Ethics and Foreign Policy Series
($6.00 each; $6.00 for entire set of 14)

101. ETHICS AND NATIONAL PURPOSE
Kenneth W. Thompson
Dr. Thompson explores the tensions that exist in the area of ethics and foreign policy today. Comments by Charles Donahue, Stephen G. Cary, Israel Klavin and Herman Reissig.
102. MORALITY AND MODERN WAR
John Courtney Murray, S.J.
One of America's outstanding Catholic theologians examines the Church's traditional teaching on war in the light of developments in modern weapons.
103. RELIGION AND INTERNATIONAL RESPONSIBILITY
Robert Gordis
The religious and ethical heritage of the Jewish-Christian tradition, Dr. Gordis argues, is both practical and relevant to our international responsibilities today.
104. THE RECOVERY OF ETHICS
Paul H. Nitze
An analysis of decision-making at top government levels, this essay also evaluates the contributions of modern scientific thought to the reconstruction of an ethical context for political action.
105. THE MORALITY AND POLITICS OF INTERVENTION
Manfred Halpern
American intervention in the affairs of other states is a grave and current national concern. Dr. Halpern enunciates principles that are relevant to the serious discussion of any particular act of intervention, such as the Arab-Israeli War and Vietnam.
106. THE LIMITS OF NUCLEAR WAR
Paul Ramsey
In this essay the author of War and the Christian Conscience considers the limits of traditionally and at present, within which a war can be fought justly.
107. AN ALTERNATIVE TO WAR
Cordon Zahn
Dr. Zahn, one of the most persuasive and persistent advocates of non-violence, considers against the background of threatened nuclear war a course of non-violent action.
108. MORAL TENSIONS IN INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS
John C. Bennett
After asserting the difficulties involved in relating principles of morality to many political decisions and actions, Dr. Bennett suggests ways in which these principles, properly employed, help explore some present moral/political dilemmas.
109. SOUTH AFRICA: PROBLEMS AND PROSPECTS
Philip W. Quigg, with commentary by J. S. F. Botha, Kenneth Carstens, Vernon McKay
The most potentially dangerous foreign policy issue for the U.S. is likely to be South Africa. Against this belief, the managing editor of Foreign Affairs examines present problems and future prospects. His views are followed by those of people of diverse opinions.
110. FOREIGN AID: MORAL AND POLITICAL ASPECTS
Victor Ferkiss
Foreign aid policies have intermittently provoked national debates marked by acrimony, partisanship and confusion. Dr. Ferkiss here offers standards on which foreign aid programs should be based and by which they can be judged.
111. JUST WAR AND VATICAN COUNCIL II: A CRITIQUE
Robert W. Tucker, with commentary by George G. Higgins, Ralph Potter, Richard H. Cox, Paul Ramsey
The statements on war made by the Second Vatican Council derived from a tradition in which the concepts of just-war theory are pervasive. The relevance of these statements, and the entire theory, is here examined against the conditions of modern warfare.
112. COUNTERINSURGENCY: SOME PROBLEMS AND IMPLICATIONS
Edgar S. Furniss, Jr., with commentary by Charles Burton Marshall, William V. O'Brien
As the war in Vietnam attests, the U.S. is in the process of working out means of warfare that are appropriate to "wars of national liberation." Dr. Furniss addresses himself here to some of the problems posed by those means which are comprehended in the term "counterinsurgency."

113. THE UNITED STATES IN ASIA: EVOLUTION AND CONTAINMENT
David Mazingo
A penetrating analysis of both U.S. policy in Asia and Communist China's response to it, this frank and dispassionate study by a RAND Corporation Senior Analyst is basic to an understanding of what is happening today in Southeast Asia — and what is likely to happen tomorrow.
 114. MODERN WAR AND THE PURSUIT OF PEACE
Theodore R. Weber
Two opposed yet concurrent trends characterize modern warfare—the development of complex nuclear weapons systems and the emergence of involved, revolutionary guerrilla techniques. In light of these trends Dr. Weber offers some new and challenging interpretations of traditional just war theory.
- Special Studies
201. THE MORAL DILEMMA OF NUCLEAR WEAPONS: ESSAYS FROM WORLDVIEW
William Clancy, ed.
This, the first series of essays to be selected from Worldview, brings together in a single discussion political scientists, theologians, military analysts and journalists. No consensus was attempted or attained; the only common criterion was the attempt to respond to the dilemma of nuclear weapons in a way that is "morally responsible and politically wise." $1.50
 202. PEACE, THE CHURCHES AND THE BOMB
James Finn, ed.
Although the focus of discussion here is the preliminary statement on nuclear arms that was discussed in the third session of Vatican Council II, the issues and problems are those which all of us must face. The purpose of this volume is to clarify and refine these issues so that agreement, or disagreement, will be as precise as possible. $2.00
 203. NUCLEAR WEAPONS: CAN THEIR SPREAD BE HALTED?
Betsy Goetz Lall
Mrs. Lall shows why the problem of limiting the spread of nuclear weapons is one with shifting contours, but she also suggests some measures that are presently feasible and desirable. 50¢
 204. THE U.S. AND WARS OF NATIONAL LIBERATION
Quentin J. Quade
Dr. Quade, in a special report, recounts the major propositions, arguments and attitudes expressed during the course of a CRIA seminar in which authoritative spokesmen discussed wars of national liberation, e.g., Vietnam, in relation to U.S. foreign policy. 50¢
 205. U.S. POLICY IN THE FAR EAST: IDEOLOGY, RELIGION AND SUPERSTITION
Kenneth W. Thompson, Hans J. Morgenthau, Jerald C. Brauer
In an attempt to separate the idolatrous and the ephemeral from the valid objects of national dedication, three members of the CRIA Board of Trustees discuss U.S. policy in the Far East in relation to its history and probable future as well as to the present involvement in Vietnam. $1.75
 206. AMERICAN FOREIGN POLICY & MORAL RHETORIC: THE EXAMPLE OF VIETNAM
David Little
What role and significance in discussions of foreign policy has the view that moralism and idealism in international affairs produce more harm than good? Dr. Little examines the tradition of "liberal disillusionment" as it shapes criticism about the Government's handling of Vietnam policy in particular. $1.75
