

Part 2

Treatments

Now that we have covered the general principles of treatment for people with mental health problems, we will look at the three main types of treatment in detail: medications, counselling and social interventions. The interventions included are evidence based, feasible and best value for money in any setting.

