

H. DE LA COSTA, S.J.

The Jesuits in the Philippines, 1581-1768

The history of the Jesuits in the Philippines — as missionaries, educators, and colonizers — is so entwined with that of the Islands that one cannot be discussed without the other. In this important study, both Jesuit and colonial archives have been employed to present a wide segment of the general history of the Spanish empire in the Philippines and the Far East. Halftones and maps. $12.50

ERNST CHRISTIAN HELMREICH

Religious Education in German Schools

An Historical Approach

This detailed account of religious instruction in elementary and secondary German school touches upon history, political science, and education, as well as religion, providing a more complete understanding of the German school system. It offers an ideal opportunity to make comparisons with the systems of other nations. $7.50

GERHART B. LADNER

The Idea of Reform

Its Impact on Christian Thought and Action in the Age of the Fathers

Reform, to the Church Fathers, was basically the idea of man's reformation toward his original image-likeness with God. The book describes the impact of this key idea on Christian thought and action through early Christian and medieval times. "A very remarkable piece of work . . . his command of a truly formidable array of modern scholarship inspires awe and admiration."—HERBERT BLOCH $10.00

LEONARD J. ARRINGTON

Great Basin Kingdom

An Economic History of the Latter-Day Saints, 1830-1900

The Mormon dream of building a true kingdom of God was a part of a great American dream. Their experiment in group economics, too, can be regarded as a more explicit formulation of the total American experience. Here is a comprehensive treatment of one of the few native American religious movements. $9.00

Order from your bookstore, or

HARVARD UNIVERSITY PRESS

Princeton

UNIVERSITY PRESS

The Protestant Mind of the English Reformation, 1570-1640

By CHARLES H. GEORGE and KATHERINE GEORGE

From 1570 to 1640 Protestantism became the leading moral and intellectual force in England. Drawing on the writings of these important years, the authors find that the real genius of the Protestant mind was not "Puritanism," but the via media, the reconciliation of religious and social tensions. "Puritanism," the authors show, "is a word, not a thing." ". . . a remarkable multi-factoral approach to English religious history. . . It is at once an exciting and judicious exploration of English Protestantism to the very eve of the Civil War. Its revaluations of both the Anglican via media and Puritanism make it an important book."—Horton Davies.

462 pages. $8.50

Worship and Theology in England, 1690-1850

Volume III - From Watts and Wesley to Maurice

By HORTON DAVIES

Worship even more than theology may be the key to a true understanding of the Church's history, for through it people express their interpretation of theology and religion. In this first-completed volume of the series, Professor Davies traces liturgy's relationship to music literature, and architecture; studies the effects of philosophical, social, and theological movements; and describes the techniques of such popular preachers as Whitefield and Wesley. There are chapters on Anglican, Congregational, Baptist, Presbyterian, Quaker, and Unitarian worship, forming a rich portrait of the varieties of Christian worship in England.

370 pages. Illustrated. $7.50

A History of Antioch in Syria

From Seleucus to the Arab Conquest

By GLANVILLE DOWNEY

One of the great cities of the classical world, virtually erased from the pages of history almost a thousand years ago, is brought to life here in the most complete account of Antioch available, and the first to incorporate the findings of the excavations of 1932-1939. Professor Downey, who participated in the excavations, presents a narrative of the rise and fall of the city that became the first major center of Christianity outside Jerusalem. A series of nineteen excurses, closely integrated with the text, affords a rich store of data on such subjects as travel books, maps, and information on the walls, gates, agoras, palaces, stadia, and churches of this extraordinary city.

788 pages. 21 Illustrations. $15.00

Order from your bookstore, or
PRINCETON UNIVERSITY PRESS
Princeton, New Jersey