ELITES IN SOUTH ASIA

Edited by E. R. LEACH and S. N. MUKHERJEE

An interdisciplinary study of elitist behavior in India during and after British rule. The papers consider who the men at the top were, the different spheres of Indian life, and the relationships with the British. The problems studied are not exclusive to the Indian subcontinent but apply to most of the developing countries of contemporary Asia, Africa and Latin America.

BUDDHISM AND THE SPIRIT CULTS IN NORTH-EAST THAILAND

S. J. TAMBIAH

Describes the religious practices and beliefs of the people of a remote village in North-east Thailand, showing how they form part of the wider network of civilization. Dr Tambiah demonstrates that the contemporary village religion manifests continuities as well as transformations with respect to the classical Buddhist tradition.

THE BRITISH DISCOVERY OF HINDUISM IN THE EIGHTEENTH CENTURY

Edited by P. J. MARSHALL

This is the first volume in a new series, The European Understanding of India, which will consist of edited reprints of historically important works. Some of the most significant English contributions to European understanding appear in this first volume. An introduction by Dr Marshall shows how the new knowledge of Hinduism became a weapon in controversies between Christians and unbelievers.

A COLLECTION OF TALES FROM UJI

D. E. MILLS

A translation and study of the Uji shūi monogatari, a collection of about 200 Japanese tales which was probably compiled in the early thirteenth century. The tales range from edifying Buddhist homilies to anecdotes about the everyday lives of noble, priest, and peasant.

After surveying the history and character of tale collections of the kind in Japan Dr Mills analyzes the Uji shūi collection in detail, comparing its stories with variant or parallel stories in other collections, and relating it in particular to the twelfth-century Konjaku monogatari.

The tales throw interesting sidelights on the social life and attitudes of the time. $11.50

THE HSI-YU CHI

A Study of Antecedents to the Sixteenth-Century Chinese Novel

GLEN DUDBRIDGE

A study of the early versions of the classic Chinese novel known to readers in English as Monkey. Dr Dudbridge examines a long tradition of earlier versions in narrative and dramatic form through which the episodic cycle slowly took shape. The two main fields of interest are popular culture and folklore and the development of Chinese vernacular literature. Dr Dudbridge provides a thorough survey of present knowledge about the subject.

This finely detailed study uses Chinese characters, both on text pages and in the bibliography, which is very extensive. The plates reproduce paintings, carvings and sections of original text relevant to the tradition. $25.00

The Izumi Shikibu Diary

A Romance of the Heian Court

From the Murakami Collection of the East Asiatic Library at the University of California, Berkeley.

Translated
with an Introduction by Edwin A. Cranston

Izumi Shikibu, a famous poetess and now a legendary figure in Japan, scandalized the Heian court of the early eleventh century by her ardent affairs with two of the Emperor's sons. The Izumi Shikibu nikki reveals the early months of her love affair with Prince Atsumichi. Her story is told in the form of a poem-diary, which presents chronologically the poems exchanged between Izumi and her lover. Mr. Cranston's translation remains faithful to the Japanese conception without succumbing to textualism, and the result is a pleasing combination of accuracy, sensitivity, and elegance of style. Mr. Cranston also includes a biographical sketch of the poetess, a description of the genre and textual history of the diary, and a complete study of the literary and technical problems presented by this early example of Japanese belles-lettres. Mr. Cranston teaches Japanese literature at Harvard University. Harvard-Yenching Institute Monograph Series, 19.

HARVARD STUDIES IN EAST ASIAN LAW

Jerome Alan Cohen, Chairman of the Editorial Committee

Only in the last decade have American scholars become aware of the value that the study of law can have to an understanding of the evolution of Chinese social, economic, and political life. This important new series provides new insights into the traditions, theoretical bases, and workings of East Asian law.

CONTEMPORARY CHINESE LAW:

Research Problems and Perspectives. Edited by Jerome Alan Cohen. Thirteen essays that explore the methodology for studying Chinese law and investigate research materials, analyze terminology problems, and discuss the comparisons between the Chinese legal system and our own and that of the U.S.S.R.

"...It will be praised by men concerned with seeking the universal insistence of social order. The authors have proved that China is not chaotic, although it presents less familiar features of social order than any other of the great families of law."—Harvard Law Review $10.00

Muslim Rule in India

THE ASSESSMENTS OF BRITISH HISTORIANS

By J. S. GREWAL, Punjab University. From about 1770 to 1840 the development of British historical writing on medieval Muslim India was intimately connected with the course of contemporary expansion of British rule. While stressing the conflict of assumptions between three major schools of thought, the Enlightenment, Utilitarianism, and the Romantic movement, the author contends that the assumption of the intellectual and moral superiority of contemporary Britain over Muslim India gives a certain unity to British historiography of this period. $4.50

Industrial Conflict in Malaya

PRELUDE TO THE COMMUNIST REVOLT OF 1948

By M. R. STENSON, University of Auckland, New Zealand. In this study Dr. Stenson analyzes the internal dynamics of industrial conflict within a rapidly changing colonial society. He discusses the changes brought about by the communist revolt and its influence upon the growth and nature of unionism. The revolt of 1948 is also shown as a result of World War II having increased the differences between the labor force and the employers. A postscript surveys the subsequent period up to 1969. $8.00

The Philippine's Claim to Sabah

ITS HISTORICAL, LEGAL, AND POLITICAL IMPLICATIONS

By M. O. ARIFF. In 1962 President Macapagal of the Philippines laid his government's claim to Sabah, a British colony then due for independence. When in 1963 Sabah joined the Federation of Malaysia, the claim was preferred against the new Federation. In this book the author first examines the foundation upon which the dispute rests, then presents the dispute against the background of the relevant historic facts. Finally, he establishes the validity of the bases of each treaty's stand against accepted international law practice. 5 maps. (Oxford in Asia Current Affairs.) Paper, $4.00 announcing a new title of critical importance to students of China and the Far East

Agricultural Production in Communist China, 1949-1965. By Kang Chao. The Chinese economy sustains a population that will soon number a billion, more than one quarter of the world's people. China's agriculture is faced with the staggering need to clothe and feed this population, and its success or failure is now a matter of worldwide significance. Despite the gravity of the problem, Western knowledge of China's agricultural productivity of the last two decades has been scant. Professor Kang Chao's careful study is the first to assess China's agricultural performance with a high degree of certainty and comprehensiveness. Chao, who has thoroughly canvassed Chinese journals and newspapers, local as well as national, analyzes the economic impact of the institutional changes in rural China which were carried out at high speed under the policy of socialist transformation. In the "great leap forward," the policy of the government generated not only a social but also a technological revolution, and Chao discusses in detail the ramifications within the agricultural sector. Chao's concluding analysis of the government's experience in developing agriculture indicates that it has not been entirely successful. His analysis is documented by comprehensive charts, and, in the discussion, by an admirable balance of theory and fact. ISBN 0-299-05770-4. LC 70-121766. 374 pages, figs. Just published. ASIAN STUDIES by Ignaz Goldziher, edited by S. M. Stern, Fellow of All Souls College, Oxford.

MUSLIM STUDIES

"Any serious student of Islamic society can only profit by reading the brilliant and scholarly analysis in Goldziher's work."—Eastern Horizon.

Originally published in 1889-90, Ignaz Goldziher's Muslim Studies still ranks high among the classics of Islamic scholarship and remains of fundamental importance to the study of Islam as a religion and a civilization. Translated into English for the first time, Volume I was published in 1968 and with the publication of Volume II, the work is complete. In Volume I, Goldziher is concerned with the imposition of Islam on the social structure and traditions of different nationalities. The second volume contains his famous study on the development of the Hadith, the "Traditions" ascribed to Muhammad. S. M. Stern, a noted Islamic scholar, has brought the annotation up-to-date and has indicated the most important relevant literature. Vol. I, 254 pp., $8.75. Vol. II, Approx. 376 pp., $11.50.

THE MACHINE-BUILDING INDUSTRY IN COMMUNIST CHINA

by Chu-yuan Cheng, Lawrence University and the University of Michigan.

Professor Cheng here assesses the significance of machine building to China's industrial and economic growth. Despite its importance, research on this subject has been practically nonexistent, and this work is the first comprehensive inquiry into this growing branch of the Chinese economy. Analyzing both the quantitative and qualitative aspects of the industry, the author has amassed a wealth of information entirely from original Chinese sources. Approx. 304 pp. $9.75.

AMERICA AND THE ASIAN REVOLUTIONS

edited and with an introduction by Robert Jay Lifton, Yale University.

The explosiveness of Southeast Asia has only partially resulted from American military involvement there. The articles in this volume probe beneath ambiguous, often contradictory news reports and political polemics to illuminate the domestic and international consequences of American adventurism and to indicate the prognosis for future disturbances. The authors discuss the impact of the Vietnam war upon Asian and American persons and politics, describe American involvement in other Southeast Asian countries, and discuss Mao, the Chinese Revolution, and China's hostility to the United States. 178 pp. A Trans-Action book. THE ORGINS OF STATECRAFT IN CHINA

Volume One: The Western Chou Empire

Herrlee G. Creel, University of Chicago

Until now, little has been known about this period because the historical evidence is obscure and fragmentary. This volume, a work of extraordinarily broad and deep scholarship, is the result of years of analysis of all known sources. It shows that the Chinese were the first to develop a pure theory of administration; they were centuries or millennia ahead of the West in developing civil service examinations, universities to train graduates in government service, merit rating, and statistic control.

Imperial Restoration in Medieval Japan

H. PAUL VARLEY. This work begins with an examination of the institutional and intellectual developments in early medieval Japan when a transition from rule by courtiers to rule by warriors began in the late twelfth century and reached its climax in the Kemmu Restoration of 1333-36. The Kemmu Restoration became a fiercely controversial issue among Japanese historians and Professor Varley provides a historiographic study of this important interpretational issue in Japanese history from the fourteenth to the twentieth century.

The Growth Potential of the Japanese Economy

KENNETH K. KURIHARA

The postwar Japanese economic "miracle" is by now familiar, but observers disagree about its causes as well as Japan's prospects for continuing growth. Professor Kurihara analyzes the fundamental forces governing the expansion of the Japanese economy to the present and for the decades ahead. His conclusions challenge some accepted assumptions about the nation's growth potential. $8.50

WILLIAM McNAUGHTON

The Taoist Vision

The vision of the Tao has influenced men for over 2500 years — revealing itself in ancient Chinese songs, in the teachings of Zen Buddhism, in the poetry of E. E. Cummings. In this lively and discerning anthology, the Chinese “philosophy of the Tao” is introduced to Western readers. The aim is not explanation, but revelation of the “Taoist vision” on its own terms. Included are the most significant passages from the Tao Te Ching and from Chuang Tzu’s Book; a selection of relevant Chinese, Japanese, and Western literature; and reproductions of three great Taoist paintings.

TRACKS OF AN INTRUDER

By GORDON YOUNG

192 pages Illus. $5.95

Reared among the Lahu tribesmen of the remote jungles of Southeast Asia, Gordon Young spoke Lahu before he learned English. A trained naturalist and ethnologist as well as a passionate big-game hunter, Young brings to this book his love for the jungles where he has spent most of his life. This is an account of men struggling with nature by a man who has struggled with them and has willingly sought out the secrets and mysteries that elude the average naturalist.

ASIAN SURVEY

Leading American monthly devoted to current developments in Asia. Coverage of political, economic and social trends in such societies as Communist China, India, Japan, Pakistan, Korea, Indonesia, Thailand, and Burma.

Recent articles have analyzed such topics as civil-military relations in North Vietnam, China's international trade, Japan's nuclear policy, India's splintered Communist Party, and the relationship between race relations and politics in Malaysia.

Special issues on local politics and land reform in Vietnam (August 1970), party developments in India (November 1970), and Communist China (December 1970) have been scheduled. In addition, as a regular feature two structured issues are published in January and February surveying major trends for the previous year in some twenty Asian countries.

Rates: $10 per year for 12 issues ($11 for overseas subscribers). Special student rate: $5 per year ($6 overseas). ASIAN SURVEY, University of California Press, Berkeley, CA 94720.

Microform Publications on Indian History

The Political and Official Papers of Sir Charles Wood,
1st Viscount Halifax (1800-1885)

Sir Charles Wood was appointed president of the Board of Control for India in 1853 at an interesting stage in the British administration of India, when the term of the East India Company's Charter was almost at an end, and Britain's future course with regard to the government of India remained to be determined. These papers, including correspondence with most of the major political figures of the day, provide important research material into the political history of both India and Great Britain in the 19th century. £280.

Indian Records of the U.S.P.G.

These microfilms prepared in the U.S.P.G. Archives in London, contain missionary reports and records for the period 1770-1900, relating in the main to Ceylon, Madras, Calcutta and Bombay. £230.

In addition to the above, Micro Methods Ltd provide microfilm copies of numerous historic Indian and South East Asian newspapers—separate leaflet on request, and in addition, the Journal and numerous publications of the Royal Asiatic Society, London, including the Transactions of the Society from 1823-1833.
