ARCHAIC FICTILE REVTMENTS IN SICILY AND MAGNA GRAECIA

BY

E. DOUGLAS VAN BUREN

Author of "Figurative Terra-Cotta Revetments in Etruria and Latium in the VI-V. Centuries B.C."

THE author here deals with a region almost purely Greek. In lieu of marble, the exposed parts of these southern temples were protected by fictile revetments, the fragments of which have been revealed by chance finds and systematic excavations. This scattered material is presented in a descriptive catalogue with adequate illustrations; thus disclosing a wealth of form and design, a mastery in obtaining effects through simple colouristic means, which constitute a notable achievement of the Hellenic genius. With Illustrations, 21s. net.
