ANTONFRANCESCO GRAZZINI

Poet, Dramatist, and Novelliere, 1503-1584

By Robert J. Rodini

Professor Rodini's study is the first to consider both the life and works of the contradictory Italian literary figure. He brings clearly before us the critical spirit with which Grazzini viewed contemporary literary traditions. And he shows us, too, how Grazzini, while attempting to infuse a new spirit into those traditions, was nevertheless strongly influenced by them.

CALVINISM AND THE AMYRAUT HERESY

Protestant Scholasticism and Humanism in Seventeenth-Century France

By Brian G. Armstrong

This study advances the challenging thesis that the Calvinism commonly accepted today is not an accurate representation of Calvin's thinking. The evaluation is presented through a detailed examination of the controversial doctrines of the seventeenth-century French theologian, Moïse Amyraut, whose Calvinism was challenged by his own colleagues.

FRENCH POLITICAL PAMPHLETS, 1547-1648

A Catalog of Major Collections in American Libraries

Compiled by Robert O. Lindsay and John Neu

French pamphlets, a principal form of literature, have always been difficult to research for the historian and French scholar. The authors have made this task an easier one, by examining and listing 7,000 pamphlets of 15 U. S. libraries. All entries are arranged chronologically, then alphabetically by author; a special index lists the works by author and title.
