, and traces their resonances in the structure and jurisprudence of the ICTY. Observing that problematic assumptions about ethnic identity and women's sexual and political agency emerged in the debates and ultimately wove their way into the ICTY's legal treatment of rape, the article argues that the international criminalization of rape might be neither as pathbreaking nor as progressive as the doctrinal recognition might suggest.

THE AMERICAN SOCIETY OF INTERNATIONAL LAW

The American Society of International Law was organized in 1906 “to foster the study of international law and to promote the establishment and maintenance of international relations on the basis of law and justice.” Society membership is open to all persons of any nationality and profession who are interested in its objectives. Dues are: regular, $165; special category, $110; new professional, $85; retired, $110; student, $30. Sustaining Memberships—contributing ($275) and patrons ($10,000)—are also available. Corporations may join ASIL as institutional sponsors ($2,000). The Society is incorporated by Act of Congress approved September 20, 1950 (64 Stat. 869).

PROGRAM OF WORK

In addition to publishing the American Journal of International Law, the ASIL offers a variety of information resources and participation opportunities for members as well as non-members. These programs, best viewed at www.asil.org, include: publications such as International Legal Materials and Studies in Transnational Legal Policy; electronic bulletins such as ASIL Insights, International Law In Brief, and il.Post; events such as the Annual Meeting and other gatherings in Washington, DC and around the world; Outreach programs for the justice sector, the media, and other audiences; an array of resources on the ASIL Web site, such as the Electronic Information System for International Law (EISIL) and the Guide to Electronic Resources for International Law (ERG); and opportunities to be part of an active network bridging expert and non-expert communities associated with the development of international law.

PHILANTHROPY AND THE SOCIETY

The ASIL accomplishes much of its work through charitable support. The Society is grateful to its many members who contribute to the annual fund and the endowment, the foundations whose grants fund special programs, and the law firms, publishers, universities, and others that sponsor ASIL activity. The Society is particularly honored to receive contributions through the Patrons program and to be included in our members' estate plans through the ASIL Heritage Circle. We recognize these contributors below.

PATRONS

Patrons of the Society contribute $10,000 or more to the ASIL Endowment for International Law. Patrons may also be recognized posthumously upon such a donation being made in their name.
