

FILM QUARTERLY

Established in 1958 (as the successor to The Quarterly of Film, Radio & TV and The Hollywood Quarterly) FQ has led in establishing a new American tradition of serious attention to films. Its pages have been open to diverse viewpoints—not dominated by the cultist orientation of much contemporary movie writing.

ARTICLES: on important directors, on new developments artistic or technical, on national or international trends; historical surveys; critical debates

INTERVIEWS: with new film-makers and old (current issue: Keaton and Lester)

SPECIAL FEATURES: 8mm, animation, film teaching and scholarship, Hollywood movie-making, the exhibitors, etc.

BOOK REVIEWS: the significant new books (and some not so significant)

POEMS having something to do with movies

Individual copies are available at many newsstands and bookstores in metropolitan areas, for $1.00. However, supplies are often sold out quickly and only a subscription assures regular receipt of each issue.

SUBSCRIPTIONS: $4.00 per year to

ATTENTION CURRENT SUBSCRIBERS!

As no previous announcement was made that the cost of back issues would rise, those who subscribed to TDR before September 15, 1966, may buy back issues at $1.25 each ($1.75 for T 30). This offer is good only until November 30, 1966. We suggest that you order immediately, as the supply of many issues is very low.

SPECIAL GIFT OFFER

With each new or gift subscription, you may buy one copy of TDR's anthology STANISLAVSKI AND AMERICA for $3.60—instead of the $5.95 list price. The book is based on TDR's two Stanislavski issues, but also contains material from other issues of TDR, a Moscow Art Theatre seminar never before published in any form, and a new introductory essay by Richard Schechner. (See ad on facing page.)
