Modern Asian Studies is concerned with the history, geography, politics, sociology, literature, economics and social anthropology of South Asia, South-East Asia, China and Japan

Contributions should be based on original research or field-work. They should be between 2000 and 8000 words long. Two typed copies should be submitted. Each author will receive twenty-five free offprints of his article and a copy of the Journal in which it appears.

Submission of an article will be taken to imply that it has not been previously published and that it is not on offer to any other publisher. In the interests of authors, copyright is normally assigned to Cambridge University Press. The editor welcomes expression of all shades of opinion, but responsibility for them rests with their authors.

All correspondence should be addressed to Dr Gordon Johnson, Selwyn College, Cambridge CB3 9DQ, England.

Acknowledgements

The essays collected together in this special issue of Modern Asian Studies are concerned with the ways in which Britain's imperial connection with India impinged upon the political, economic and social development of the sub-continent in the first half of the twentieth century. They have been written by students and colleagues of Professor J. A. Gallagher, whose death last year has robbed historical scholarship of a powerful and creative mind.

Editorial responsibility for the issue has been shared with Dr Christopher Baker and Dr Anil Seal, who, together with Professor Gallagher, first suggested that we explore in a publication of this kind some of the dominant themes relating to the last years of colonial rule in India. Much of the credit for the successful completion of this work must go to them.

Generous grants from the Master and Fellows of Trinity College, Cambridge, and from the Managers of the Smuts Memorial Fund, University of Cambridge, have made possible the publication of this much enlarged part of the journal.

I am grateful to Miss Livia Breglia, who, as for all issues of Modern Asian Studies, has laboured nobly to put typescripts in order and to read proofs; and it is a pleasure to record the work done for the journal by Mr Dennis Forbes, Mrs Hilary Moore, and Mrs Rosemary Tennison at the Press.
