Popular Music is an international multi-disciplinary journal covering all aspects of the subject - from the formation of social group identities through popular music, to the workings of the global music industry, to how particular pieces of music are put together. The journal includes all kinds of popular music, whether rap or rai, jazz or rock, from any historical era and any geographical location. Popular Music carries articles by scholars from a variety of disciplines and theoretical perspectives. Each issue contains substantial, authoritative and influential articles, topical pieces, and reviews of a wide range of books. Some issues are thematic. The editors also welcome polemical pieces for the 'Middle Eight' section of the journal. Contributors should consult the 'Notes' on the inside back cover.

Articles and any other material not related to reviews should be submitted online at <http://journals.cambridge.org/pmu>. Any queries relating to submissions may be addressed to popularmusic@cambridge.org. Material for review should be sent to Professor Martin Cloonan, email martin.cloonan@music.glasgow.ac.uk.

Subscriptions Popular Music (ISSN 0261-1430) is published three times a year in January, May and October. Three parts form a volume. The Contributors

DALE CHAPMAN is an associate professor of music at Bates College. His research focuses upon culture and political economy in jazz and contemporary popular music. His work has appeared in the Journal of the Society for American Music, the Oxford Handbook of Sound and Image in Digital Media (forthcoming) and the Grove Dictionary of American Music, 2nd edition (forthcoming).

ANNE DESLER is lecturer in music and theatre in the Department of Drama and Music at the University of Hull. Her research in popular music and 18th-century studies is linked by interests in multimedia performance, aesthetics, historiography and her experience as a professional singer.

RACHEL DEVITT received her doctorate in ethnomusicology from the University of Washington, where she began research on the role of music in drag performance. Her publications include essays in the anthology Queering the Popular Pitch and the journal Asian Music. She also works as a music journalist and critic, writing for publications including the Village Voice and the Seattle Times.

ROSALIE Z. FANSHIEL is an independent scholar and illustrator based in Berkeley, California and Sydney, Australia. Her next project looks at representations of gender and sexuality in the sustainable agriculture movement.

YOSEF GOLDENBERG teaches at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem and at the Jerusalem Academy of Music and Dance, where he also serves as head librarian. As a music theorist, he is author of Prolongation of Seventh Chords in Tonal Music (Edwin Mellen Press, 2008) and of articles published in such journals as Journal Music Theory and Music Theory Online. As a scholar of Israeli music, he published Classical Music and the Hebrew Song Repertoire (Min-Ad, 2005) along with a series of articles in Hebrew.

SHANA GOLDIN-PERSCHBACHER received her PhD in 2008 from the University of Virginia, and is now queer studies postdoctoral fellow at Stanford University where she teaches courses on queer theory, transgender studies and popular culture. Previously she was the postdoctoral fellow in music in Stanford's Andrew W. Mellon Fellowship of Scholars in the Humanities and lecturer in LGBT Studies at Yale University. Shana is working on a book about Meshell Ndegeocello, Jeff Buckley, Bjork and Antony that analyses earnest performances of queer gender and the (sometimes uncomfortably) intimate fan relationships their music invites.

ANNA NEKOLA received her PhD in musicology from the University of Wisconsin – Madison and she teaches courses in music, communication and queer studies at Denison University. Her research appears in The Journal of the Society for American Music, Congregational Music – Performance, Identity and Experience, and the forthcoming Oxford Handbook of Music and World Christianities. She is currently working on a book analysing the disputes over worship music within contemporary American evangelical Christianity, exploring how ideological and theological disputes are reconfigured as spiritual battles over the most appropriate musical style for organised worship services.

TRAVIS D. STIMELING is assistant professor of music at West Virginia University (USA). He is the author of Cosmic Cowboys and New Hicks: The Countercultural Sounds of Austin's Progressive Country Music Scene (Oxford University Press, 2011) and has published widely in such journals as Popular Music, Popular Music and Society, and American Music, among others. He has also served as a Senior Editor for The New Grove Dictionary of American Music, 2nd ed. (Oxford University Press, forthcoming).
