CITIZENS AND RULERS OF THE WORLD

The American Child and the Cartographic Pedagogies of Empire

Mahshid Mayar

"A lively and ambitious project. Mayar marshals an amazing untapped body of evidence that complicates current (and older) assumptions about childhood, education, and the roles of nationalism and imperialism at the turn of the twentieth century."

—Martin Brückner, University of Delaware
264 pages $32.95 paper

CLASS INTERRUPTIONS

Inequality and Division in African Diasporic Women's Fiction

Robin Brooks

"Shows that writers have engaged class consistently, even as class remained a lacuna in literary critical studies. Brooks confidently contributes this much-needed component to advance a new generation of literary scholarship in which class has as much analytical presence as does race or gender."

—Carole Boyce Davies, Cornell University
238 pages $27.95 paper

THE GENERALS' CIVIL WAR

What Their Memoirs Can Teach Us Today

Stephen Cushman

"A work of high critical energy and well-honed insights, Cushman's book will excite readers and add to their understanding of Civil War generals, their memoirs, and the intellectual ties of history and imagination."

—Steven M. Stowe, author of Keep the Days
240 pages $24.95 paper

GROTESQUE TOUCH

Women, Violence, and Contemporary Circum-Caribbean Narratives

Amy K. King

"King provides us with excellent analysis of a fascinating range of literary and visual texts. Few scholars of the circum-Caribbean engage with both the literary and the visual with as much rigor and facility as King does here, and her work is crucial for understanding the contemporary United States and Caribbean."

—Raphael Dalleo, author of American Imperialism's Undead

“A page-turning treat for seasoned scholars and novices alike, [and] a must-have for every Gothicism’s library.”

—Carol Davison, author of History of the Gothic

“Miller’s delineation of a ‘literature of exhaustion’ provides an indispensable frame for studying nineteenth-century literature.”

—Sukanya Banerjee, author of Becoming Imperial Citizens

“Cohen’s eagerly awaited book juxtaposes three twentieth-century innovations: scuba, underwater film, and modernist artistic experimentalism. . . . Brilliant and engaging.”

—Steve Mentz, author of Ocean

“This fascinating collection addresses the question of the differing ways in which a literary tradition can begin and, equally, can survive and flourish.”

—David Damrosch, Harvard University

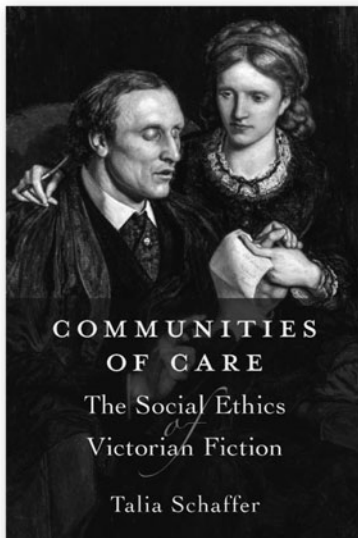

“A powerful and deeply personal defense of Great Books and liberal education.”

—Molly Worthen, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill

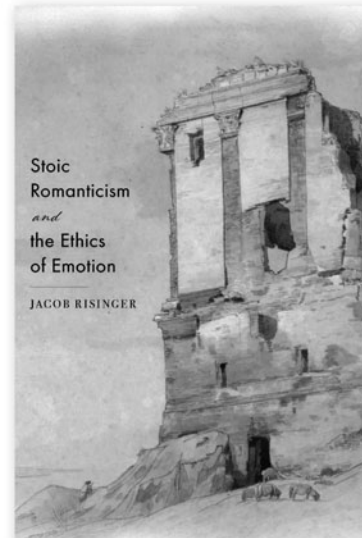

“Truly epic and millennial in scale. The translation and expertise that have gone into this are not likely to be surpassed.”

—Frederick M. Smith,
Religious Studies Review

“Communities of Care reframes our understanding of the social ethics informing Victorian literature and culture. [An] important and timely book.”

—Amanda Anderson, author of
Psyche and Ethos

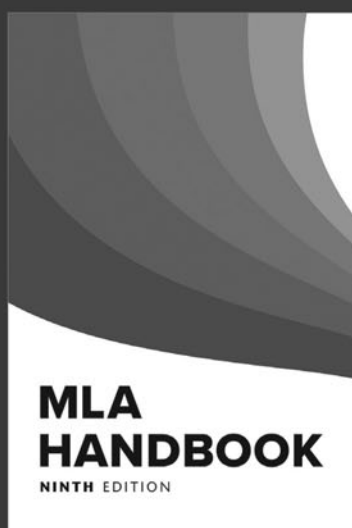

“Impressive.... A major rethinking of the central texts of Romanticism, and, indeed, a whole new understanding of Romanticism itself.”

—Jonathan Sachs,
Concordia University

NEW FROM UC PRESS

A comprehensive guide to building and maintaining a sustainable, profitable, and enjoyable business as a freelance editor.

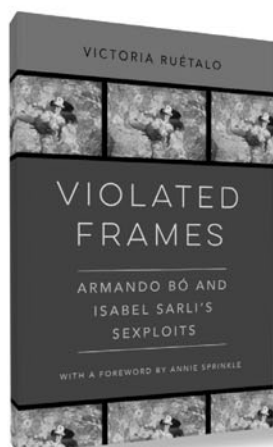

A superbly crafted study of Hunter S. Thompson's literary formation, achievement, and continuing relevance.

"A stunningly original, provocative, and transdisciplinary take on the concept of assimilation."

—Michael Omi, author of Racial Formation in the New Millennium

"Draws readers into its well-theorized exploration of the Argentine filmmaker and star partnership."

—Dolores Tierney, author of New Transnationalisms in Contemporary Latin American Cinemas

"Shows us that the material objects we may take to be adjacent, ambient, or peripheral . . . in fact constitute how we live with those media."

—Nick Salvato, author of Television Scales

"An exciting illumination of the intertwined histories of gender, the TV business, and creative labor."
