Puritans in the New World

A Critical Anthology

Edited by David D. Hall

Puritans in the New World presents the Puritans in their own words. Classics of Puritan expression, like Mary Rowlandson's captivity narrative, Anne Bradstreet's poetry, and William Bradford's Of Plymouth Plantation appear alongside texts that are less well known but no less important. David Hall's chapter introductions provide a useful history of Puritanism in seventeenth-century New England.

Above all, this is a collection of texts that vividly illuminates the experience of being a Puritan in the New World.

Proving Woman

Female Spirituality and Inquisitional Culture in the Later Middle Ages

Dyan Elliott

Around the year 1215, female mystics and their sacramental devotion were among orthodoxy's most sophisticated weapons in the fight against heresy. Holy women's claims to be in direct communication with God placed them in positions of unprecedented influence. Yet by the end of the Middle Ages female mystics were frequently mistrusted, derided, and in danger of their lives. The witch hunts were just around the corner.

Dyan Elliott argues that the widespread adoption of inquisitional mechanisms for assessing female spirituality eventuated in a growing confusion between the saintly and heretical and the ultimate criminalization of female religious expression.

The Protestant Voice in American Pluralism

Martin E. Marty

$22.95 hardcover

“In three delightfully witty and deceptively informal chapters, Martin Marty distills decades of research and reflection on religion in America. All who wish to understand not only the complex trajectory of American Protestantism from 1607 to the present but also the broader contours of American religious history—and indeed the nation itself—will welcome this book.”

—Paul S. Boyer, Editor-in-Chief, The Oxford Companion to United States History

“Once again, Martin Marty serves as our master guide to American Protestantism. With wonderful ease of expression, he couples a historic guide to the always plural nature of the American Protestant tradition with a provocative interpretation of efforts made by contemporary Protestant leaders to exert influence while no longer ‘running the show.’”

Anglicans in Canada

Controversies and Identity in Historical Perspective

Alan L. Hayes

From the first worship services onboard English ships during the sixteenth century to the contentious toughmindedness of early clergymen to current debates about sexuality, Alan L. Hayes provides a comprehensive survey of the history of the Canadian Anglican Church. Unprecedented in the annals of Canadian religious history, it examines whether something like an Anglican identity emerged from within the changing forms of doctrine, worship, ministry, and institutions.

Radical Origins

Early Mormon Converts and Their Colonial Ancestors

Val D. Rust

Investigates whether the unconventional religious beliefs of their colonial ancestors predisposed early Mormon converts to embrace the “radical” message of Joseph Smith Jr. and his new church. Rust shows how family traditions can be passed down through the generations. This, he argues, extends the historical role of Mormons by giving their early story significant implications for understanding the larger context of American colonial history.

From Charity to Social Work

Mary E. Richmond and the Creation of an American Profession

Elizabeth N. Agnew

Mary E. Richmond (1861–1928) was a contemporary of Jane Addams and an influential leader in the American charity organization movement. In this biography—the first in-depth study of Richmond’s life and work—Elizabeth N. Agnew examines the contributions of this important, if hitherto under-valued, woman to the field of charity and to its development into professional social work.

DOUGLAS HORTON AND THE ECUMENICAL
IMPULSE IN AMERICAN RELIGION
THEODORE LOUIS TROST

Douglas Horton: Dean, Scholar, Leader in the Ecumenical Movement and Founder of the United Church of Christ

“Douglas Horton was one of the principal persons responsible for the creation of the United Church of Christ, but his work and influence extended beyond that Church. I suspect that only those who know something about the history of the UCC even know the name of Douglas Horton. Theodore Trost, who comes from a distinguished UCC family, has written not only a superb biography of Horton, but in so doing traces the developments in American Congregationalism before and after World War II which fostered an ecumenical impulse in the Congregational Christian Churches.”

Exploring EVANGELICALISM & IDENTITY

Deconstructing Evangelicalism

D. G. Hart

0-8010-2728-4 • 224 pp. • $21.99c

“Darryl Hart, always a stimulating contrarian, is at it again with Deconstructing Evangelicalism. His arguments in favor of jettisoning the label evangelical contain an intriguing mixture of historical savvy, ironical whimsy, wrongheaded obtuseness, and deeply Christian insight. Only careful attention to the book will let readers decide for themselves what to make of Hart’s audacious proposal.”

Pilgrims on the Sawdust Trail

Timothy George, editor

0-8010-2764-0 • 240 pp. • $19.99p

Pilgrims on the Sawdust Trail brings together scholars and church leaders to examine recent discussions and new opportunities for relationships among evangelicals and fundamentalists, Pentecostals, mainline Protestants, and Roman Catholics. Contributors include Joel Carpenter, Richard Mouw, Gabriel Fackre, Richard John Neuhaus, and Thomas Oden. A substantial foreword by Mark Noll is also included.

Embodying the Spirit

New Perspectives on North American Revivalism

edited by

Michael J. McClymond

"This volume sheds new light on both the history and interpretation of revivalism in the North American context, examining the topic from a number of unstudied or understudied perspectives. Further, the book comes at a time when some fresh thinking about revivalism would be most welcome. It is a genuine contribution to the field of American religion."—Larry Eskridge, Institute for the Study of Evangelicals at Wheaton College

"Revivalism is as American as apple pie—and almost as neglected as a topic of serious historical study. Michael McClymond's perceptive team of contributors greatly deepens what passes for scholarship on American revivalism. A much improved historical understanding will result from this fine book."

Awards of the American Society of Church History:

The Frank S. and Elizabeth D. Brewer Prize, offered annually, is a subvention fund of $1,000 to assist a press in publishing a book-length manuscript in church history. The prize is limited to first books. The monetary grant will be made upon receipt of a commitment in writing from a publisher accepting the manuscript. Entries in their final form must be received by 1 November.

The Albert C. Outler Prize is an award in the amount of $1,000 to the author of the best book published in the two previous calendar years in ecumenical church history. "Ecumenical" is to be construed as concerned chiefly with problems of Christian unity and disunity (doctrinal, cultural, institutional) or with interactions between Christianity and other religious movements in any historical period. Authors of eligible books or any member of the Society may nominate titles for consideration; authors should submit a copy of the book. Nominations must be received by 1 March in even-numbered years.

The Philip Schaff Prize is an award in the amount of $1,000 to the author of the best book published in the two previous calendar years, originating in the North American scholarly community and presenting original research on any period in the history of Christianity. Authors of eligible books or any member of the Society may nominate titles for consideration; authors should submit a copy of the book. Nominations must be received by 1 March in odd-numbered years.

The Jane Dempsey Douglass Prize is an annual award in the amount of $250 for the author of the best essay published during the previous calendar year on any aspect of the role of women in the history of Christianity. Authors of eligible articles and any member of the Society may nominate titles for consideration. Nominations, accompanied if possible by a copy of the article, must be received by 1 August.

The Sidney E. Mead Prize, offered annually, is an award in the amount of $250 for the author of the best unpublished essay in any field of church history written by a doctoral candidate or recent graduate whose manuscript stems directly from doctoral research. The manuscript will be published in Church History. Entries of no more than twenty-five double-spaced pages, including double-spaced endnotes, must be submitted by 1 July.

A work may be submitted for only one ASCH competition. For more information, or to nominate a book or submit a manuscript, write to the American Society of Church History, Yale University Divinity School, 409 Prospect St., Box 473, New Haven, CT 06511.
