NEW STRUCTURES IN RELIGIOUS THOUGHT

Narrative Theology in Early Jewish Christianity

William Richard Stegner

This book brings to light a lost period of history when Christians expressed the meaning of Jesus Christ in narrative form by giving the proper background to four stories of Jesus: the baptism, the temptation, feeding the five thousand, and the transfiguration.

Competition in Religious Life

Jay Newman

In his latest work on the social consequences of religious commitment, Jay Newman reveals in clear and concise fashion the extent to which competitiveness is an essential feature of religious life. His assessment charts various classical strategies that have been proposed for either eliminating such competitiveness or directing it into appropriate channels. After a detailed philosophical analysis of the nature and value of competition, the author examines competition between denominations and within denominations, and considers religious competition in some of its less obvious forms.

In the process of evaluating the methods for curbing religious competition advocated by such thinkers as Spinoza and Lessing, as well as by modern ecumenists, the author points the way to a general approach to religious competition that minimizes destructive religious conflicts without ignoring the positive value of religious competition.
