

City Life

Ten Subject Sets in the Irish University Press 1,000-Volume Series of the British Parliamentary Papers

The beginning of the Industrial Revolution in England was also the beginning of present-day urban problems. And the investigations and studies of urban problems initiated by the British Parliament are our most important single resource on this period.

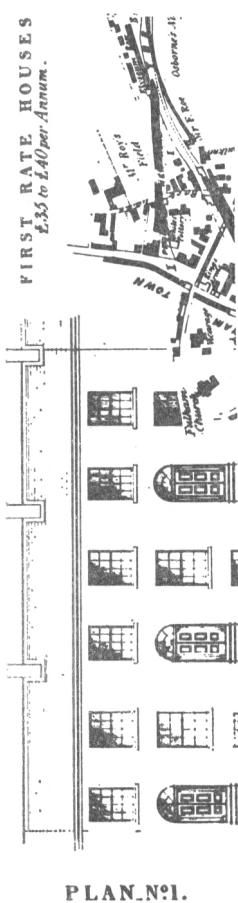

For the first time the vast resources of the British Parliamentary Papers (7,000 volumes published in the 19th century) have been organized by Irish University Press editors into 79 key subject sets, ten of which directly concern to the quality of city life.

Four subject sets relate to Urban Areas: HOUSING (3 volumes), PLANNING (10 volumes), SANITATION (7 volumes), WATER SUPPLY (9 volumes). Five sets relate to Health: GENERAL (17 volumes), FOOD AND DRUGS (5 volumes), MEDICAL PROFESSION (5 volumes), MENTAL (8 volumes), INFECTIOUS DISEASES (15 volumes). Plus a 30-volume subject set on POOR LAW.

The Urban Areas subject sets contain vital documentation on the growth of urban slums, dangers to public health, housing censuses of 250 towns, river pollution by industrial waste, and the administrative, scientific and engineering problems involved in dealing with the problems of city life.

Researchers for city-planning studies, social welfare professionals and students, medical and public health practitioners, all students and professionals concerned with the present-day quality of urban life will be greatly enriched by the vast wealth of information contained in these nine subject sets of the British Parliamentary Papers.

Robert Randle

GENEVA 1954

The Settlement of the Indochinese War

" . . . by far the most detailed and comprehensive analysis of Geneva 1954 . . . unquestionably the standard reference work on the Accords." (John Norton Moore)
Dr. Randle assesses the foreign relations of the powers as they jockeyed for position before the Conference, the day-to-day bargaining at Geneva, the defects of the Agreements, and their implementation in Cambodia, Laos, and Vietnam. $17.50

Richard A. Falk

THE STATUS OF LAW IN INTERNATIONAL SOCIETY

Following the pattern established in his book, Legal Order in a Violent World, Professor Falk brings the outlook, methods, and concerns of the social scientist to the study of international law. Among the topics he covers are the South West Africa decisions; the law-making capacity of the General Assembly; the assertion of unilateral claims to act in space; and the application of international law to domestic courts. Published for the Center of International Studies, Princeton University $15.00

Richard A. Falk, Editor

THE VIETNAM WAR AND INTERNATIONAL LAW, Volume 2

"A balanced exposition, by 34 contributors, of the principal legal problems arising over Vietnam. Immensely useful as a reference source for any legal point of view on the Vietnam involvement."—Foreign Affairs. Sponsored by the American Society of International Law

DOCUMENTS AND COMMENTARY; VOLUME I: THE MIDDLE EAST; VOLUME II: ASIA; VOLUME III: EUROPE AND AFRICA

By ROSALYN HIGGINS, Chatham House. This three-volume series makes available for the first time a readily accessible and fully comprehensive collection of documents on each of the U. N. peacekeeping actions, the lesser as well as the better known. "Invaluable as a reference work. The research is exhaustive and just about every salient fact is included." —Foreign Affairs. (For the Royal Institute of International Affairs.) Volume I, $17.75. Volume II, $14.50. Volume III, Forthcoming

Double Jeopardy

By MARTIN L. FRIEDLAND, University of Toronto. This examination of the history and current state of the rule against double jeopardy concentrates on British law but includes comparative material from other English-speaking jurisdictions, especially Canada and the United States. Analyzed are such topics as: the rationale of the rule, its history, the termination of legal proceedings, dismissals on a procedural matter, accidental acquittals, technical acquittals, estoppels, perjury, and special pleas. $14.50

English and American Judges as Lawmakers

By LOUIS L. JAFFE, Harvard University. This book deals with the lawmaking functions of judges in a democracy. It contrasts English and American judges, explores the bold innovations of the American courts and propounds justification for that activity related to democratic theory while pointing out its dangers. The author criticizes the English judges for their restrictive notions of the judicial functions and their rejection of the great examples set by Coke, Mansfield, and the nineteenth-century judges. $4.00

The Concept of a Legal System

AN INTRODUCTION TO THE THEORY OF LEGAL SYSTEM

By JOSEPH RAZ, Hebrew University, Jerusalem. Three problems are explored in this study: What does it mean to assert or deny the existence of a legal system? How can one determine whether a given law belongs to a certain legal system? Is there a structure common to all legal systems, or the certain types of legal systems? The examination of these problems leads to a new approach to some traditional jurisprudential questions, though the conclusions reached are based on a critical appraisal of several previous theories. 7 text figures. $7.25

Human Rights and International Action

THE CASE OF FREEDOM OF ASSOCIATION

Ernst B. Haas

This book argues that despite debates, resolutions, and treaties, the effort to protect human rights by international means has failed, that national ideologies and value systems, instead of coalescing, are growing more diffuse. Still, the record may be subject to improvement if the more modest and indirect functional approach is employed to protect certain limited but salient rights. To test this hypothesis, the author investigates some 500 complaints mediated by the ILO between 1950 and 1968. $6.50

UN Protection of Civil and Political Rights

John Carey

"Carey examines the past, present and possible future role of the UN in the protection of civil and political rights in the broadest sense. He discusses the work of the principal organs of the UN, the specialized agencies, various committees and commissions, both permanent and ad hoc. This institutional effort involves education, coercion (armed and economic), adjudication, negotiation, investigation, publicity and aid and comfort for the oppressed. The source of Carey's material was the multitude of UN documents setting out the resolutions, reports and comments of these UN bodies. His copious and excellent footnotes refer to the materials for those who wish more detailed information. Much of this source material is unavailable in standard library collections. Little of the material is even known to exist by most people.

"Carey's book must be the starting point for knowledge of the UN's work in the field of protection of civil and political rights."—J. W. Samuels, for Canadian Bar Review.

Law-Making in the International Civil Aviation Organization

Thomas Buergenthal

"An analysis of the law-making function of I.C.A.O. as it deals with membership, technical legislation, dispute settlement, and amendment of the I.C.A.O. Convention. The author notes the collaborative climate of the proceedings, the avoidance of adjudication in favor of diplomacy, and the capacity of the organization for introducing change without formal amendment. He stresses the similarity of this gradual reinterpretation of the I.C.A.O. Convention to national constitutional change."—Harvard International Law Journal

"For both the aviation-law specialist and the student of international organizations."—Stanford Law Review

"A solid and scholarly monograph."—Foreign Affairs
