

Where are we headed?

A new book series looks to the future of criminal justice and criminological research

Research in Criminology

Series Editors: Alfred Blumstein and David Farrington

Understanding and Controlling Crime

Toward A New Research Strategy

David P. Farrington, University of Cambridge, England; Lloyd E. Ohlin and James Q. Wilson, Harvard University, Cambridge, Massachusetts

In this book, leading experts challenge the methods of criminological research and suggest new strategies for the study of crime. Understanding and Controlling Crime demonstrates that longitudinal research studies carried out in conjunction with studies of experimental treatment modalities are urgently needed to understand and more effectively treat crime. The authors explore key issues and suggest possible research designs and strategies that will shape criminal justice research for years to come.

This study, conducted under the auspices of the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation, will be required reading for criminologists, sociologists, policy makers, and anyone concerned with the role crime plays in our society and ways to prevent and treat it.

Contents: The Case for a New Crime Research Strategy: An Overview. What Have We Learned from Major Longitudinal Studies? What Have We Learned from Major Experimental Studies? Prevention: Families and Schools. The Effects of Labeling. Restructuring the Juvenile Court. The Effects of Imprisonment. What Kinds of Longitudinal-Experimental Studies are Needed?

Scheduled for publication Summer, 1986.

Hardcover $25.00 (tentative).

The Social Ecology of Crime

Edited by James M. Byrne, University of Lowell, Massachusetts, and Robert J. Sampson, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign

This book clearly demonstrates that the characteristics of neighborhoods and cities are important units of analysis, and that they should be studied along with the social, structural, and physical correlates of crime. A broad range of empirical research at the inter- and intra-urban levels examines such issues as the social causes of delinquency, victimization, violent and property crime, neighborhood deterioration and fear, and the recidivism of parolees. In addition, the application of ecological research to two important criminal justice questions, parole release and gun control, is discussed. The Social Ecology of Crime represents a significant contribution to our understanding of the causes and consequences of urban crime.

The Reasoning Criminal

Rational Choice

Perspectives on Offending

Edited by Derek B. Cornish, London School of Economics and Political Science, England, and Ronald V. Clarke, Temple University, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania

The study of criminal behavior as a result of rational decision-making is an approach that is at the forefront of criminal research. The Reasoning Criminal is the only book on this topic. It presents the results of empirical studies demonstrating decision-making factors in shoplifting, victim selection, narcotics addiction, and the decision to give up crime. The Reasoning Criminal explores theoretical issues such as information processing in the decision to commit a crime, offense specialization, and the role of situational and social factors in the decision-making framework.

Its topicality and timeliness make The Reasoning Criminal essential reading for all those interested in the study of crime.

Theories of Evidence

Bentham and Wigmore

William Twining. In recent years there has been increased interest and debate in many disciplines over the concepts of evidence, inference, and probability. This book explores the intellectual background to these debates through a study of the two leading theorists of judicial evidence in Anglo-Saxon law: Jeremy Bentham (1748–1832), an English radical reformer, and John Henry Wigmore (1863–1943), an American conservative academic lawyer. Twining evaluates their contributions in the context of the history of Anglo-American evidence scholarship from 1750 to the present, and shows that despite outward differences and the century that separated their work, both men belong to a single, remarkably homogeneous tradition. The fifth volume in the series JURISTS: PROFILES IN LEGAL THEORY. $29.50

Law & Society Review
BASIC STYLE SHEET

All manuscripts should be typed double spaced on one side only. Rejected manuscripts cannot ordinarily be returned. While manuscripts need not conform to this style sheet at the time of submission, all manuscripts must include footnotes and a list of references, and all accepted manuscripts must be revised by the author to conform to the style of the Review. The rules listed below supplement the manuscript information on the inside front cover of the Review. Authors are urged to consult recent issues of this journal for further illustrations. A more detailed style sheet is available from the editorial office.

1. CITATIONS: All notes that consist merely of supporting citations should be placed in parentheses in the text. They should follow the statement they support and be in the following style:

(last name of author, year: page number or numbers to which you refer, if any)

EXAMPLE: . . . the opposition in Paris (Rudé, 1967: 167).

2. FOOTNOTES: All footnotes should be numbered sequentially and placed immediately after the text. They should contain only substantive comments and additional references not immediately relevant to the text.

3. REFERENCES: References are to be placed at the end of the manuscript. For more than one publication by the same author, list them in chronological order beginning with the oldest. For more than one publication in one year by the same author, use small letters to distinguish them (e.g., 1970a; 1970b).

a. BOOKS: LAST NAME, First name (year) Title of book.
City: Publisher.

EXAMPLE: ARNOLD, Thurman W. (1935) The Symbols of Government. New York: Harcourt, Brace and World.

b. ARTICLES: LAST NAME, First name (year) "Title of article," volume number Journal initial page of article (month and day only if each issue is separately paginated).

EXAMPLE: STERN, Curt (1970) "The Continuity of Genetics," 99 Daedalus 882.

4. TABLES AND FIGURES: Tables should approximate the appearance of printed tables. Figures should be camera ready. Tables and/or figures should be placed at the end of the text, after footnotes and references. Their location within the text should be indicated as follows:

Table 1 about here

5. ABSTRACTS: All articles should include an abstract of between 50 and 100 words.
