

WORLDVIEW

The Disappeared of Latin America

Thomas E. Quigley

“The U.S. Has Done Well In The Mideast,
But I Would Like To See It Do Even More”
Interview With H.M. Sultan Qaboos of Oman

Georgie Anne Geyer

The Vietnam War: Is It Time To Forgive & Forget?
Three Views

J. Patrick Dobel

Paul Ramsey

Stanley Hauerwas

Hanoi & Its Uneasy Neighbors

Noordin Sopiee

Cambodia: The Continuing Catastrophe

Harvey Stockwin

OPEC Is Acting In Self-Defense

Loring Allen

Tibetans Wait For China’s Next Move

Kesang Tseten

Camp David & Beyond: A View From The Third World

Mowahid H. Shah

On Preventing Genocide

Helen Fein

Neoconservatives & The Defense Of Capitalism

Dale Vree

& James A. Nuechterlein, O. Edmund Clubb, Raymond Nadeau, William M. Vataavuk, Paul F. Power, John D. Tenhula, Tinley Nyandak Akar, Albert Vorspan

COMING

Rapidly increasing anxieties about national security are resurfacing some old ideas about the need for civil defense. GARY L. GUERTNER presses some ethical questions that are too conveniently ignored in talk about “surviving” nuclear war.... IRVING LOUIS HOROWITZ explains why we must, however reluctantly, take another look at our military options in the face of an increasingly grim energy crisis.... ALAN P. RENOUF offers a new model for East-West relations in a time when “cold war” worries are re-popularizing outdated strategies.... RICHARD JOHN NEUHAUS examines “the Catholic Left” of ten years ago, showing how “the prophetic witness” of the Berrigans and others continues to illuminate and distort the search for peace today.... J. FREDERICK TRUITT argues that human rights accompany economic progress and that much-maligned multinational corporations may be crucial to that connection. And much more. Clearly this is the month to alert a friend to WORLDVIEW. Among the best alerts is a gift subscription, of course.

FOUNDED IN 1914 BY ANDREW CARNEGIE