EAST MEETS EAST: Chinese Discover the Modern World in Japan, 1854–1898. A Window on the Intellectual and Social Transformation of Modern China

Douglas R. Reynolds. Pb. 978-0-924304-76-7.

East Meets East explores three important dimensions of modern Chinese history: Chinese discovery of the modern world in Japan; reports on Japan before 1890 so objective and non-Sinocentric that higher authorities suppressed them; and official innovations inside China prompted by crises which opened the gates to intellectual and social transformations at the grassroots. Meaty on-site reports of Japan were a major direct source of ideas for the Hundred Days Reforms of 1898 and the Xinzheng modernization reforms after 1901. Extrabureaucratic Ju (Bureaus) after 1863 won respect and legitimacy for “irregular path” (yitu) persons having modern western knowledge. Nouveaux elites at odds with the old bureaucratic zhengtu order and having careers tied to modernization and reform, after 1912 firmly rejected Yuan Shikai’s bid to restore the old imperial order in 1915–16. After 1916, there was no turning back. The old order and era were truly “gone with the wind.” For depth, breadth, and fresh insights, East Meets East is a must read.

The Department of East Asian Languages & Cultures in the School of Global and International Studies at Indiana University Bloomington invites applications for a tenure-track position as assistant professor in Japanese Language Studies. The fields of possible specialization include, but are not limited to language education, second language studies, and linguistics broadly defined. The appointment begins August 1, 2016.

Candidates must have the Ph.D. at time of appointment. The successful candidate will have a productive research record with clear potential for scholarly excellence, as well as a strong commitment to language teaching. She or he will also demonstrate a commitment to research, teaching, and program development within the Department of East Asian Languages & Cultures, as well as the School of Global and International Studies. Required qualifications include native or near-native proficiency in Japanese and English, and the ability to oversee the department's Japanese language program and represent its interests within and beyond the institution. Teaching responsibilities will include one level of the Japanese-language sequence and undergraduate and graduate courses in support of the department's language and culture curriculum.

Indiana University is an equal employment and affirmative action employer and a provider of ADA services. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to age, ethnicity, color, race, religion, sex, sexual orientation or identity, national origin, disability status or protected veteran status.

Application materials, including a cover letter that includes a statement of the candidate's research interests and teaching philosophy, curriculum vitae, teaching evaluations, a writing sample, and three academic letters of reference should be submitted online at <http://indiana.peopleadmin.com/postings/#>. Questions regarding the position or application process can be directed to Japanese Search Committee, Department of East Asian Languages and Cultures, GISB 2035, Indiana University, Bloomington, IN 47405-7005 or electronically at ealc@indiana.edu. Review of applications will begin October 30, 2015 and will continue until the position is filled.

Bibliography of Asian Studies

New and Improved!

The single most important record of research and scholarly literature on Asia written in Western languages . . .

- Over 860,400 citations that can be searched within seconds and easily downloaded and printed
- State-of-the-art discovery system with simplified searching and facet-based browsing
- Over 400,000 citations from 1992 to the present, plus full content of the annual printed Bibliography of Asian Studies from 1971–1991
- All records are in Unicode-format for easy compatibility with current browsers and other programs
- Entries accessible by author, title, year of publication, subject, country, journal title, keyword, and ISSN searches
- Index access to many journals, particularly ones published in Asia, which are not indexed anywhere else
- Index access to the contents of edited volumes, conference proceedings, anthologies, Festschriften and similar publications
- Thousands of new entries added every four months
- Accessible to faculty, staff, and students at subscribing colleges and universities via their computer systems, with validation by IP address
- Organizational and individual subscriptions

Scholars testify that the BAS Online provides far better access to Western-language materials on Asia than anything previously available.

The Future of Asian Finance

edited by Ratna Sahay, Jerald Schiff, Cheng Hoon Lim, Chikahisa Sumi, and James P. Walsh

This book takes stock of how systems in Asia's advanced and emerging market economies compare with the rest of the world and how reforms to develop equity and bond markets have progressed. It then looks forward at how Asian financial systems will evolve in complexity and interconnectedness and what this means for the regional financial centers of Hong Kong SAR and Singapore. Finally, the book looks at how the region's demographic dividend can be harnessed to finance infrastructure, the state of economic and financial integration in Association of Southeast Asian Nations, the role of capital flows, and how changes to global regulatory regimes will affect Asian financial systems.

“Lessons learned from cross-country experiences are valuable and yet they need to be applied to Asia with care, recognizing the region’s many unique characteristics and the wide diversity of financial systems within the region.”

PROCEDURE FOR MANUSCRIPT SUBMISSION

Manuscripts of 8,000 to 10,000 words and any accompanying figures should be submitted electronically through the Editorial Manager online submission system (<http://www.editorialmanager.com/jas/>). If needed, the Editorial office can be reached via email: jas@journalofasianstudies.org or by phone: (949) 824-6521. Low-resolution images and illustrations are acceptable for the review process; all images, tables and figures should include titles or captions. Please note that in the event of publication, the author is responsible for acquiring high-resolution images along with permission to publish them.

All authors who wish to include figures should read and follow the Cambridge Artwork Guide, available at <https://journals.cambridge.org/action/stream?pageId=7848&level=2&menu=Authors&pageId=3608>.

Due to the volume of submissions, we cannot evaluate proposed abstracts or titles, only full submissions. The JAS does not do special issues.

See the AAS website (<https://www.asian-studies.org/Publications/JAS>), Cambridge Journals Online (<http://journals.cambridge.org/action/displayJournal?jid=JAS>), and Editorial Manager (<http://www.editorialmanager.com/jas/default.aspx>) for more information on the journal, types of work we publish, and sample articles.

REQUIREMENTS FOR MANUSCRIPT SUBMISSION

When preparing a manuscript, please note that JAS is committed to publishing articles based on in-depth, original research. Authors should also take care to address the interests of our broad, multidisciplinary readership by raising larger questions of interest that reach beyond their precise research specialties. Authors are encouraged to consult recent issues of JAS for guidance on style and formatting.

- Manuscripts submitted to JAS should not have been published elsewhere and should not be under review for publication elsewhere.
- Article manuscripts, including notes and references, should range between 8,000 and 10,000 words, or approximately thirty-five pages in length, and must include a 150 word abstract at the beginning of the document.
- Authors' names must be left off of the manuscript, as JAS engages in double-blind reviews.
- Please double-space manuscripts and use 12-point type with 1 inch margins including abstracts, notes, and references.
- Notes should be as few as possible and appear at the end of the text.
- Use parenthetical in-text citation, and author-date formatting for references per section 15 of the Chicago Manual of Style, 16th edition (Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 2010).
- Please use the following Romanization: Chinese: Pinyin; Japanese: Hepburn; Korean: McCune-Reischauer.

Articles in JAS represent neither the views of the Association for Asian Studies nor those of the JAS editors. The Editor is responsible for the final selection of content of JAS and reserves the right to reject any material deemed inappropriate for publication. Responsibility for opinions expressed and the accuracy of facts published in articles and reviews rests solely with the individual authors.

THE ONE OVER RULE AND OTHER THOUGHTS ON SUBMITTING TO THE JOURNAL OF ASIAN STUDIES

Jeffrey Wasserstrom

Editing the JAS is an exciting job but also a daunting job. It is exciting because so many fascinating pieces get sent in for consideration, but it is daunting because so few of these can be published. There is no magic formula used to determine which 25 or so of the well over 300 submissions we get in any given year end up being accepted, but over the course of my four years as Editor, I have come up with some rules of thumb. Since the Journal's Managing Editor Jennifer Munger and I are often asked questions by authors trying to assess their chances of having their article accepted, it seems worth spelling out some of these:

- 1) There are more pieces that qualify as the very best articles on Asia than we have room to publish. Our goal, therefore, is to select articles that are of very high quality and that, when taken together, make for individual issues and yearly volumes that seem likely to strike our readers as interesting and attractively varied.
- 2) The One Over Rule. In an ideal world, every JAS article would be accessible and appealing to all members of the Association for Asian Studies, the group that remains our primary target readership. More realistically, I am determined that nothing run under my watch will only be of interest to scholars working in a single discipline and on a single period or locale, and that nothing will only make sense to a small segment of the AAS membership, due to the terminology or formulae used. A lot of excellent articles are highly specialized and intended simply for others who are expert in an area, but there are many good journals where such work can be published. The JAS, by contrast, is an interdisciplinary general journal. To work for us, an article has to, at the very least, be something that scholars in two or three different disciplines will be able to understand easily and that will have the potential at least to interest readers working on neighboring countries, related topics, and on adjacent periods. Articles do not need to be comparative or interdisciplinary. They do need to have a broad as opposed to narrow aspect to them. Hence, the "one over rule," which means an ability to speak to someone in a field close to the author's own. An article by, say, an anthropologist working on Laos need not have any obvious appeal to a literary critic specializing in the study of Korea, but if this piece would have no chance of drawing the interest of a sociologist whose focus is Cambodia, we have a problem. Similarly, while that imagined Korean literature specialist does not have to write a piece that is certain to draw in an economist primarily concerned with India, there's a problem if Japanese studies scholars working in cultural studies do not think it speaks in any way to them. The same kind of thinking applies to periods as to places and disciplines.
