

Ernst Troeltsch and the Future of Theology
Edited by JOHN POWELL CLAYTON

A reassessment of the theology of the German Protestant theologian Ernst Troeltsch (1865–1923) and of his significance for contemporary theology. The papers fall into three groups: Troeltsch considered as a Christian theologian; a study of the possibilities of systematic and historical theology along Troeltschian lines; and the questions of what makes Christianity Christian and of Christian claims to exclusive truth are examined in the light of Troeltsch's work.

The Letters and Poems of Fulbert of Chartres

Edited by Frederick Behrends

Fulbert's letters offer an excellent introduction to the history of France in the early eleventh century and to the various spiritual, secular, and educational problems which confronted a churchman during the feudal age, while the poems are typical products of the schools as regards both their prosody and the variety of their subject matter. This is the first critical edition and translation of one of the most important letter collections of the early cathedral schools of northern Europe. £12.50 Oxford Medieval Texts

The Letters and Diaries of John Henry Newman

Volume XXIX. The Cardinalate,
January 1879-September 1881

Volume XXX. A Cardinal's Apostolate.
October 1881-December 1884

Edited by Charles Stephen Dessain and Thomas Gornall, S.J.

Volume XXIX is chiefly concerned with the offer to Newman of a Cardinal's hat, his acceptance of it, and the subsequent hindrances, followed by a time of embarrassing suspense and then a happy outcome. During the period covered by Volume XXX Newman was engaged in the thought and debate that led up to his paper On the Inspiration of Scripture. £17.50 each

Church and Society in England 1770-1970

A Historical Survey

E. R. Norman

This is a historical analysis of the development during the last two hundred years of the social teachings and attitudes of the Church of England. It relates the various ideas and policies adopted to the modes of thought current within the intelligentsia of each generation, pointing to the class moralism which prompted radical as well as conservative social opinions within the Church's leadership. £15

Priscillian of Avila

The Occult and the Charismatic in the Early Church

Henry Chadwick

Priscillian of Avila led an evangelical movement in the fourth-century churches of Spain and Aquitaine, which called for spiritual discipline and alertness to the unexpected and the non-rational. His radical beliefs and his interest in the occult aroused opposition, and he was tortured and executed in A.D. 385. The analysis of the social pressures leading to the tragedy makes alarmingly contemporary reading. £10

The Eighth Century Gelasian Sacramentary

A Study in Tradition

Bernard Moreton

The group of eighth-century Gelasian sacramentaries from various parts of the Frankish Empire has commonly been regarded as representing a mere fusion between two other types of sacramentaries, the 'old' Gelasian and the Gregorian. In this book Dr Moreton submits the manuscripts of this group to a rigorous critical analysis and concludes that they are independent and of at least equal standing with the principal manuscripts of the other types. £10.50 Oxford Theological Monographs

The Books of Enoch

Edited by J. T. Milik

Dr. Milik discusses the origin and development of the books of Enoch and their relation to other pseudepigraphical writings, evaluates the ancient versions and considers the works attributed to Enoch from Roman times to the late Middle Ages. This introduction is followed by a restored text with translation and commentary, a diplomatic transcription of the fragments, and a complete set of photographs. Illustrated £30

Zulu Zion

and Some Swazi Zionists

Bengt Sundkler

Bengt Sundkler's Bantu Prophets in South Africa was a pioneering work in the life and ideology of Independent African Churches. In this new study he interprets them from a different point of view, and has concentrated on this history and personalities of some of the churches, including that of the famous Isaiah Shembe. £8 Oxford Studies in African Affairs

Prayer in the Religious Traditions of Africa

Aylward Shorter

This is the first comprehensive study of the prayer literature of Africa. It groups 152 texts from a wide range of sources – traditional, Christian, and Islamic. The introduction tentatively classifies both religious systems and the prayers themselves, pointing out their anthropological, religious, and literary value, and the notes place the poems in their social and religious context. £5.75

W. R. Matthews: Philosopher and Theologian

H. P. OWEN

Over many years W. R. Matthews gave copious expression to his views on philosophy and theology in lectures, sermons, books and newspaper articles. This appreciation concentrates on Dr Matthews' writings and brings out their significance both for an understanding of religious thought in the first half of this century and of questions still of theological importance today. Paperback £1.50

Beyond Tradition and Modernity

Changing Religions in a Changing World

R. J. ZWI WERBLOWSKY

Professor Werblowsky examines the response of the major world religions to the challenge of 'modernity', arguing that post-modern religion will have to discover not only its substantive contents but also – and perhaps primarily – new canons of authority.

Law Reform in the Muslim World

NORMAN ANDERSON

In almost every Muslim country over the last 125 years the sacred law – the very core of Islamic civilization – has nevertheless been restricted in scope and reinterpreted by the courts. Professor Anderson discusses the pressures for reform, the Muslims' solution to the problem of transforming a divinely authoritative law, the major reforms achieved to date (even under Marxist influence) and the remaining problems.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

1. Contributions and books for review should be sent to the Editor, Professor H. D. Lewis, King's College, Strand, London, WC2R 2LS. Books published in America should be sent to Professor J. E. Smith, Department of Philosophy, Yale University, New Haven.
2. Articles submitted to the journal should in general be between 5,000 and 10,000 words long, though articles outside these limits will be acceptable if there is some good reason for their exceptional length or brevity. Articles in two or more parts may occasionally be accepted provided each part is independently intelligible. They should normally be in English.
3. Submission of an article is taken to imply that it has not previously been published, or is not being considered for publication elsewhere.
4. Contributions should be clearly typed in double spacing, preferably on A4 paper, with a wide left-hand margin. The typescript should be prepared to accord as closely as possible with the typographical conventions of the journal.
5. Footnotes should be used sparingly: in general, to give sources of direct quotations, references to main authorities on disputable questions, and evidence relied on for a new or unusual conclusion. They should be numbered in one sequence throughout the article, and should preferably be typed in double spacing at the end of the article.
6. Contributors should keep one copy of the typescript for correcting proofs.
7. First proofs may be read and corrected by contributors provided that they can give the Editor an address through which they can be reached without delay and can guarantee to return the corrected proofs to the Editor, by airmail where necessary, within ten days of receiving them.
8. Correction should be kept to an absolute minimum. It should be confined to errors of the typist or printer unless the Editor authorises otherwise.
9. All contributors of articles receive 50 free offprints. Reviewers will receive five or more offprints of their reviews.
10. If rejected manuscripts are to be returned, stamps or international coupons should be sent to cover postage.
11. Contributors of accepted articles will be asked to assign their copyrights, on certain conditions, to Cambridge University Press, to help protect their material, particularly in the USA.
