Biblical Faith and Natural Theology

The Gifford Lectures for 1991

JAMES BARR

Do people know about God just by being human beings, in the world we live in? Or do they need special divine assistance through the Bible and the church? This book examines what the Bible itself says on the question.

Kierkegaard as Negative Theologian

DAVID R. LAW

David Law's new book deals with Kierkegaard's 'apophaticism', or those elements of Kierkegaard's thought which emphasize the incapacity of human reason and the hiddenness of God.

Pseudo-Dionysius

A Commentary on the Texts and an Introduction to Their Influence

PAUL ROREM

'There are few scholars alive better qualified to undertake such a commentary than Paul Rorem.'

David Evans, Department of Theology,
St John's University

Dionysius the Areopagite is the pseudonymous author of an influential body of early Christian theological texts. Paul Rorem here explores the profound influence of these texts on medieval theology in the East and the West.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

1. Contributions in duplicate and books for review should be sent to Mr Peter Byrne at Department of Theology and Religious Studies, King's College London, Strand, London WC2R 2LS.
2. Articles submitted to the journal should in general be between 5,000 and 10,000 words long, though articles outside these limits will be acceptable if there is some good reason for their exceptional length or brevity. Articles in two or more parts may occasionally be accepted provided each part is independently intelligible. They should normally be in English.
3. Submission of an article is taken to imply that it has not previously been published, or is not being considered for publication elsewhere.
4. Contributions should be clearly typed in double spacing, preferably on A4 paper, with a wide left-hand margin. The typescript should be prepared to accord as closely as possible with the typographical conventions of the journal.
5. Footnotes should be used sparingly: in general, to give sources of direct quotations, references to main authorities on disputable questions, and evidence relied on for a new or unusual conclusion. They should be numbered in one sequence throughout the article, and should preferably be typed in double spacing at the end of the article.
6. Contributors should keep one copy of the typescript for correcting proofs.
7. First proofs may be read and corrected by contributors provided that they can give the Editor an address through which they can be reached without delay and can guarantee to return the corrected proofs to the Editor, by airmail where necessary, within ten days of receiving them.
8. Correction should be kept to an absolute minimum. It should be confined to errors of the typist or printer unless the Editor authorises otherwise.
9. All contributors of articles receive 50 free offprints. Reviewers will receive five or more offprints of their reviews.
10. If rejected manuscripts are to be returned, stamps or international coupons should be sent to cover postage, but it would normally be simpler just to retain a copy.
11. Contributors of accepted articles will be asked to assign their copyrights, on certain conditions, to Cambridge University Press, to help protect their material, particularly in the USA.
