

Appleby of the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs of Syracuse University, who discussed top-level management; and Morse Salisbury, director, Public and Technical Information Service, United States Atomic Energy Commission, who spoke on public reporting.

During January and February, 1951, Vanderbilt University sponsored a series of lectures by visiting political scientists as part of its seventy-fifth anniversary observance. The visiting political scientists and the topics on which they lectured were: Charles Fairman of Leland Stanford University, "Current Trends in Constitutional Law"; Hans J. Morgenthau of the University of Chicago, "The Dilemmas of American Foreign Policy"; John Gange of the University of Virginia, "Is Peace Still Possible?"; Robert E. Cushman of Cornell University, "The Effects of the Cold War on Our Civil Liberties"; Edgar S. Furniss, Jr., of Princeton University, "Are We Losing the Battle for Men's Minds?"; Clarence A. Berdahl of the University of Illinois, "The Leadership of the United States in the United Nations"; Taylor Cole of Duke University, "The Democratization of Western Germany"; Robert J. Harris of Louisiana State University, "The Changing Character of American Federalism"; and Norman D. Palmer of the University of Pennsylvania, "The United States and the Revolution in Asia." The series of lectures was made possible by a special grant to Vanderbilt University from the General Education Board of New York City.

Marshall E. Dimock delivered the annual lectures in public administration at the University of Alabama, November 6-10, 1950. The title of the 1950 series of lectures was "Free Enterprise and the Administrative State."

Harold D. Lasswell of Yale University delivered the second of a series of lectures relating to the Soviet Union and the United States at Emory University on January 30, 1951. The title of the lecture was "Force and Persuasion in the Strategy of the West."

Hans Kelsen of the University of California (Berkeley) delivered a lecture on "Recent Trends in the Law of the United Nations" at the University of Utah on February 7, 1951. The lecture was sponsored by the Institute of Government of the University of Utah and by the local chapter of Pi Sigma Alpha.

James J. Robbins, professor of political science at the American University, was recently decorated by the Swedish Government with the Order of the Polar Star with the rank of Knight. The citation accompanying the presentation referred to Professor Robbins' book, The Government and Labor Relations in Sweden, and to his activities in promoting international cultural relations between Sweden and the United States.

APPOINTMENTS AND STAFF CHANGES

Robert T. Bower, formerly associated with the Bureau of Applied Social Research at Columbia University, has been appointed director of the Bureau of Social Science Research of the American University.

Henry L. Bretton was an instructor in political science at the University of Michigan during the spring semester of 1951.

George P. Bush has been advanced to the rank of associate professor in the School of Social Sciences and Public Affairs of the American University.

Harwood L. Childs of Princeton University has been serving as visiting professor at New York University.

Edward S. Corwin of Princeton University was a visiting professor of political science at Emory University during the spring quarter of 1951.

Guy H. Dodge, chairman of the department of political science at Brown University, has been advanced to a full professorship at that institution.

Arthur Fanta, international lawyer and native of Czechoslovakia, has been serving as a part-time teacher in the department of political science of the University of Pennsylvania.

David Farrelly of the University of California (Los Angeles) will be a visiting member of the faculty of Pennsylvania State College during the summer of 1951.

James W. Fesler, member of the political science staff of the University of North Carolina since 1935, has been appointed Alfred Cowles professor of government and chairman of the department of political science at Yale University.

Russel H. Fitzgibbon is on leave from the University of California (Los Angeles) to engage in research on governmental organization and operation in Uruguay under a Social Science Research Council grant.

Guy Fox has been promoted to an associate professorship at Michigan State College.

Robert E. Goostree, formerly a graduate student and instructor at the State University of Iowa, became an instructor in government and politics at the University of Maryland on January 1, 1951.

George A. Graham continued on leave from Princeton University during the spring of 1951, devoting his full time to research under a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation.

J. A. C. Grant of the University of California (Los Angeles) has been named divisional dean of social sciences at that institution.

Lowell H. Hattery has been advanced to the rank of associate professor in the School of Social Sciences and Public Affairs of the American University.

Carroll Hawkins has been appointed to an associate professorship at Michigan State College.

J. David Jackson has been appointed as an instructor in political science at the University of Pennsylvania.

Scott D. Johnson of Hamline University will be a visiting professor at the University of Minnesota in the second summer session of 1951.

George Kennan, counsellor of the United States Department of State (on leave), has been elected to membership in the School of Historical Studies, Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton, New Jersey, for a period of five years beginning in September, 1951. He will continue studies in diplomacy and international affairs which he began at the Institute during the academic year 1950-51.

Walter H. C. Laves, recently deputy director general of UNESCO in Paris, was a visiting professor of political science at the University of Michigan during the spring semester of 1951.

John D. Lewis of Wesleyan University (Connecticut) will be a visiting professor at the University of Minnesota in the second summer session of 1951.

Stuart A. MacCorkle has been on leave from the University of Texas since February 1, 1951, and has been serving as executive director of the Texas Economy Commission, with headquarters in Austin, Texas.

Joseph E. McLean of Princeton University has been appointed acting director of the Office of Price Stabilization for the Trenton, New Jersey, district.

Arthur W. Macmahon, Eaton professor of public administration at Columbia University, was a visiting professor at Princeton University during the second semester of 1950-51.

John M. Mathews, formerly chairman of the department of political science of the University of Illinois, retired from active service at the close of the academic year 1950-51, after forty-two years of teaching. He has been named professor emeritus.

Jaroslav Mayda, formerly of Masaryk and Charles Universities, Czechoslovakia, has been appointed as an assistant professor of political science and law at the University of Wisconsin.

Robert G. Neumann is on leave from the University of California (Los Angeles), and is engaged in a study of political parties in France under a grant from the Social Science Research Council.

Edward R. Padgett, formerly an assistant in the College of Special and Continuation Studies at the University of Maryland, has been serving as an assistant professor of political science and history at Washington College, Chestertown, Maryland, during the academic year 1950-51.

Harold S. Quigley of the University of Minnesota will be a visiting member of the faculty of the University of Wyoming during the summer of 1951.

Robert W. Rafuse has been appointed to an associate professorship and named chairman of the department of political science and citizenship at Harpur College, State University of New York.

John S. Reshetar of Princeton University was one of the participants during the academic year 1950-51 in the refugee interview project which was conducted in Germany by the Russian Research Center of Harvard University.

George F. Robertson became operations supervisor of the Tax Commission of the State of Washington on December 1, 1950.

Arnold A. Rogow, assistant in instruction at Princeton University, is in England to study relations between business and the Labor government. His study is being conducted under a fellowship from the Social Science Research Council.

George F. Rohrlch, formerly a research associate of the National Planning Association, Washington, D. C., has been appointed chief of the Disability Research Branch, Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance, Social Security Administration, Baltimore, Maryland.

George H. Sabine of Cornell University was a visiting professor of political science at the University of Oregon during the spring term of 1951.

Harry Shapiro of the Philadelphia Board of Public Education has been serving as a part-time teacher in the department of political science of the University of Pennsylvania.

Wilbur S. Shepperson, recently a graduate student at Western Reserve University, has been appointed as an instructor in history and political science at the University of Nevada for the academic year 1951-52.

Herman Somers, chairman of the department of political science of Haverford College, has been advanced to a full professorship at that institution.

H. Arthur Steiner will be on leave from the University of California (Los Angeles) during the fall semester of the academic year 1951-52 for a temporary assignment as director of studies of the National War College, Washington, D. C.

Ivan M. Stone has been appointed dean at Beloit College, where he has been chairman of the department of government for several years.

Albert L. Sturm was advanced to a full professorship in political science at West Virginia University, effective February 1, 1951.

William Lonsdale Tayler was on leave from Dickinson College during the academic year 1950-51 to serve as dean of the Azores and Bermuda branches of the American International College, which were established in the fall of 1950 for the officers and airmen of the United States Air Force at Lages Air Station and Kindley Air Force Base.

Arthur L. Thexton has resumed his duties as associate professor of political science at the University of Bridgeport after a leave of absence during which he served as promotion director of the Connecticut State Democratic campaign of 1950.

Thomas W. Thorsen, formerly of the Institute of Government of the University of Utah, has been appointed city manager of Cedar City, Utah.

Lawrence C. Wanlass has been advanced to an assistant professorship at Mount Holyoke College.

Edward E. Weidner, formerly of the University of California (Los Angeles), has been appointed to an associate professorship at Michigan State College.

Robert F. Wilcox, formerly senior research assistant at the John Randolph Haynes and Dora Haynes Foundation in Los Angeles, is now an assistant professor of political science at San Diego State College.

E. L. Woodward, fellow of Worcester College and professor of modern history, Oxford University, will become a professor in the School of Historical Studies, Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton, New Jersey, in September, 1951.

Roland A. Young has been on leave from Northwestern University for the past three months while serving as political science representative in a group of five social scientists who have been conducting a study in Africa of the government of dependent areas. The study which the group has been conducting is under the sponsorship of the Carnegie Corporation.