RENAISSANCE NEWS

A quarterly newsletter published by Dartmouth College Library for the American Council of Learned Societies

Frederick W. Sternfeld, editor Josephine Waters Bennett Ray Nash

Address the editor, Postoffice Box 832, Hanover, New Hampshire Annual subscription: domestic $1.00, Canada and foreign $1.25

Vol. IV	SUMMER 1951	No. 2
FUNERAL OF MICHELANGELO including reproduction of Cellini's autograph		17
CONFERENCES		20
PROJECTS AND NEWS  HISTORY LITERATURE MUSIC VISUAL ARTS		2 I
NOTES ON PHONOGRAPH RECORDINGS S. D. Tuttle: Dowland's Fifteen Songs		29
NOTES ON PUBLICATIONS H. J. Grimm: Bainton's Luther Schwiebert's Luther		30

At the Funeral of Michelangelo

By Edward A. Parsons

HEN Michelangelo died at Rome, February 18, 1564, he was first buried in the Church of the SS. Apostoli. His nephew Lionardo succeeded in stealing the body and sending it as a bale of merchandise to Florence, where it arrived March 11th. The famous city at once decided on a magnificent funeral for the world's greatest artist. Duke Cosimo de' Medici directed the Academy (Arte del Disegno) to take charge of the arrangements and conduct the obsequies with pomp and ceremony. So vast was the number of artists who wished to participate in the construction of a catafalque and a total decoration of the church of S. Croce, that it was decided to appoint a committee with full

Es priore et molto mio cay mo patrone

E none dubbio nissano et se aquel rempo che io chuesi la mera er la grandezza Flle figure emi fusi stato risposto e dato quel es misi perueniua aquetta hova io cavei tanto innanzi et Simia modellini Canovando alla precenziamia io havei pensato esicuro mi savei gromesso di potere ancor io compani ve infra corecti altri naltri hominj ma hova suedermi zosi; impedito dal male no mi par douere ne es le sorzze ne che l'honor mio 6 comporti impo hauendo cleto V. s. M. Vinco de Rossi io affermo A Cha benfaire edi tutto mi vimetto alci cosquetto Zumit mere le bacio le mane emele raccomando di casa il di 13 di Aprile 1564.

Alli Servity di V. S

Bonnenuto Colling

powers to act. Four friends of the illustrious dead, all men of high standing in the Arts, were singled out: Benvenuto Cellini and Bartolommeo Ammannati, sculptors, and Angelo Bronzino and Giorgio Vasari, painters. Don Vincenzo Borghini, Prorector of the Academy, conducted the negotiations with the Duke. As the result of the most elaborate preparations, the church of Santa Croce was transformed into a Hall of Arts: sculpture, painting, architecture and the lesser arts of design contributed to a glorious event which could have occurred only amid the dying glories of the Italian Renaissance.

The ceremonies took place July 14, 1564, at a solemn papal High Mass. Benedetto Varchi pronounced the funereal eulogy.

But Benvenuto Cellini took no part. Why?

Vasari says:

Benvenuto Cellini, who had been indisposed from the first took no part.

Symonds referred twice to Cellini's surprising absence (Life of Michelangelo Buonarroti, Boston, 1893, v. II, page 329; Life of Benvenuto Cellini, London, 1888, v. II, page 441) and Grimm also took note of it in his Life of Michelangelo (Boston, 1900, v. II, page 446).

Others have suggested that Cellini dropped out because of his dislike for Ammannati who had succeeded in being selected over Cellini for the erection of the great fountain in the Piazza della Signoria, Florence. However, for years, I have believed that the reason Cellini did not serve as a pall-bearer was that when the arrangement was made it was understood that two sculptors would walk behind the coffin, followed by two painters, architects, and members of the other arts; that when the actual march of the funeral took place, two architects were put first, a change which Cellini resented, and he, therefore, would not take part.

The Bibliotheca Parsoniana has acquired a relevant letter, written by Cellini to Don Vincenzo Borghini, Prorector of the Academy and Prior of the Innocenti. It is dated April 13, 1564, and may be interpreted:

To the Reverend and Holy Prior and my most dear Patron.

There is no doubt that if when I asked for the measurements and size of the figures I had received an answer and had been given what I required, I should be now so far advanced, that the work being done in my presence from my little models, I should have thought it safe to promise to appear myself among these other worthy men. But now being impeded by illness I do not feel that I should, neither my strength nor my honour permit of it. For this reason Master Vincenzo de Rossi having already told you, I affirm that he has done well. I thank you for all and kiss your hand most humbly and commend me. At home, the 13th day of April, 1564.

At the service of your Holiness.

Benvenuto Cellini.

BIBLIOTHECA PARSONIANA, NEW ORLEANS

A different interpretation of the Cellini letter by Ruth W. Kennedy (Smith College) will appear in the next issue of this news letter.