Journal of Hospitality and Tourism Management

Aims

The Journal of Hospitality and Tourism Management aims to:

- provide a forum for the publication of international, high quality, refereed articles in the fields of Hospitality Management, Tourism Management, Leisure Management, Travel Management and Event Management
- take advantage of existing synergies between the disciplines detailed above and develop further links between such disciplines
- publish articles that advance the knowledge base of the Hospitality, Tourism, Leisure, Travel and Event Management industries
- publish a wide range of theoretical and applied research projects in the fields of Hospitality, Tourism, Leisure, Travel and Event Management
- act as a conduit for the publication of quality articles from the Annual Council for Australian University Tourism and Hospitality Education (CAUTHE) Conference
- provide a link between the Hospitality, Tourism, Leisure, Travel and Event industries and Academia through the timely publication of appropriate articles that assist in the expansion of knowledge and development of management practices in the various cognate areas

Scope

The journal has been in existence as the Australian Journal of Hospitality Management since 1994 and during that time has published articles covering a range of issues, mainly within the hospitality discipline. While continuing to recognise the importance of the hospitality sector, the journal in its present form is committed to widening the scope of published articles to include the areas of tourism and travel management as well as leisure and recreation studies and the newly emerging and important field of event management.

The editors are committed to producing a high quality journal. With this in mind, the journal will contain both theoretical and applied research papers and encourage the submission of the results of collaborative research undertaken between academia and industry. All such articles will be subject to a double-blind refereeing process using the editorial board and other academic colleagues. The journal also aims to publish opinion pieces only. In order to ensure relevance, it is the aim of the journal to publish all material in a timely manner.

The journal aims to be international in focus and encourages the submission of papers from academics and practitioners throughout the world. Of particular interest are articles that compare and contrast practices across national boundaries.
