Teaching Philosophy

Michael Goldman, Editor

Teaching Philosophy provides an open forum for the exchange and evaluation of ideas, information, and materials concerning the teaching of philosophy. Published quarterly, Teaching Philosophy explores the relationship between philosophy and its teaching, the nature of philosophy curricula, courses, and methods, and the unique problems that exist for philosophy teachers. Readers will learn about innovative teaching methods, successful classroom stratagems, and the use of new materials.

A Major New Journal for 2002

Politics, Philosophy & Economics

Editors: Gerald F Gaus and Jonathan Riley Murphy Institute of Political Economy, Tulane University, New Orleans, USA

Politics, Philosophy & Economics aims to bring moral, economic and political theory to bear on the analysis, justification and criticism of political and economic institutions and public policies. The journal seeks to provide a distinctive forum for discussions and debates among political scientists, philosophers, and economists on such matters as constitutional design, property rights, distributive justice, the welfare state, egalitarianism, the morals of the market, democratic socialism, population ethics, and the evolution of norms.

The Editors are committed to publishing high quality papers using various methodologies from a wide variety of normative perspectives. Of special interest are excellent essays that are widely accessible. Scholars using more specialized techniques (for example, social choice theory or game theory) are encouraged to make their arguments and results more accessible to a broader audience. As far as possible mathematics should be confined to appendices.
