HOT PROPERTY

The Stakes and Claims of Literary Originality

FRANÇOISE MELTZER

"Meltzer offers a provocative reassessment of the idea of authorship and its implicit reliance on the (masculine) values of originality, work, and property. Hot Property is an important piece of work. It should be read by all scholars interested in critical theory, gender studies, and problems of modernity."—Marie-Hélène Huet, University of Virginia

LANDSCAPE AND POWER

Edited by W. J. T. MITCHELL

The original essays in this volume consider landscapes as agencies of cultural power by which social and subjective identities are formed. By focusing on landscapes in specific places and at certain historical junctures this book itself alters the landscape of aesthetics, revising the way we look at images that mark and change our cultural horizons.

RHETORIC IN THE EUROPEAN TRADITION

THOMAS M. CONLEY

"There is nothing comparable to Conley in scope and quality. It is an irreplaceable book. . . . Pervading the whole of the work is a persuasive and original interpretation of the history of rhetorical theory that constitutes an important contribution to scholarship."—Edwin Black, University of Wisconsin

"Rhetoric in the European Tradition is not only a fine book in a great tradition but a work that should help in reestablishing that tradition internationally."—Wayne Booth, University of Chicago

THE CULTURE OF VIOLENCE

Essays on Tragedy and History

FRANCIS BARKER

Barker focuses on Shakespearean tragedy and present-day theory to illuminate aspects of early modern culture and to critique the ways in which the complicity between culture and violence has been occluded.

"Barker brilliantly historicizes postmodernism and genuinely breaks new ground. A very important book for Renaissance studies, and for literary theory in general."—Michael C. Schoenfeldt, University of Michigan

FALLING INTO THEORY Conflicting Views on Reading Literature

David H. Richter, *Queens College of the City
University of New York*

Foreword by Gerald Graff, University of Chicago

- the first book that enables instructors to "teach the conflicts" in undergraduate literature courses
- 29 selections include both popular press versions of academic debates and accessible scholarly pieces
- organized around three major questions of contemporary literary studies
- general introduction and part introductions point out to students what is at stake in these debates
- brief and affordable

"For some time I have been trying to persuade my fellow teachers that one of the best responses we can make to the increasingly heated conflicts that have erupted over American education is to teach the conflicts themselves. Since then I have had to explain myself to questioners ranging from the puzzled to the exasperated. Just what does 'teaching the conflicts' mean, especially when it comes down to what an instructor actually does on an actual Monday morning in a roomful of actual undergraduates? . . . Now, thanks to David Richter, I can refer questioners to a book that not only shows them how to teach the conflicts, but enables them to do it."

— From the foreword by Gerald Graff, University of Chicago

THE CRITICAL TRADITION Classic Texts and Contemporary Trends

David H. Richter, *Queens College of the City
University of New York*

"The Critical Tradition is the fullest one-volume collection of major text in literary theory and criticism. Richter manages to include not only all of the works usually treated in a historical survey but more than three-score representative essays of contemporary criticism and theory. Richter's introductions are judicious, informed, and incisive, inviting the beginner into a serious engagement with even the most difficult selections while avoiding the simplistic categories that mar too many anthologies."

— Wayne C. Booth, University of Chicago

"I admire the intellectual command and cogent, clear writing style of the introductions and value the fine, thoughtful selection of texts."

— William Cain, Wellesley College
