OLD AGE

IN THE MODERN WORLD

Report of the Third Congress of the International Association of Gerontology, London, 1954

650 pp.

102 figs.

"There is little doubt that [the] increasing emphasis on the older people in our community is becoming a permanent feature of our population struggle," commented the British Minister of Health at the opening of the Gerontological Congress. This book, a record of some of the congress proceedings, thoroughly surveys the steadily growing old-age problem.

Only those papers which presented original material or authoritative reviews or opened up new avenues of thought were selected for the book. From the speech by an 80-year-old woman who approached gerontology from the aged's own viewpoint through the more technical papers the book is extremely interesting and informative.
