CONTRIBUTIONS

Contributions are invited from all over the world, and especially from scholars working in African universities. Articles written in languages other than English will be considered on their merits, and where necessary translation will be arranged. The average length suggested is 3,000 to 6,000 words, with occasional exceptions of up to 10,000 words. Notes on centres of African studies, research projects, and reports of recent conferences are also welcome.

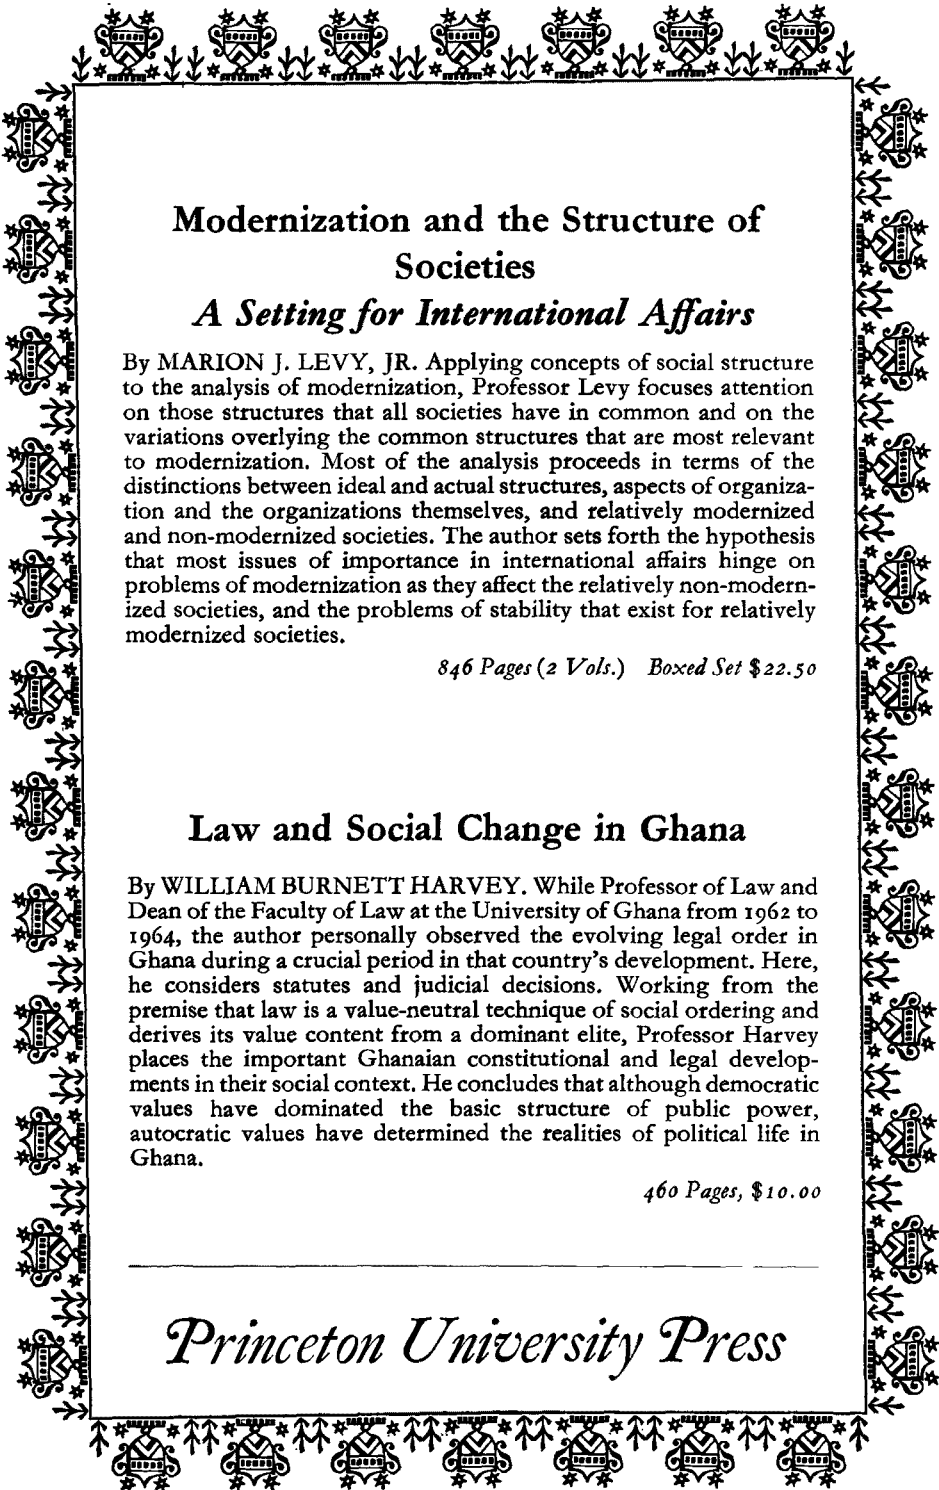

All correspondence and contributions should be addressed to

THE EDITORS, THE JOURNAL OF MODERN AFRICAN STUDIES, at either UNIVERSITY COLLEGE, DAR ES SALAAM, TANZANIA
or UNIVERSITY PRESS, CAMBRIDGE, ENGLAND.

Each contributor will receive a copy of the number and 25 offprints of his article free of charge.

SUBSCRIPTIONS

Subscriptions (40s. net per annual volume of four parts, post free) are payable in advance, and may be sent to any bookseller, or to Cambridge University Press, Bentley House, 200 Euston Road, London, N.W.1. Subscribers in the U.S.A. should send their subscriptions ($7.50 per volume) to Cambridge University Press, American Branch, 32 East 57th Street, New York, N.Y. 10022.

Modernization and the Structure of Societies

A Setting for International Affairs

By MARION J. LEVY, JR. Applying concepts of social structure to the analysis of modernization, Professor Levy focuses attention on those structures that all societies have in common and on the variations overlying the common structures that are most relevant to modernization. Most of the analysis proceeds in terms of the distinctions between ideal and actual structures, aspects of organization and the organizations themselves, and relatively modernized and non-modernized societies. The author sets forth the hypothesis that most issues of importance in international affairs hinge on problems of modernization as they affect the relatively non-modernized societies, and the problems of stability that exist for relatively modernized societies.

846 Pages (2 Vols.) Boxed Set $22.50

Law and Social Change in Ghana

By WILLIAM BURNETT HARVEY. While Professor of Law and Dean of the Faculty of Law at the University of Ghana from 1962 to 1964, the author personally observed the evolving legal order in Ghana during a crucial period in that country's development. Here, he considers statutes and judicial decisions. Working from the premise that law is a value-neutral technique of social ordering and derives its value content from a dominant elite, Professor Harvey places the important Ghanaian constitutional and legal developments in their social context. He concludes that although democratic values have dominated the basic structure of public power, autocratic values have determined the realities of political life in Ghana.

The University of ZAMBIA

Institute for Social Research
P.O Box 900, Lusaka, Zambia

This Institute, known for 27 years as the Rhodes-Livingstone Institute for Social Research, is now the first element of the Centre for African Studies of the new University of Zambia. The approach of the Institute is inter-disciplinary, with current emphasis in the fields of sociology, psychology, political science and economics (including agricultural economics). It is hoped that the earlier interests of the Institute in history, human geography and demography can also be extended.

Most of the results obtained by Institute staff and affiliated workers are published in its own publications. Apart from books, these are the journal—recently re-named African Social Research—the Zambia Papers, and the Communications. It is also planned to publish, at least once a year, an Institute Bulletin. Charges to subscribers and for single issues are as follows:

SUBSCRIBERS

THE MALAGASY REPUBLIC: MADAGASCAR TODAY

Virginia Thompson and Richard Adloff

The recent history of the island of Madagascar is very different from that of the other newly independent regions of Africa. It is the aim of this first comprehensive survey in English to describe and explain the political, economic, and social-cultural developments in Madagascar since the end of World War II. Part I is devoted to history and politics. Part II surveys developments in religion, education, literature and information media, economic policy and planning, transportation, finance, industry, trade and labor. Illustrated with sixteen pages of photographs. $12.50

Journal of Administration Overseas

An authoritative quarterly which discusses various aspects of administration overseas and particularly in developing countries. It is a continuous record of the problems which confront the practical administrator, and their solution, and it provides a compact medium for the exchange of ideas and knowledge. Treatment is given in particular to the local administration problems which face administrative personnel; the development of local government institutions; staff training; electoral machinery, local courts; land administration generally; and the difficult situations which are created through urban development and other social changes.

GENEVA-AFRICA

THE JOURNAL OF THE GENEVA-AFRICA INSTITUTE

Africa in time past lent the European imagination that touch of exotic adventure which its own milieu did not always provide. That time is no more. Africa today seeks her own way through difficulties and incertitudes to which no one open to her desire to meet on terms of equality can remain indifferent.

It is the wish of Geneva-Africa to be an active partner in this unconditional dialogue, and to contribute to a deeper comprehension of the problems and opportunities facing an emergent Africa.
