Kenzaburō Ōe

WINNER OF THE
1994 Nobel Prize in Literature

The 1994 Nobel Prize in Literature committee called The Silent Cry

“Ōe’s major mature work,” praising it for dealing “with people’s relationships... in a confusing world.”

“A major feat of the imagination.”

—The London Times

“A formidable scholar and intellectual whose novels express the moral soul-searching of postwar Japan.”

—The Boston Globe

“Ōe, in the range of hope and despair he covers, seems to me to have in him a touch of Dostoevsky.”

—Henry Miller

The Virtue of Yin

Essays on Chinese Women

Lily Lee

These essays attempt to analyze the varying social and family structures that allowed a handful of Chinese women to assert themselves, develop their intelligence, and win acclaim for their achievements.

Distributed for Wild Peony $13.95, paper

The Chinese Femme Fatale

Stories from the Ming Period

Anne McLaren

Fears of unbridled female sexuality and female dominance have long played a part in Chinese popular thinking. These stories reflect a particular strain of misogynistic thinking: that women who pursue their own sexual desires have a catastrophic effect on family and society.

The Clan Records

Five Stories of Korea

Kajiyama Toshiyuki

Translated by Yoshiko Dykstra

Kajiyama Toshiyuki (1930-1975) enjoyed great success as a best-selling novelist in Japan. These English translations of five of his Korean tales deal with Korea under Japan's harsh military rule. The title story—"Richō zan'ei"—won the prestigious Naoki prize and was the basis of a highly acclaimed movie made in Korea in 1967.

The Iliad, the Rāmāyaṇa, and the Work of Religion

Failed Persuasion and Religious Mystification

GREGORY D. ALLES

"The aim of this book is to expose and analyze the means by which two classic narratives from two radically different cultures, Valmiki's Rāmāyaṇa, of ancient India and Homer's Iliad of classical Greece, 'mystify' the social, cultural, and ultimately existential dangers of 'failed persuasion.' . . . This book unquestionably makes a significant contribution not only to the history of religions but also to religion and literature and comparative literature as well." —Eric Ziolkowski, Lafayette College

The Raja's Magic Clothes

Re-Visioning Kingship and Divinity in England's India

JOANNE PUNZO WAGHORNE

A major study of England's role in Indian ritual and its influence on Victorian life and culture. Waghorne explores the refashioning of the rituals of kingship in Pudukkottai during the crucial period from 1858 to 1947 in the context of a profound but undeclared reciprocity that occurred between British overlord and Indian prince, between British bureaucrat and Hindu pandit, and between British scholar and British civil servant in creating the grand ceremonial system of the Raj, and with it the multifarious world of ornamental things that permeated Victorian life.

FAWZIA AFZAL-KHAN

"Fawzia Afzal-Khan's excellent book could stand as a reply to those hostile critics who today attack 'multiculturalism' for reductively politicizing literature. In her trenchant discussion, Afzal-Khan shows just how complex the politics of 'liberation' can be for colonial and postcolonial novelists."

Business and Government in Industrialising Asia

EDITED BY
ANDREW MACINTYRE

Focusing on the core of national economic development—the relationship between business and government—this book compares the experiences of two economies of Northeast Asia, South Korea and Taiwan, with those of four Southeast Asian economies: Thailand, Malaysia, Indonesia, and the Philippines. $39.95 cloth, $15.95 paper

Edo and Paris

Urban Life and the State in the Early Modern Era

EDITED BY
JAMES L. McCLAIN,
JOHN M. MERRIMAN,
AND UGAWA KAORU

"Edo and Paris presents a collection of comparative views that will be of value not only for students of Japan and France, but also for those interested in comparative urban history. The chapters are highly readable and the book provides a broad view of the histories of Edo and Paris."—William B. Hauser, University of Rochester. $42.50

Local Knowledge and Agricultural Decision Making in the Philippines

Class, Gender, and Resistance

VIRGINIA D. NAZAREA-SANDOVAL

Winners and Losers

How Sectors Shape the Developmental Prospects of States

D. MICHAEL SHAFER

In a book that reframes our thinking about success and failure in economic development, Shafer focuses on the ways in which the dominant export sector ties a country to the international economy. He includes in-depth analyses of Korea, Zambia, Sri Lanka, and Costa Rica. CORNELL STUDIES IN POLITICAL ECONOMY. $37.50 cloth, $14.95 paper

On the Subject of "Java"

JOHN PEMBERTON

What are the limits of cultural critique? What are the political implications? Pemberton explores these questions in this ethnographic and historical interpretation of cultural discourse in Indonesia since 1965. "Stunning in its style, chilling in its message, [this book] captures the silent violence of Indonesia's modern state in ways that resonate throughout the contemporary world."—Ann Stoler, University of Michigan $42.95 cloth, $17.95 paper

Breaking the Silence

Redress and Japanese American Ethnicity

YASUKO I. TAKEZAWA

Takezawa focuses on the impact of two critical incidents in Japanese American history—the wartime evacuation and internment of more than a hundred thousand individuals and the redress campaign that resulted in an official apology and reparation payments from the U.S. government. THE ANTHROPOLOGY OF CONTEMPORARY ISSUES. $37.50 cloth, $14.95 paper

Trade and Development Report 1994

The focus of the report is the functioning and interaction of all the different constituent parts of the world economy and of related dimensions of national and international policy. Special attention is given to issues of concern to developing countries. The coverage includes the movements of macroeconomic aggregates in developed and developing countries and in the economies of transition, international trade and trade policies and financial and commodity markets. A chapter touches on a discussion of the "economic miracle" taking place in the larger economies of Japan, the Republic of Korea and Taiwan province of China. Another important chapter reviews the key agreements achieved in the Uruguay Round on safeguards, subsidies and countervailing measures, anti-dumping, agriculture, textiles and clothing.

The State and Cultural Transformation Perspectives from East Asia

Edited by Hirano Ken'ichiro

The subject of this study is the process and effects of modernization in China, Japan, the Republic of Korea, and the Democratic People's Republic of Korea. In particular the emphasis is on the transformation of cultures as a part and result of efforts to modernize and on the part played by the state. The cultural transformations that are described range from everyday customs and habits to the arts, from the level of the individual to large-scale social and economic planning. The book is also of special interest in bringing together scholars from both North and South Korea for the first time since 1950.

People's China

A Brief History

Second Edition

CRAIG DIETRICH, University of Southern Maine

Now substantially revised and updated, this balanced and lively history of the People's Republic of China offers a narrative and interpretive appraisal of this great nation since its post-World War II beginnings. Examining first the historical circumstances of the Chinese revolution and the cast of characters who seized power in 1949 after decades of national disintegration and defeat, the author then goes on to illuminate such epic events as the Great Leap Forward, the Cultural Revolution, and the post-Mao reforms. Addressing the bold economic reform of the 1980s, this new edition critically analyzes the cry for democracy which tragically led to the 1989 bloodshed in Tiananmen Square, taking full account of the confrontation's aftermath.

Productive Aging and the Role of Older People in Japan: New Approaches for the United States

by Scott A. Bass

Japan is recognized for making concerted public policy efforts to address concerns of its rapidly aging population and much has been written about their health initiatives. However, information in English on the opportunities for active elderly is scarce. Bass explores productive aging in Japan, focusing on programs through which the skills of older people are harnessed and on ways in which positive thinking can influence the development of long-lived societies. The monograph is based in part on remarks presented at a May, 1994 conference but is supplemented by the author's expertise and research he conducted while in Japan on a Fulbright Scholarship. (appr. 60 pp.)

Japan's Changing World Role:
Emerging Leader or Perpetual
Follower? by Brian Woodall

Outlines four long-term scenarios for Japan's increasingly proactive role in world issues. Synopses of Japanese activity on ODA, foreign direct investment, participation in multinational organizations and security affairs, serve to assess each scenario. (54 pp.)

Trading Dangers: Japanese
Security in the Post-Cold-War
World by Frank J. Schwartz

Looks at Japan's current security interests through historical background, current domestic issues, and reports on Asian neighbors and the American alliance. Options for Japan's role in multi-lateral and non-military security efforts, peacekeeping operations, and arms control are explored. (37 pp.)

Japan's Universal and Affordable Health Care:

Women Under the Bo Tree

Buddhist Nuns in Sri Lanka

Tessa Bartholomeusz

Tessa Bartholomeusz explores the relationship between female world-renunciation in Buddhist Sri Lanka and attitudes about women and the religious vocation. She gives a history of Buddhist female renunciators in Sri Lanka and recounts her own field experiences of contemporary Buddhist women who have chosen to live celibate and cloistered lives.

China, Modernisation and the Goal of Prosperity

Government Administration and Economic Policy in the late 1980s

Kate Hannan, Editor

Introduction by Ma Hong

Based on information collected by a team of academics and economists at the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences in Beijing, this book presents a Chinese perspective on the first decade of economic reform to Western readers. With its impressive breadth, level of detail, as well as coverage of all aspects of the economy, this book is destined to become an important reference work.

Divination, Mythology and Monarchy in Han China

Michael Loewe

The four centuries of the Han dynasties from 206 BC to AD 220 witnessed major developments in the ideas of sovereignty. Michael Loewe traces these changes along with some of their religious aspects, including the techniques by emperors and others to forecast the future or to divine about the present.

Death in Banaras

Jonathan P. Parry

Foreword by Anthony T. Carter

As a place to die, to dispose of the physical remains of the deceased and to perform the rites that ensure that the departed attains a "good state" after death, the north Indian city of Banaras attracts pilgrims and mourners from all over the Hindu world. This book is primarily about the priests and other kinds of "sacred specialists" who serve them, about the way in which they organize their business, and about their representations of death and understandings of the rituals over which they preside.

Within the Human Realm

The Poetry of Huang Zunxian, 1848–1905

J. D. Schmidt

This book is a study of the poetry of Huang Zunxian, one of the most famous authors of late nineteenth-century China. The first part consists of a detailed biography outlining Huang's literary and political career. This is followed by a critical discussion of Huang's poetry, including such topics as his theory of literature, his traditional verse, his highly original poetry on foreign lands, his political satire, and his scientific verse. The book concludes with a generous sampling of his poetry in translation, some of which has never before been published in English.
