YENAN AND THE GREAT POWERS

The Origins of Chinese Communist Foreign Policy, 1944-46

JAMES REARDON-ANDERSON. Drawing on accounts of American observers in China, on reporting and opinion in the Chinese press, and on a variety of other Chinese and English sources, Reardon-Anderson presents a challenging argument that military and political factors, and not ideology, guided Chinese Communist foreign policy at the end of World War II. $18.75

UNWELCOME MUSE

Chinese Literature in Shanghai and Peking, 1937-1945

EDWARD M. GUNN. The period of Japanese occupation of Shanghai and Peking, 1937-1945, was a surprisingly rich and productive time for Chinese literature. Unwelcome Muse, the first comprehensive portrait of the literary heritage of occupied China, shows the ways in which Chinese writers found new literary directions despite the hardships of occupation and censorship. "A pioneering study. . . One of the best monographs in the field."—Leo Ou-fan Lee, Indiana University. $25.00

UNCERTAIN YEARS

Chinese-American Relations, 1947-1950

DOROTHY BORG AND WALDO HEINRICHS, EDITORS. The years between the start of the Chinese Communists' victorious drive for power in 1947 and the outbreak of the Korean War in 1950 were years of uncertainty in Chinese-American relations. This unique collection of papers and summaries by leading scholars in American and Chinese foreign policy, probes from various perspectives the failure of the United States and the Chinese Communists to reach an accommodation in the period immediately following World War II. $21.90

THE LUTE

Kao Ming's P'i-p'a chi

JEAN MULLIGAN, TRANSLATOR. Kao Ming's 14th-century play The Lute is among the greatest achievements of Chinese drama.

Jean Mulligan's translation of this dramatic masterpiece not only renders faithfully The Lute's intricate style, but makes apparent the play's powerful moral force and importance as a literary model.

Manuscripts

The China Quarterly welcomes the submission of manuscripts from all scholars, including research students, on all aspects of contemporary China and from all points of view, including those which deal with Taiwan and Overseas Chinese. Articles on China prior to 1949 are also welcome, particularly, but not exclusively, when these relate directly to contemporary China or to the history of the Chinese Communist Party. Articles should be submitted, in triplicate, to the editorial office. They should be typed in double spacing and, preferably, conform to the styling of The China Quarterly.

The China Quarterly is published by the Contemporary China Institute of the School of Oriental and African Studies, London University. The views expressed in articles are those of individual authors and do not necessarily represent the views of the Contemporary China Institute.

The Contemporary China Institute takes great pleasure in announcing the appointment of a new Editor for The China Quarterly. Mr. Brian Hook, Senior Lecturer in Chinese Studies and Head of Department at the University of Leeds, took over the Editorship on 1 May, 1980. He is the fourth Editor of the journal since its foundation in 1960. Mr. Hook has served on the Editorial Board (Executive Committee) of the Quarterly and has helped to prepare the "Quarterly Chronicle" since 1974. He has had extensive experience in the Far East, including four years of residence in Hong Kong, and speaks both Mandarin and Cantonese. Mr. Hook has many plans for expanding the coverage of this journal.

Mr. Dick Wilson, Editor of the Quarterly from 1974, relinquished his post at the end of April 1980. The Institute wishes to express its gratitude to Mr. Wilson for his six years of service. He has been instrumental in building up the international contacts which a journal of this nature must have to ensure that it is kept up to date. In addition to his work with the Quarterly, Mr. Wilson has produced several books on the Chinese communist movement. He now plans to return to his writing on a full-time basis and is currently working on a biography of Zhou Enlai. The Institute wishes him well in his new ventures.

Readers may also like to know that Ms. Gail Eadie, who has been a member of the Institute's staff since 1976, was appointed Assistant Editor of The China Quarterly with effect from January 1980. This is a new administrative position created by the School of Oriental and African Studies. Ms. Eadie has worked exceptionally hard to maintain the high standards that readers and contributors have come to expect of the Quarterly. The Institute is pleased to announce her promotion.
