Bernhardt, Terry, Duse

The Actress in her Time

JOHN STOKES, MICHAEL R. BOOTH, SUSAN BASSNETT

Sarah Bernhardt, Ellen Terry and Eleanora Duse are three of the most celebrated actresses of the 'golden age' of the mid-nineteenth to early twentieth centuries. Their legendary stage presence was immediately mythologised in idealised poses, fictional renderings and endless gossip. Three closely linked chapters, together with a provocative introduction, photographs and prints of the actresses illuminate both their lives as well as a crucial period in theatrical history

Myth and Its Making in the French Theatre

Studies Presented to W. D. HOWARTH

Edited by E. FREEMAN, H. MASON, M. O'REGAN and S. W. TAYLOR

The fifteen original essays in this volume approach the theme of myth in the French theatre from a wide range of viewpoints. Ancient themes such as Thebes, Troy and Don Juan are re-examined, the use of myth to achieve effects such as irony, parody and camouflage are investigated. The subject matter extends from Garnier to Vinaver, from Corneille to Sartre.

The Merchant of Venice

M. M. MAHOOD

In this latest addition to The New Cambridge Shakespeare series, Professor Mahood investigates the play's historical background, and pays special attention to the expectations of its first audience and to our modern experience of seeing and hearing the play. The introduction discusses the play on stage and a full stage history is given, which shows how allegiances are altered in performance according to prevailing political or social trends.

The New Cambridge Shakespeare

Stage Images and Traditions: Shakespeare to Ford

MARION LOMAX

This book looks at the traditions behind some of the common images that appeared on stage in the early seventeenth century. Dr Lomax discusses in particular the years 1607-1614, which were important both because of the developments taking place in the playhouses and also because of the variety of drama on offer.

Adolphe Appia

Theatre Artist

RICHARD C. BEACHAM

This is the most complete account available in English on the work of the Swiss theatre designer and theorist, Adolphe Appia (1862-1928), who has long been revered as the most important innovator in the concept and use of stage lighting. It offers a critical evaluation of his work on scenic design, and explores his concept of the nature and limits of theatrical art.

Directors in Perspective

Plays by Susan Glaspell

Edited by C. W. E. BIGSBY

This book collects four plays by Susan Glaspell, Trifles, The Outside, The Verge and Inheritors, which together reveal the modern nature of the playwright's concerns. Long known only for a single play, Susan Glaspell now emerges as a significant figure in the history of American drama, a woman of genuine creative daring.

British and American Playwrights 1750-1920

American Realism and American Drama: 1880-1940

BRENDA MURPHY

In this book Professor Murphy places the theory and practice of American realism in a dramatic and theatrical context. She traces the evolution of dramatic theory from the early 1890s to World War I and examines the uniquely American innovations in the realistic drama that occurred between the first and second world wars.
