Reprints of Capital Works

ATKINSON, Geoffroy. The Extraordinary voyage in French literature before 1700, (together with) The Extraordinary voyage in French literature from 1700 to 1720. In all, two volumes, (N. Y., 1920; Paris, 1922) N. Y., 1964. Per vol. $9.50

Standard works. Few libraries possess both. "Studies carefully made," Ira Wade (1951). "Atkinson places these stories . . . apart from the pastoral, adventurous, or burlesque novel." "Interest in newly discovered lands and growth of rationalism . . . grounds for . . . their popularity." (Cabeen, Bib. of French Lit. II 2895; III 1019.)

BENNETT, Richard and John Elton. History of Corn Milling. 4 vols., (1898-1904) N. Y., Burt Franklin, 1964. $47.50

Hall, Bib. of . . . economic history, 2285, 2942. A most valuable set on early agrarian economy, especially from a production standpoint, and the most valuable on mills. The first work cited on medieval industries by Paetow (p. 285) and presumably therefore the most important. Gross (1205) "valuable."

DELISLE, Leopold. Le cabinet des manuscrits de la Bibliothèque Imperiale. 4°, 3 vols. & atlas, (1868-1881), N. Y., Burt Franklin, 1964. $115.

"A mine of information on the activities of innumerable . . . scholars & an indispensable work of reference. Excellent indices. Work of colossal and impeccable erudition." Valuable also "for histories of libraries and collections absorbed into the National Library." (Cabeen, Bib. of French Lit. III, #9, 3197.) Atlas of 14 pp. + 51 plates. ¶ "Delisle's greatest work . . . The standard work on medieval mss. and a history of palaeography" (E. P. Goldschmidt)
