Trade-Environment Negotiations in the EU, NAFTA, and WTO: .
Regional Trajectories of Rule Development Richard H. Steinberg	231
This article compares trade-environment rules and their negotiation and implementation in the context of the European Union, the North American Free Trade Agreement and the World Trade Organization. As economic integration deepens in each organization, the development of trade-environment rules becomes of increasing interest to richer, greener countries. Professor Steinberg concludes that the interests and power of those countries explain why environment-friendly rules are developing more quickly and thoroughly in the two regional organizations than in the multilateral organization.
International Trade and Protection of the Environment: The
Continuing Search for Reconciliation Thomas J. Schoenbaum	268
The November 1995 report issued by the World Trade Organization's Committee on Trade and Environment is only a timid first step toward reconciling trade and environmental values. This article advocates the establishment of an ongoing process to deal with trade and environment issues and offers specific suggestions for resolving these issues largely within the framework of existing WTO agreements and jurisprudence. Nevertheless, amendments and clarifications of WTO agreements will be required, and a role for unilateral action will remain.

THE AMERICAN SOCIETY OF INTERNATIONAL LAW

The American Society of International Law was organized in 1906 "to foster the study of international law and to promote the establishment and maintenance of international relations on the basis of law and justice." Society membership is open to all persons of whatever nationality and profession who are interested in its objectives. Dues are: regular, $125; special category, $90; intermediate, $95; student, $45. Sustaining Memberships—contributing ($225), supporting ($350), annual patrons ($825) and patrons ($7,500)—are also available. Corporations may join ASIL as institutional members ($2,000).
