1962-63 CONGRESSIONAL FELLOWSHIPS

The deadline for submitting applications for the 1962-63 Congressional Fellowship Program is December 1, 1961. Applicants must be between the ages of 23 and 35.

Qualifications:

- For Political Scientists —Completion or near completion of Ph.D. in political science. Preference will be given to persons who are teaching or who intend to teach.
- For Journalists —Bachelor's degree and at least one year of professional experience in newspaper, magazine, radio or television work. Graduate students who intend to enter journalism also will be considered.
- For Law School Faculty Members—LL.B. degree and at least one year's teaching experience in an accredited law school.

Further information and application blanks may be obtained from:

The American Political Science Association
1726 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W.
Washington 6, D.C.

APSA GROUP TERM INSURANCE

On November 1, 1961, the program of Group Term Insurance sponsored by the Association will begin its second year. During the first year, more than 600 members of the Association joined the Program for a total of well over five million dollars worth of insurance in force.

In view of the unusually good actuarial experience of the Association, the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company has agreed to modify the medical provisions for members of the Association who failed to take out the insurance at the inception of the Program. Members can now apply by merely filling out a short yes-or-no questionnaire supplied by the Company. New members, of course, can still join the program by merely filling out an application blank.

For additional information, members should write directly to the Association, 1726 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W., Washington 6, D.C.

Politics in Perspective

The past year in review—

AMERICAN GOVERNMENT ANNUAL: 1961-1962

Edited by IVAN HINDERAKER, Univ. of California at Los Angeles

The most recent of a remarkable series, covering: (1) Political Ideas and Attitudes in the Current Decade, by Mulford Sibley; (2) The Supreme Court and Civil Rights, by William Beaney; (3) The 1960 Presidential Election, by Stanley Kelley; (4) From the 86th to the 87th Congress, by Ivan Hinderaker; (5) American Foreign Policy, by James Coleman (1961, 128 pp., $1.75, paper)

The past 184 years in documents—

AMERICAN FOREIGN POLICY: A DOCUMENTARY SURVEY, 1776-1960

By DOROTHY BURNE GOEBEL, Hunter College

An unusual collection of pertinent documents of all kinds—most of which are not easily found in the college library—grouped according to period, with outstanding trends treated in detail. The author has chosen her material to reflect divergent viewpoints.

(1961, 479 pp., $5.50)

The past 25 centuries in thought and idea—

A HISTORY OF POLITICAL THEORY, 3rd Ed.

By the late GEORGE H. SABINE

A classic work in political theory, brought up to date. Previous editions have been called “a unique accomplishment . . .” and “the best history of political thought . . .” Beginning with pre-Platonic political ideas, the book follows history under these major headings: Theory of the City-State, Theory of the Universal Community, and Theory of the National State.

(1961, 960 pp., $7.50)

WHO GOVERNS?

Democracy and Power in an American City

Robert A. Dahl

"Magnificently conceived and beautifully executed, it combines rigorous analysis with a relaxed style, presenting a rich body of data succinctly and persuasively. . . . 'They' are going to have to rewrite the texts on municipal government."—Wallace Sayre.

This investigation into the political structure of a typical American city offers a major reinterpretation of the location of political power in our democratic society. Starting with the incorporation of New Haven, Connecticut, in 1784, the author analyzes the changing patterns of leadership. He describes the present-day distribution of political influence, particularly in political nominations, public education, and urban redevelopment (for which New Haven has attracted national attention). He examines the distribution of political resources and shows how these are, or are not, used to influence political decisions. From evidence supplied by his study of New Haven, Mr. Dahl formulates tentative theories which yield important insights into political behavior throughout the United States. Robert A. Dahl is Chairman of the Department of Political Science, Yale University. Yale Studies in Political Science, 4. NOVEMBER 1 $7.50

DIXON-YATES

A Study in Power Politics

Aaron Wildavsky

One of the most widely debated political controversies in recent years, the Dixon-Yates case offers a panoramic view of American politics under the Eisenhower Administration. From the extensive documentation on this case and from a hundred personal interviews, Mr. Wildavsky skillfully reconstructs the extraordinary sequence of events involving crucial issues of public policy: public versus private power and conflict of interest. Many fundamental issues relating to the functioning of the American political system are also involved: the executive decision-making process; coalition politics in a system of fragmented powers; the right of executive privilege to withhold information from Congress; and the role of the regulatory agencies. Aaron Wildavsky is assistant professor of government at Oberlin College. Yale Studies in Political Science, 3.

The United Nations

CONSTITUTIONAL DEVELOPMENTS, GROWTH AND POSSIBILITIES

By Benjamin V. Cohen. Both the American Constitution and the United Nations Charter, says Mr. Cohen, "... created an organism capable of life and growth ... depending not simply on the written injunctions of the founding fathers but on the vision and wisdom of succeeding generations." Written with remarkable acumen and firm style, these Oliver Wendell Holmes lectures (1961) describe first the setting in broad perspective, deal secondly with major problems, and finally explore the future with restraint and wisdom. $2.75

American Perspectives

THE NATIONAL SELF-IMAGE IN THE TWENTIETH CENTURY

Edited by Robert E. Spiller and Eric Larrabee. What do Americans think of themselves? How have their ideas changed? The editors present a conversation among experts that ranges skillfully over the emotional and intellectual trends, and the ideological and technical changes reflected in the multiple facets of our national culture from 1900 to 1950. Out of these discussions arises a dynamic image of an America seeking a stable national image at the same time its imagination has traveled far beyond national boundaries. $4.75

Dilemmas of Progress in Tsarist Russia

LEGAL MARXISM AND LEGAL POPULISM

By Arthur P. Mendel. Several themes of distinct importance today are treated here for the first time. The author analyzes Legal Populism and re-evaluates it on the basis of recent experience in underdeveloped economies. He then investigates the factors that turned intellectuals from populism to Marxism in the 1890's, and relates this process to the concurrent industrialization of Russia. His final theme is the transition from Marxism to "idealism" on the part of another important but neglected group, the Legal Marxists. RUSSIAN RESEARCH CENTER STUDIES. $7.00

Legacy of Suppression

FREEDOM OF SPEECH AND PRESS IN EARLY AMERICAN HISTORY

By Leonard W. Levy. "Mr. Levy's lively volume tells the story of the evolution of the concept of freedom of speech and of the press with a wonderful combination of judiciousness and vigor. In the course of the survey we are introduced to the rich body of literature of seventeenth-century and eighteenth-century England, to the history of the idea and the judicial application of notions of freedom in the American colonies, and to the elusive history of the writing of the First Amendment and of its subsequent application and interpretation ... one of the indispensable contributions to the history of American freedom."—Henry Steele Commager, New York Times Book Review. A BELKNAP PRESS BOOK. $6.50

The Economics of Defence in the Nuclear Age

By Charles J. Hitch and Roland N. McKean. "... A pioneering effort which brings the most up-to-date apparatus of economic analysis to bear upon problems of defense, a task that has hitherto been attempted only in scattered periodical articles devoted to special problems and never in the form of a balanced, systematic synthesis. It deserves attention not only because of the vital character of the topic and its substantive content, but also as a case study that illustrates the power of game theory, organization theory, linear programming, and systems or operations analysis in an applied field of paramount importance."—Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science.

"... Many keen insights and fine details as well as a masterful treatment of the larger issues. It raises the right questions and suggests answers to the problems of military security which are likely on inspection to provide the basis for future improvements in policy."—American Political Science Review. ## PUBLIC FINANCE

Earl R. Rolph and George F. Break
—both University of California, Berkeley

Designed for courses in public finance, this new textbook sets forth the many theoretical and technical issues involved at all levels of government. It demonstrates how economic intelligence can be applied to illuminate the problems of public finance. Book provides a descriptive-historical analysis of government finance and its role in the economy; presents in detail the various tax sources available to the government. American fiscal experience predominates, but that of other countries is incorporated wherever applicable. Book examines current social security programs, the problems arising from the growth of metropolitan regions, fiscal theory and fiscal policy, etc. 1961. 586 pp. $7.50

Public Administration

John M. Pffnner, University of Southern California; and Robert V. Presthus, Cornell University

Standard textbook provides a comprehensive account of public administration today. It integrates the descriptive-institutional material of administrative science and the behavioral analyses of administration in action. Book analyzes the nature of public bureaucracy and the political environment with its attendant pressures on the public administrator; incorporates material on decision-making and data-processing in fact-finding and planning; reflects recent research in group behavior, individual motivation, leadership dynamics, etc. "The authors deserve high praise for making a good book better."—Ernest G. Miller, University of California. 4th Edition, 1960. 570 pp. $7.50

American Foreign Relations

Permanent Problems and Changing Policies

John Gange, University of Oregon

A stimulating introduction to the basic problems in our foreign relations. Book stresses the constant recurrence of these problems throughout our history, and the varying responses to them by American statesmen. It is organized around such fundamental areas as recognition, alliances, international organizations, economic aid, national security, and the promotion of national prestige. Each problem is analyzed in detail, and the various solutions are illustrated with official documents. "Clear, logical, and interesting."—James A. Gathings, Bucknell University. 1959. 593 pp. $7

Government and Politics in Latin America

Edited by Harold Eugene Davis, The American University
Prepared by 11 Contributing Authorities

A comparative survey of the political institutions of Latin America—their structure, operation, strengths, and weaknesses. Book presents the rapidly changing, frequently violent, political and social life of Latin America in which emergent political forces are taking shape in movements of reform and new power structures. The institutions of government are analyzed in relation to power structures and in terms of their functions against a background of half a century of Latin American experience. The book concludes with an evaluation of democratic trends and prospects. "A stimulating piece of scholarship."—Bernard E. Bobb, State University of Washington. 1958. 539 pp. $7.50

Communism in Czechoslovakia, 1948-1960

By Edward Taborsky

Czechoslovakia, once considered Central Europe's model democracy, has been a Soviet satellite since 1948. The Communists boast that "socialism" has defeated capitalism politically and has surpassed it in production, in living standards, and in social justice. How realistic is this picture of conditions in a country once oriented to the West? This question is the focus of Professor Taborsky's book. In attempting to answer it, the author reviews the history of the Communist Party's rise to power and then examines in detail the economic, social, political, and cultural programs of their twelve-year regime, comparing stated plans with actual results through 1960. His final assessment of the Party's successes and failures measures both effort and result against the human cost. 592 pages. Tables. $12.50

Anglo-American Relations at the Paris Peace Conference of 1919

By Seth P. Tillman

The year 1919 marks a high point in the world power and prestige of Western democracy. World War I was ended, and the victory belonged to the democratic states. Theirs was the sober task—and the unique opportunity—of formulating a settlement that would guarantee impartial justice and preserve the peace. Dr. Tillman examines here the documentary account of Anglo-American diplomatic relations during this critical period. He shows the interaction of personalities in both governments, the patterns of cooperation and conflict as they negotiated major issues of war and of peace, and the political repercussions in both England and America that led either to compromise or to defeat of some of the best purposes of the Versailles Treaty. 448 pages. $8.50

The Political Context of Sociology

By Leon D. Bramson

Mr. Bramson examines several branches of sociology, pointing out various political ideas to which sociologists have been committed, and indicates how these ideas have influenced sociological research of the 19th and 20th centuries. Exploring recent and classical writings in sociology of the mass, he digs beneath the accepted assumptions. This book will antagonize some sociologists, but it contributes to that discipline by looking at sociology from the viewpoint of the intellectual historian. 176 pages. $4.00

ISSUES OF THE SIXTIES

by Leonard Freedman, University Extension, University of California, Los Angeles, and Cornelius P. Cotter, Assistant Staff Director, U. S. Commission on Civil Rights. The impact of change—scientific, technological, social and political—upon our ideas, our aspirations, and our institutions is the central focus of this provocative new textbook. Pointing out the crucial issues of the sixties, these contemporary selections cover the impact of automation, space exploration, new thermonuclear deterrence doctrines, and the new nations. Paperbound. 416 pages. 1961. Text price $3.95.

AFRICA: CONTINENT OF CHANGE

by Peter R. Gould, Assistant Professor of Geography, Syracuse University. Here is a vital new book describing the complex forces at work south of the Sahara in Africa. The predominant theme is change—political, economic, and social. This comprehensive collection brings together the best of recent writings and speeches from world statesmen, African political leaders, sociologists, economists, and political scientists. First-hand descriptions of decisions facing African leaders are presented in case-study form, enabling the reader to recognize and analyze the problems of today's Africa. Paperbound. 1961. Text price $3.95.

REASON AND FAITH IN MODERN SOCIETY

Liberalism, Marxism, and Democracy

by Eduard Heimann

A deeply probing search, by a distinguished political scientist, into the place of democracy and communism in the evolution of social-political thought. Dr. Heimann first shows how the two opposing forces are equal (and equally distorted) outgrowths of the rational idealism of the eighteenth-century Enlightenment.

He then shows why these two systems, each in its way a perversion of a humanitarian ideal, cannot exist indefinitely without head-on, world-destroying conflicts.

The climactic subject of this exceptional study is a rigorously defined third course which—firmly based in the world's cultural-religious heritage and already taking form in certain nations—must be sought as the way out. Indexed, 352 pages. $6.50. At your bookstore now.

THE UNITED STATES IN THE SUPREME WAR COUNCIL:

American War Aims and Inter-Allied Strategy, 1917-1918

by David F. Trask

This long-needed study of the Supreme War Council shows how and why American participation was largely confined to military matters, and makes clear the determination with which President Wilson avoided commitments that might compromise his declared peace policies.

In so doing, it throws fresh light on the utilization of American manpower, the intervention in Russia, the pre-armistice negotiations, and many other aspects of the war.

Mr. Trask's work is soundly based on primary materials; its annotated bibliography is particularly valuable. Well organized and clearly written, it documents a view not generally held of Wilson's dominance in the formulation of inter-Allied policy. *Annotated bibliography, notes, index. $6.00. ## AN UNCERTAIN TRADITION

American Secretaries of State in the Twentieth Century

By NORMAN A. GRAEBNER, University of Illinois. McGraw-Hill American History Series. 341 pages, $6.95.

Fourteen noted scholars have contributed to this analytical study of American leadership in the area of foreign affairs in the twentieth century. Each Secretary of State is examined by a separate scholar within a unified framework . . . developing an overall concept of Twentieth Century American foreign policy while providing individual treatments of each Secretary.

GOVERNING URBAN AMERICA, Second Edition

By CHARLES R. ADRIAN, Michigan State University. McGraw-Hill Series in Political Science. 508 pages, $7.50.

In this revision, Adrian has taken advantage of recent research in local government to completely up-date his text. The analytical approach, used somewhat cautiously in the first edition, has been expanded and greater emphasis is placed on the role of competing interests in the municipal policy making process.

THE GENIUS OF AMERICA: Men and Ideas that Shaped the American Mind

By SAUL K. PADOVER, New School of Social Research, New York. 369 pages, $3.95 (Text Edition).

The rich, steady current of American thought running through the generations from Washington to Roosevelt is examined here in the study of nineteen of America's greatest thinkers. The powerful ideas and philosophies are seen in terms of the American civilization, the American mind, and the American destiny.

EUROPEAN COMPARATIVE GOVERNMENT, Third Edition

By ROBERT G. NEUMANN, University of California, Los Angeles. McGraw-Hill Series in Political Science. 897 pages, $8.50.

A completely updated revision of a leading text in comparative government. As before, it deals with the institutions of government, the political parties, and the internal politics of Great Britain, France, Germany, and the Soviet Union, and has a fifth comparative section which touches upon pertinent institutions and political developments in many other parts of the world. The section on the Soviet Union reflects the latest developments through the 21st Congress of the Communist Party.

THE SOVIET DICTATORSHIP

By HERBERT McCLOSKEY, University of California, Berkeley, and JOHN E. TURNER, University of Minnesota. McGraw-Hill Series in Political Science. 657 pages, $7.95 (Text Edition).

A well-written, comprehensive, and scholarly treatment of the theory and practice of Soviet power and politics as they are today. The authors exhibit insight into the institutions of the Soviet Union, showing the high degree of centralization, the effect of party dictation to all governmental bodies, and the thesis of the operation and effects of a dictatorship. The post-Stalin era is thoroughly discussed, taking account of the Khrushchev regime and the decisions of the Twenty-first Party Congress.

The Emergence of America as a Great Power

IMPERIAL DEMOCRACY

BY ERNEST R. MAY

Associate Professor of History, Harvard University; author of THE WORLD WAR AND AMERICAN ISOLATIONISM, 1914-1917, and editor of THE ULTIMATE DECISION: THE PRESIDENT AS COMMANDER IN CHIEF.

The United States, in the 1890's, emerged suddenly as a world power, challenging the complacent authority of European nations. In a few brief years America successfully challenged Great Britain in Venezuela, defeated Spain in war, and annexed Puerto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, Guam, Wake and Midway. How did it happen? What caused Americans to begin thinking of themselves as citizens of a great power, and when they did, what were the results? What was Europe's response to the actions of the upstart nation? This skillful, thorough study of America's dramatic rise to power at the close of the nineteenth century has great relevance for events in Cuba and elsewhere today. Extensive notes.

FIVE GOOD REASONS TO CHECK MACMILLAN'S SPRING LIST . . . .

1—A BILL BECOMES A LAW: THE CIVIL RIGHTS ACT OF 1960

Daniel M. Berman, Associate Professor, School of Government and Public Administration, The American University

This book is the first to describe the Congressional legislative process through the examination of a single bill. The Civil Rights Act of 1960 illustrates virtually every procedure designed to pass—or defeat—legislation, including such rare items as a discharge petition, a filibuster, and an attempt at cloture. Each chapter in the bill's legislative history is analyzed in chronological order, with attention devoted to the substantive issues involved, as well as to the procedures employed.

March, 1962

2—DEMOCRACY IN ACTION

Theodore Powell, Public Information Consultant, Connecticut State Department of Education, and Staff Member, University Evening College, University of Hartford

Designed for freshman and sophomore courses, this text offers a collection of provocative readings that explore significant problems in American government. Material ranges from the works of Thomas Jefferson and John Adams to excerpts from President Kennedy's Profiles in Courage. Emphasizing the fact that democracy operates through the interaction of people, the author provides many illuminating portraits of eminent American statesmen and the crucial issues in which they were involved. In some instances, the same event is reported from differing viewpoints, in order to give students the most comprehensive picture of the problem.

March, 1962

3—THE RELATIONS OF NATIONS, Second Edition Frederick H. Hartmann, Professor of Political Science, University of Florida

The new edition of this comprehensive text has been brought up to date, with some sections rewritten for greater clarity. A new chapter, replacing a previous one, offers fresh material on Africa and newly-developed areas, as well as an expanded treatment of the Middle East. There are twice as many maps, showing important areas and the changes which have occurred there, along with informative tables and diagrams.

March, 1962

4—READINGS IN INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS, Second Edition

Frederick H. Hartmann

March, 1962

5—THE DYNAMICS OF INTERNATIONAL POLITICS Norman J. Padelford, Professor of Political Science, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; and George A. Lincoln, Professor and Head of Department of Social Sciences, United States Military Academy

Although addressed to the present world scene, with its rapidly changing political developments, this comprehensive new text provides a method of systematic analysis pertinent to the world order of any particular time in history. The authors thoroughly explore the importance of concepts and approaches to the study of international politics, with an eye to its complex, dynamic character. Problems the free nations face in the decade of the 1960's receive special attention—population explosion, the revolutionary impact of technology on weapons and communications, problems of economic assistance, and the changing nature of the security problem. Valuable features include numerous tables, maps, graphs, and suggested additional reading references.

THE UNITED NATIONS and U.S. Foreign Policy

by Lincoln P. Bloomfield,

Massachusetts Institute of Technology

A fresh analysis of the U.N. from the standpoint of American foreign policy. The author comes to grips explicitly with the meaning of national interest (long and short term goals and strategies) and measures the U.N. against these requirements. The record and prospects of the U.N. are examined as they bear on each aspect of American world objectives—political, military, economic and social. Scholarly but lucid the material constitutes important reading for all those interested in American foreign policy, the U.N., world organizations and International Relations. # APSA CHARTER FLIGHTS TO EUROPE

Summer, 1962

The Association is pleased to announce that during the summer of 1962, it will again be sponsoring charter flights to Europe.

In view of the experience this year, the Association plans to sponsor two flights again—one for the entire summer (approximately mid-June to early September), and one for the month of August. It now appears likely that the planes will be either jets or turbo-props and the per person cost will be under $300.00 for the round-trip flight.

While final announcements will be out by early October, those wishing to tentatively reserve space on either flight may do so by sending $100.00 (per seat) deposits to the Association. If this is done, please designate whether space is desired on the "long" or "short" flight.

Intervention and the War

Volume I of "Anglo-Soviet Relations, 1917-1921"

By Richard H. Ullman

This first volume carefully delineates how British policy was actually made during the first twelve months of troubled Anglo-Soviet relations, the tragic misunderstandings and desperate hopes of the British in the year before the Armistice, how the British government received, interpreted, and related its information to the general strategy of the war and to relations with Allied and Associated Powers. As diplomacy failed, British forces found themselves fighting not only in North Russia but in the Caucasus and on the frontiers of India.—The second volume, to be published later, will cover the story to 1921.

Mussolini's Enemies: The Italian Anti-Fascist Resistance

By Charles F. Delzell

The story of the long underground struggle against Benito Mussolini's Fascist dictatorship is revealed in this book. Anti-Fascism in Italy was never the monopoly of a single class or party; most of the militant leadership came from the ranks of the proscribed leftist political parties, outlawed labor organizations, stifled journalists, harried professional men, and dismissed academicians. Mr. Delzell traces their activities from the parliamentary crisis of June, 1924 through the coup of July, 1943 that replaced Mussolini with a royal dictatorship, to the reconstruction of Italy in 1946.

Deterrence and Defense

By Glenn H. Snyder

In the literature of diplomacy and military strategy, there has long been a gulf between the concepts of deterrence and defense. Glenn Snyder bridges this gulf, offering a systematic analysis of the two ideas, with the aim of integrating them in a framework of theory. He proposes criteria for making rational decisions in national security policy and deals with the critical issue of the balance between deterrence of, and defense against, military attacks. The author augments the scattered literature on the subject with original contributions on this increasingly important facet of international relations.

Mongkut, the King of Siam

By ABBOT LOW MOFFAT, U. S. Department of State

THIS is an engaging portrait of one of the great Asian rulers of the nineteenth century, who set the course that preserved his country's independence and enabled it to remain the only country in Southeast Asia never to fall under European domination. It is not a conventional biography of King Mongkut nor a history of his reign; rather, the author sketches the man in his many facets, furnishing a factual outline but applying the color from Mongkut's own writings, and from other contemporary sources. Many of these appear in English for the first time.

Iceland, Reluctant Ally

By DONALD E. NUECHTERLEIN, U. S. Information Service

THIS valuable book probes into the circumstances surrounding each important decision made by Iceland after 1940 affecting the security of the country and determines the basic factors which have caused the ups and downs in United States-Icelandic defense relations.

The author, who served as press officer in the United States Embassy in Reykjavik made extensive use of public documents and of personal discussions with political leaders in Iceland and with observers of the Icelandic political scene.

■ Decentralization of Authority in a Bureaucracy

■ The Choice of Wage Comparisons

In the Social Sciences, these two dissertations are the winners in the Ford Foundation's second annual Doctoral Dissertation Competition in Business Administration and Related Disciplines.

DR. BERNARD H. BAUM's Decentralization of Authority in a Bureaucracy examines human behavior under a program of decentralization of authority in the Federal Civil Service. Through observation, analysis of records, and interviews, actual behavior is compared with norms as prescribed in official statements. Dr. Baum's thesis was in conjunction with his study in the Department of Sociology at the University of Chicago.

DR. MARTIN PATCHEN's The Choice of Wage Comparisons is a study of the types of comparisons workers make in deciding whether they are satisfied with wages. Using interviews with a sample of oil refinery employees, he relates workers' characteristics to their tendency to make wage comparisons favorable or unfavorable to themselves. Dr. Patchen's winning thesis was part of his study in the Department of Social Psychology at The University of Michigan.

These winners, and those in related areas, underscore the Ford Foundation's conviction that many disciplines, including fields in the Social Sciences, can make important contributions to rigorous business research. The competition is intended to provide widespread recognition for distinguished doctoral research in business administration and the disciplines underlying this profession.

Other winners of the 1959-60 award:

Marketing in an Underdeveloped Economy: The North Indian Sugar Industry

Leon V. Hirsch, Graduate School of Business Administration, Harvard University.

A Heuristic Program for Assembly Line Balancing

Fred M. Tonge, Graduate School of Industrial Administration, Carnegie Institute of Technology.

The Distribution of Automobiles, An Economic Analysis of the Franchise System

Bedros Peter Pashigian, Department of Economics, Massachusetts Institute of Technology.
