

Notes on Contributors

Mary Kate McGowan

Assistant Professor of Philosophy at Wellesley College. She works in metaphysics, philosophy of language and philosophy of science. Forthcoming articles include 'Gruesome Connections' in Philosophical Quarterly and 'Privileging Properties' in Philosophical Studies.

Anthony Skillen

Recently retired as lecturer in the Philosophy Department of the University of Kent at Canterbury.

Charles D. Tarlton

Professor of Political Science at the University of Albany. In recent years he has written on Locke, Machiavelli, and Hobbes. He is currently engaged in an analysis of the structural ambiguities of Rousseau's Discours sur l'origine et les fondements de l'inégalité parmi les hommes.

Stephen J. Boulter

Senior Lecturer in Philosophy at Oxford Brookes University. His research areas include the philosophy of language, the philosophy of science and medieval philosophy.

Gabriele De Anna

A tutor in the Philosophy Department at St Andrews and research fellow at the University of Padua, Italy. He has published papers in American, British and Italian journals and is the author of the forthcoming book, Realismo Metafisico e Rappresentazione Mentale (Padua: Il Poligrafo).

Roy Sorensen

Roy Sorensen seeks Fame and Fortune as a Dartmouth College philosophy professor. He is the author of Blindspots, Thought Experiments and Pseudo-Problems, and most recently Vagueness and Contradiction.

David Beisecker

Assistant Professor of Philosophy at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas. He has published articles in the philosophy of mind and language, with an eye towards writing a book on the metaphysics of mind and meaning.