

Congratulations to Milton B. Singer

recipient of the

Association for Asian Studies
Distinguished Scholarship Award 1984

"Your devotion to learning, tireless industry, and interdisciplinary wit have enhanced South Asian studies throughout the postwar period Your works depict the complex benefits and ills of Indian modernization, and they manage to convey the dignity of both the civilization that is their subject matter and the person who is their author. Asian studies as you pursue them truly advance the general understanding of human history and culture."

Artistic Form and Yoga in the Sacred Images of India

HEINRICH ZIMMER

Translated by GERALD CHAPPLE
and JAMES B. LAWSON, in collaboration with J. MICHAEL MC KNIGHT

"The book is as vital today as it was the year it was written, still unmatched for the eloquence of its recognition and celebration of this inspiration of Indian art."

— From the Foreword by
Joseph Campbell

Now in English, and richly illustrated,
Kunstform und Yoga im indischen Kultbild (1926) is a landmark in Indian studies. This pioneering work opened C. G. Jung's eyes to the psychological and spiritual significance of the Indian mandala, and it remains the clearest introduction to the essence of Indian art and yoga for both the specialist and general reader.

Zimmer (1890-1943) was the first to identify the radical difference between classical and Indian art. With a rare blend of interpretive skill and stylistic verve, he clarifies the hidden functional relationship between yantras, mandalas, and mantras, displaying an astonishing grasp of Indian religion, aesthetics, philosophy, and psychology.

UNITED STATES FOREIGN ECONOMIC POLICY AND JAPANESE TRADE RECOVERY, 1947-1955

William S. Borden. This provocative study of postwar American foreign policy focuses on the central issue of the decade following World War II: the recovery, reconstruction, and stabilization of the "trilateral" industrial bloc in a world-system disheartened by depression, ravaged by war, and ripe for revolution. The foreign policy choices made by the U.S. constitute the core of Borden's book and will very possibly revolutionize our understanding of the modern epoch.

Traditional Chinese Poetry and Poetics

OMEN OF THE WORLD

Stephen Owen. In a series of eight essays, Stephen Owen provides a theoretical framework for the reading of Chinese poetry that draws upon modern Western and traditional Chinese criticism, yet transcends both. The result is a new methodology, one that bridges the gap of centuries and civilizations and allows us to understand a poetic sensibility, purpose, and lyricism too long obscured.

Newspapers in Asia

Contemporary Trends and Problems

edited by John A. Lent

A systematic description of the news publishing services in 24 Asian countries ranging from Afghanistan to Japan. Twenty-one internationally known contributors, including the editor, present the most up-to date and exhaustive survey available on the region's news publishing services.

The individual chapters discuss the structure and function of magazines and newspapers within the region, covering such topics as historical development, control, ownership and pressures, performance, facilities, financing, readership and reporting.

Organized into four major parts, the book begins with an introduction to freedom of the press issues in Asia. Parts Two to Four describe the publishing world of the twenty-four Asian nations arranged for convenience by regions—eight in East Asia, nine in Southeast Asia, and six in South Asia. Each part begins with an introduction to press freedom in the region under study. The book concludes with an extremely comprehensive bibliography.

An American Adviser in Late Yi Korea
The Letters of Owen Nickerson Denny

Robert R. Swartout, Jr.

From 1886 to 1890 Denny served as adviser to King Kojong of Korea, holding the twin posts of director of Foreign Affairs and vice-president of the Korean Home Office.

This work contains Denny's correspondence, ranging from mundane issues of obtaining household supplies to the weightiest matters of the nation's finances. Also included are articles written by Denny, including his influential pamphlet China and Korea, augmented by 17 contemporary photographs.

This volume sheds valuable light upon late 19th-century international relations in East Asia.

Facing Two Ways

The Story of My Life

Baroness Shidzue Ishimoto. Introduction and Afterword by Barbara Molony. First published in 1935, this book tells the story of one of Japan's most remarkable modern women—the daughter of a samurai family who rejected wealth and class to devote herself to liberating Japanese women from the bonds of traditionalism and the demands of biology. The Afterword describes Ishimoto's life from 1935 to her present role, at 86, as President of the Japan Family Planning Federation. Illus. Cloth, $35.00; paper, $10.95

The Critique of Ultra-Leftism

in China, 1958–1981

William A. Joseph. This study analyzes three efforts to exorcise the influence of the ultra-Leftism that characterized much of the last two decades of the Maoist era—the retreat from the Great Leap Forward, the campaign against “Swindlers like Liu Shaoqi,” and the campaign against the Gang of Four. The author places this post-Mao assault on radicalism into historical and ideological perspective and considers the effect of these efforts on China's modern political system. $35.00

Hankow

Commerce and Society in a Chinese City, 1796–1889

William T. Rowe. This ambitious work challenges traditional assumptions about the “backwardness” of the Chinese city and its role in retarding China's modernization. The author portrays Hankow as the hub of an empire-wide marketing system spanning thousands of miles and involving scores of commodities, and as a focal point of the indigenous developments that led toward the industrial revolution of the 1890's and the political revolution of 1911. $39.50

NEW AND NOTEWORTHY FROM KODANSHA

THE HOUSE OF NIRE

By MORIO KITA

Translated by Dennis Keene

A brilliant, unconventional masterpiece—winner of Japan's Mainichi Prize—this is the first of Kita's bestselling novels to appear in English. Drawn with a truly unique blend of pathos and humor, the Nire family is chronicled from the turn of the century through World War II. This lively, unsentimental portrait of Japanese life, rich in period details, is as poignant as it is savagely funny.

"The first major biography"* of the powerful but enigmatic leader who changed the map of the Asian subcontinent

Mohammad Ali Jinnah was for Pakistan what his arch-rivals Gandhi and Nehru were for modern India—inspirational father and first head of state. Architect of the partition that split Pakistan away from India, Jinnah was a pivotal figure in the struggle for independence from British rule amid growing Hindu-Muslim antagonism. Wolpert vividly recounts how the tragic clash of personalities and party platforms pitted Jinnah against Gandhi and escalated from a personal rivalry into a conflict of national and international proportions.

A Complete Book Concerning HAPPINESS AND BENEVOLENCE

by Huang Liu-hung

translated & edited by Djang Chu

Huang Liu-hung, one of some 1,500 local magistrates in seventeenth-century China, authored this book as a manual for other magistrates and their advisers. Only small portions have ever appeared in translation since it was first published in China in 1699.

By illustrating his interpretation of proper official conduct through events drawn from his own career, Huang establishes a Confucian exemplar for bringing happiness and benevolence to the people. His book offers modern readers insight into everyday life and legal processes during the early Ch'ing period, as well as into the mentality of the ruling elite and its attitude toward the common people.

The Sulu Zone

1768–1898

The Dynamics of External Trade, Slavery, and Ethnicity in the Transformation of a Southeast Asian Maritime State

JAMES FRANCIS WARREN

This book examines the social forces generated within the Sulu Sultanate by the China trade, a trade which dominated so much of the economic life of Southeast Asia—namely, the advent of organized, long-distance slave raiding and the incorporation of foreign peoples on a large scale into Taosug society. The author reconstructs the social, economic, and political relationships of various groups in a multi-ethnic zone of which Sulu was the centre. The study demonstrates that it was the resilient structure of a segmentary state patterned on a mosaic principle of ethnic segmentation and economic interdependence, rather than the “classic” stratified Indonesian harbour principality, that was best able to withstand the test of the “forward movement” of the European powers in the nineteenth century.

“This is a truly admirable survey of a complex economic history, Warren’s avowed aim is to ‘take up Van Leur’s challenge and vision . . . to examine history from the other side’ . . . Warren has gone far on this arduous path” — Journal of Southeast Asian Studies

“This enterprising volume is strongly recommended for its original contributions. . . . The work is carefully researched and documented and the bibliography extensive” — American Historical Review

Against the State

Politics and Social Protest in Japan

David E. Apter and Nagayo Sawa

This scrutiny of modern protest politics focuses on the 20-year-long struggle surrounding the building of the New Tokyo (Narita) International Airport. Using field observation, in-depth interviewing, and first-hand experience drawn from living in the "fortresses" surrounding the airport, the authors examine the conflict and violence that ensued. $22.50

Hideyoshi

Mary Elizabeth Berry

"This book fills a large hole in the fabric of Western-language material on premodern Japan . . . Berry pulls together and analyzes an impressive amount of Japanese scholarship on Hideyoshi . . . analyzes in considerable detail Hideyoshi's major policies and also his personality; and offers insightful interpretations of Hideyoshi's political philosophy." —Pacific Affairs

Hanging Together

The Seven-Power Summits

Robert D. Putnam and
Nicholas Bayne

This vital study charts the modern dilemma between economic interdependence and national sovereignty. The authors analyze the successes and failures of the seven-power summits from Rambouillet in 1975 to the 1983 meeting at Williamsburg and anticipate the 1984 London summit.

NEW BOOKS

Japanese Culture

Third Edition

H. Paul Varley

A classic is returned to print in this significantly revised edition that traces the formation and evolution of Japan's arts and literature from prehistory to the present. Among the many subjects explored are the religions of Japan, the development of prose and poetry, the no theater, the tea ceremony, monochrome painting, landscape gardening, decorative arts and architecture, erotic prose literature, kabuki and puppet plays, and woodblock prints. Varley also relates Japan's culture to its social and political history in this well-illustrated discourse.

The Chinese Language

Fact and Fantasy

John DeFrancis

中國語文

A bold, fresh look at the Chinese language, this book paints a lucid picture of the Chinese writing system, of its relationship to speech, and of the problems associated with literacy in China. The author quickly debunks such common myths as the ideographic and universal nature of Chinese writing and the "indispensability" of Chinese characters. This one-of-a-kind book will inform, entertain, teach, and ultimately demystify the Chinese language for the modern reader.

Conflict in Japan

Ellis S. Krauss, Thomas P. Rohlen, and Patricia G.

Steinhoff, editors

Social and political conflict in postwar Japan is the topic of this volume, which draws together a series of field-based studies by North American and Japanese sociologists, anthropologists, and political scientists. By focusing attention on conflict—its sources and the ways it is expressed and managed—the book offers a fresh perspective on Japanese society and challenges earlier approaches to understanding Japanese society and politics. A compelling comparative application of social science theory to a non-Western setting, this book will appeal to scholars and students of Japan.
