Feng Jining	University of Mississippi	P.R. China
Masaru Kohno	Stanford University	Japan
Emil Bolongaita	University of Notre Dame	Philippines
Huan-Ping Li	Claremont Graduate School	P.R. China
Feiling Wang	University of Pennsylvania	P.R. China
Kristina Sie Mao	University of Arizona	P.R. China
Sung Gul Hong	Northwestern University	Korea
Baogang Guo	Brandeis University	P.R. China
Apichart Larnlua	University of Mississippi	Thailand
Shaohua Hu	The American University	P.R. China

APSA Council Grant (Graduate Student Travel Grant)

Peter Johnson	Cornell University	Canada
Amin Kazak	University of Denver	Lebanon
Detlef Sprinz	University of Michigan	West Germany
Marco Steenbergen	SUNY-Stony Brook	Netherlands
Avorh Tetteh	Clark Atlanta University	Ghana
Joao Peixoto	University of New Mexico	Brazil
William Munro	Yale University	South Africa
Reuven Hazan	Columbia University	Israel
Violet Barriteau-Foster	Howard University	Barbados
Ewa Golebiowska	Ohio State University	Poland

who may be interested in such funds submit a request now.

To be notified about funding which may become available, write to IPSA Travel Grants, APSA, 1527 New Hampshire Avenue, NW, Washington, DC 20036. To be considered for any such funds which may become available, please send (1) a curriculum vitae, (2) a full listing of the panel(s) on which you participate, and (3) an abstract of the paper you will deliver to the above address. The provisional deadline for requests is March 1, 1991.

Faculty Seminar on Japanese Politics Held in Conjunction with Annual Meeting

An intensive three-day seminar on Japanese political institutions and behavior was held prior to the start of the APSA annual meeting in San Francisco which allowed American faculty to work with Japanese scholars on ways to incorporate Japan into undergraduate courses in comparative politics.

The seminar was lead by Kent E. Calder, Princeton University. The project was supported by a grant from the Japan-United States Friendship Commission, which provided travel support and living expenses for both Japanese and U.S. participants. A special section of the September 1991 PS will be devoted to teaching about Japan, drawing on the lessons from this seminar. The following individuals participated in the seminar.

Seminar Director

Kent E. Calder, Director, Program on U.S.-Japan Relations, Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs

Japanese Participants

Takashi Inoguchi, Institute of Oriental Culture, University of Tokyo

Atsushi Kusano, Tokyo Institute of Technology

Minoru Nakano, Department of General Affairs, Meiji Gakuin University

Participants

Lynne L. Bernier, Carroll College Ruth A. Bevan, Yeshiva University Alasdair Bowie, Catholic University David W. Dent, Towson State University

Richard T. Fry, Illinois College Richard M. Fulton, Northwest Missouri State University Timothy K. Hoye, Texas Woman's University

Joseph L. Klesner, Kenyon College Richard Lehne, Rutgers University

Ruth Mitchell Pitts, University of North Carolina

John A. Rapp, Beloit College

James A. Rhodes, Luther College

George K. Romoser, University of New Hampshire

Raymond M. Seidelman, Sarah Lawrence College

Donald Share, University of Puget Sound

Elizabeth A. Sharpe, Jackson State University

Doh Chull Shin, Sangamon State University

Robert J. Thompson, East Carolina University

David Wilsford, Georgia Institute of Technology

Frank L. Wilson, Purdue University Thomas P. Wolf, Indiana University Southeast

APSA Sections Distribute Awards at 1990 Annual Meeting

Many of the APSA Organized Sections used the opportunity of the 1990 Annual Meeting to recognize distinctive scholarship and career service within their fields of political science. Altogether, 12 of the 26 organized sections made awards at this meeting.

Federalism and Intergovernmental Relations Organized Section

Daniel J. Elazar, of Temple University and Bar-Ilan University, was awarded the Distinguished Achievement Award for outstanding scholarship in contribution to our understanding of the theory and process of federalism. The award was presented by Deil Wright of the University of North Carolina.

PS: Political Science & Politics

Daniel Elazar, recipient of the Distinguished Achievement Award from the Organized Section on Federalism and Intergovernmental Relations, accepting award from Deil Wright.

Law, Courts, and Judicial Process Organized Section

Andrew Koppelman, Yale University, received the Award for the Outstanding Graduate Student Research Paper, for "Forced Labor: A Thirteenth Amendment Defense of Abortion." The project was directed by Professor Bruce Ackerman, Yale University.

Honorable Mention Certificate awardees included: Janet Blasecki, University of Delaware, for "In Search of Justice Powell: Moderate, Pivotal, or Conservative Justice on the Court?"; Jonathan Stein, Yale University, "The Public-Private Distinction as Mobius Strip: An Historical Examination of Shelley v. Kraemer Bearing on the Limits of Liberal Neutrality"; and Bill Swinford, The Ohio State University, for "Similar Issues and Differing Outcomes in State Supreme Courts: The

C. Herman Pritchett (right) with Stuart A. Scheingold, Chair of the Section on Law, Courts, and Judicial Process, on the establishment of the Pritchett Award to be given in 1991 for the best book in the sub-field published in the previous two years.

Case of School Financing." These projects were directed by Professors James Magee, University of Delaware; Rogers Smith, Yale University; and Lawrence Baum, The Ohio State University, respectively.

Professor Ronald Kahn, Oberlin College, Chair of the Selection Committee, presented the awards and noted the high level of originality and rigor in the papers it received this year, as well as the diversity in the forms of inquiry used to study, law, courts, and judicial process, Kristin Bumiller, Amherst College, and Jeffrey Segal, State University, Stony Brook, were members of the selection committee.

Legislative Studies Organized Section

Barbara Sinclair, University of California, Riverside, received the Richard F. Fenno, Jr. Prize for the outstanding book in legislative studies including American, non-American, cross-national and subnational works. The prize was awarded for her study The Transformation of the U.S. Senate, published by the Johns Hopkins University Press, which was recognized substantive breadth, its emphasis on the dynamics of institutional change, and its methodological depth.

The Fenno Prize was presented by Nancy H. Zingale, of the College of St. Thomas. The selection committee was chaired by Demetrios Caraley of Columbia University, and included Gary King of Harvard University and Professor Zingale. The prize honors the outstanding scholarship of Richard F. Fenno, Jr. of the University of Rochester.

Richard A. Smith, of Carnegie-Mellon University, received the CQ Press Award for the outstanding paper in legislative politics presented at the year's preceding APSA Annual Meeting, for his work "Interpretation, Pressure and the Stability of Interest Group Influence in the U.S. Congress." The award was presented by Stanley Bach, Congressional Research Service, Library of Congress, who chaired the selection committee. Candice J. Nelson of Great Falls, VA, and John Hibbing of the University of Nebraska also served on the selection committee.

Barbara Sinclair, recipient for Richard F. Fenno Jr. Prize, with Richard Fenno Jr. (left) and Bruce Oppenheimer, of the Organized Section on Legislative Studies.

Political Organizations and Parties Organized Section

Frank J. Sorauf, University of Minnesota, was awarded the Samuel Eldersveld Award for a lifetime of distinguished contribution to the field. The award was presented by Frank Feigert of North Texas State University.

Seymour Martin Lipset, previously of Stanford University and currently of George Mason University, and Stein Rokkan, University of Bergen, received the Leon Epstein Award for a book which has made a distinguished contribution to the field for their text Party Systems and Voter Alignments, published by the Free Press. Robert Harmel of Texas A&M University presented the award.

Jack Dennis, of the University of Wisconsin, received the section's award for the best article for an article or published paper of unusual importance or significance to the field for his works "Support for the Party System by the Mass Public,"

Frank J. Sorauf, recipient of the Samuel Eldersveld Award for distinguished scholarly and professional service to the field, with Anne Hopkins and Virginia Gray of the Political Organizations and Parties Organized Section published in the APSR, September 1966, and "Trends in Support for the American Party System," published in the British Journal of Political Science in 1976.

Public Administration Organized Section

Alan Abramson of the Urban Institute received the Herbert Kaufman Award for the best paper in public administration presented at the previous annual meeting. Irene Rubin of Northern Illinois University presented the award for the paper, entitled "Budgeting for Entitlement Programs in Periods of Expansion and Consolidation."

Conflict Processes Section

J. David Singer, University of Michigan, received the Conflict Processes Lifetime Achievement Award for distinguished lifetime contribution to the study of conflict. The award was presented by Michael D. Ward of the University of Colorado at Boulder.

Representation and Electoral Systems Section

Maurice Duverger, Sorbonne, University of Paris, was presented the George Hallett prize which is awarded for a book published at least 10 years ago that has made a lasting contribution to the understanding of representation and electoral systems. The prize was given in recognition of Professor Duverger's work, Political Parties, published by John Wiley. The book was first published by Armand Coplin as Les Partis Politiques. Bernard Grofman of the University of California, Irvine, made the award.

Presidency Research Organized Section

The Richard E. Neustadt award for the best book published in 1989 that contributed most to research and scholarship in the field of the American presidency was awarded to John P. Burke, University of Vermont and Fred I. Greenstein, Princeton University, and their collaborators Larry Berman, University of California, Davis, and Richard Immerman, University of Hawaii, for the study How Presidents Test Reality, published by the Russell Sage Foundation. The study was recognized as enriching scholarship with substantive insight into how presidents manage information, and with advancing methods of analysis into the presidency. The award was presented by Louis Fisher, Congressional Research Service. Theodore J. Lowi, Cornell University, and Marcia Whicker, Virginia Commonwealth University, also served on the selection committee.

Politics and Life Sciences Organized Section

The Politics and Life Sciences Organized Section presented their Graduate Student Paper Award for the outstanding paper in politics and the life sciences for the past two years at their business meeting. Peter Barss, School of Hygiene and Public Health, The Johns Hopkins University, received the award for 1990 for his paper, "Epidemic Field Investigations as Applied to Allegations of Chemical, Biological, and Toxic Warfare." Chong Phil Ra, Seoul, Korea received the award for 1989 for the paper "Individual Development, Political Socialization, Biopolitics: A Punctuated Equilibrium Model of Political Socialization." The awards were presented by Odelia Funke, Environmental Protection Agency.

Urban Politics and Urban Policy Section

Oliver Williams, University of Pennsylvania, was awarded the section's Career Achievement Award for the important role he has played in defining the study of urban politics, and his emphasis on the political meaning of location. The award was presented by Mark Schneider, SUNY-Stony Brook. Irene Rubin, Northern Illinois University, and Ken Wong, University of Chicago, also served on the selection committee.

Clarence Stone, University of Maryland, College Park, was awarded the Best Book Award for his study Regime Politics: Governing Atlanta 1946-1988, published by the University Press of Kansas. Professor Stone's work was described as a pathbreaking work clearly articulating the concept of "regime" and significantly advancing urban political analysis. The award was presented by Fred Wirt, of the University of Illinois. Sharon Krefetz of Clark University and Philip Coulter of the University of New Orleans also served on the selection committee. The Section also recognized Mark Schneider, SUNY-Stony Brook, for his study The Competitive City: The Political Economy of Suburbia, University of Pittsburgh Press, as an outstanding recent work in urban policy.

Carol Pierannunzi, University of Georgia, received the Best Dissertation Award in Urban Politics and Urban Policy for her thesis "The Role of Local Government in Land-Use Politics: Testing and Developing Models of Local Decision Making on Zoning Issues." Her thesis was directed by Arnold Fleischmann. She is currently assistant professor of political science at Kennesaw State College. The award was presented by Michael Rich, Brown University. Lana Stein, University of Missouri-St. Louis and Ron Vogel, University of Louisville, also served on the selection committee.

Women and Politics Research Organized Section

Susan Welch, University of Nebraska, and Donley T. Studlar, Oklahoma State University, received the Best Paper on Women and Politics Award for the best paper on gender or women and politics presented at the last APSA Annual Meeting, for their work "Multimember Districts and the Representation of Women." The award was presented by Carol Christy, Ohio University.

Foundations of Political Theory Organized Section

William Corlett, Bates College, received the First Book Award for the best book in political theory written by an author at the beginning of a career for his study Community Without Unity: A Politics of Derridian Extravagance, published by Duke University Press. The award was presented by Edward Portis, Texas A&M University.

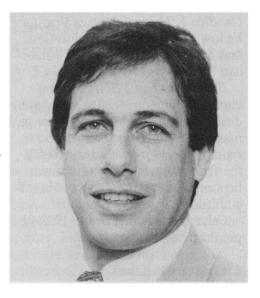

Computer Users Organized Section

Philip Schrodt, University of Kansas, received the Outstanding Political Science Computer Software Award recognizing excellence in the creation of political science computer software for classroom or research applications. The award was presented by Michael Vasu, North Carolina State University.

Second Annual Fund Drive for Congressional Fellowship Program Underway

Former Fellows and other friends are responding generously to the second annual fundraising drive on behalf of the Congressional Fellowship Program. We are grateful to the following individuals who have contributed (as of September 14, 1990).

Eddie N. Williams Thomas Vocino Norman I. Gelman Catherine Rudder Larry Hojo Samuel Halperin Randy D. Ferryman Louis A. Baer Warren W. Kane Loren Ghiglione Thomas van der Voort Peter Higgins Charles N. Davis Marvin R. Loewy M. Elaine Neenan Patrice Mitchell Michael H. Levin James M. McCormick Norbert Y. Zucker Cornelia H. Moore Margaret G. Guild T. W. Adams David R. Mayhew Leonard Parkinson Harriett J. Harper Richard Bolling Mollie van Heuven F. Lynn Holec Kenneth A. Heath Lynn Drake Ronald Elving Charles O. Jones Serge E. Logan Judith Justice J. Austin Ranney Joel Margolis Celia F. Cohen Ken Bowler Charls Walker

William G. Kagler Bonnie S. Whyte Robert B. Alexander Norma W. Carlson Paul Herrnson Robert F. Lundy Jack Pitney Roger Davidson Aaron Wildavsky Henry Sirgo Raymond Wolfinger Richard Warden Barbara Vobejda Alan Rosenthal William Loper Terry Sullivan

Political Scientists and Journalists Named Congressional Fellows

The APSA has announced the winners in the national competition for the 1990-91 Congressional Fellowship Program. Following a one-month orientation beginning in November, Fellows spend nine months working as legislative aides in congressional offices.

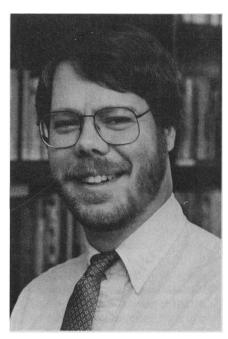

The new political science and journalism Fellows are:

Political Science Fellows

Daniel P. Franklin, Department of Political Science, Colgate University.

Mark A. Peterson, Department of Government, Harvard University.

Lyn Ragsdale, Department of Political Science, University of Arizona. (Dr. Ragsdale is the William A. Steiger Congressional Fellow for 1990-91.)

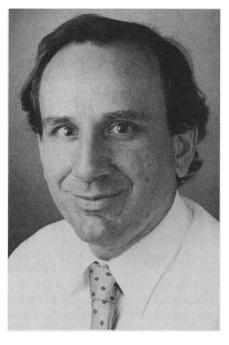

Mark Peterson

Journalism Fellows

Joseph Beck, Wisconsin State Journal, Madison. (Mr. Beck is the recipient of the 1990-91 Poynter Fellowship, awarded to print journalists.)

Nick Beres, KTVL-TV, Medford, Oregon. (Mr. Beres is the 1990-91 recipient of the Joan Shorenstein Barone Congressional Fellowship in Broadcast Journalism.)

Joseph Beck

December 1990