IN DEFENSE OF POLITICAL REASON
ESSAYS BY RAYMOND ARON

Edited by Daniel J. Mahoney

The essays selected for inclusion in this book, many published here in English for the first time, validate Raymond Aron's standing as one of the most important political thinkers and observers of our century. They deal with the full range of Aron's concerns, including political ethics, morality and international relations, the meaning of liberalism, the philosophy of history, the nature of totalitarianism, the responsibility of intellectuals in a free society and the contemporary crisis of democratic theory and practice.

"Professor Mahoney's collection of essays will give readers a representative sample from Aron's prodigious output, and a good sense of his humane and realistic liberalism." —Stanley Hoffman, Minda de Gunzberg Center for European Studies, Harvard University

"...we finally have a collection of these works that, through judicious translation and intelligent organization, allows us to come to terms with Aron the thinker. Pierre Manent's penetrating introduction is alone worth the price of admission." —Mark Lilla, New York University

"Here is a small package of Raymond Aron's most brilliant and influential essays...With the help of Daniel Mahoney's introductions we see the canny Aron—now the conquering hero in Paris—fighting the menaces from all sides to defend liberty and liberalism." —Harvey Mansfield, Harvard University

Daniel J. Mahoney, Assistant Professor of Politics at Assumption College, is the author of The Liberal Political Science of Raymond Aron (Rowman & Littlefield, 1992).

MILLER

Volume I Spring 1994

Editor: Kenneth W. Thompson

This annual offers scholarly articles of enduring value that will promote discussions and give fresh perspectives on the presidency, governance, and foreign views of American governance.

The Journal endeavors to strengthen understanding and political practices through the exchange of ideas on fundamental issues in these three areas of interest.

The inaugural issue features articles by Richard E. Neustadt, Fred I. Greenstein, James Sterling Young, and Robert A. Strong that address presidential transitions, leadership styles, legislative governance, and the sources of evidence for analyzing the modern presidency.

Timely issues are emphasized as well as problems of the presidency and governance that deserve deeper, more reflective analysis. The premier issue contains a thoughtful exchange on presidential debates; Hugh Sidey's essay on presidential character, and Kenneth Thompson's book review essay on Richard Reeves' study of the Kennedy presidency.

You will want to subscribe to The Miller Center Journal if you are interested in substantive and probing research. It promises to be a unique contribution to the literature on presidential studies, governance, and comparative politics that appeals to practitioners and scholars alike.

Fathers of International Thought

The Legacy of Political Theory

Kenneth W. Thompson

Renowned foreign affairs scholar Kenneth Thompson returns to the writings of sixteen early thinkers in order to better understand the issues and problems that recurrently beset global politics. He begins by discussing the relevance of classical political philosophy to the field of modern international relations theory, and then presents lucid essays on some of the most brilliant minds from ancient times through the nineteenth century, focusing on the importance of their thought in contemporary international affairs. Fathers of International Thought will be of lasting value to students and practitioners alike.

New Series From
Rowman & Littlefield

TWENTIETH-CENTURY POLITICAL THINKERS

GENERAL EDITORS: KENNETH L. DEUTSCH, SUNY-GENESEO,
JEAN BETHKE ELSHTAIN, VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY

As we approach the twenty-first century, Rowman & Littlefield is proud to announce a new series that will provide a comprehensive and insightful overview of the great political theorists of the twentieth century. Twentieth-Century Political Thinkers will include original introductions to and interpretations of the most influential political thinkers from within and beyond political science whose social, religious, literary, economic and political perspectives have deeply influenced the field of political theory. The series will include thinkers who represent the diverse interests of political theorists, from Leo Strauss to Herbert Marcuse. It will balance fresh, thoughtful perspectives on leading thinkers with works on those not yet adequately represented in the canon. Books in the series will appeal to political scientists, philosophers, historians, literary theorists and theologians, and will be valuable to advanced undergraduates as well as to graduate students and specialists in the field. While each volume in the series will be significant in its own right, as a collection Twentieth-Century Political Thinkers will stand as a monument to the vitality of contemporary political thought.

Titles will include: John Rawls by Michael Zuckert, Carleton College Herbert Marcuse by Ben Agger, SUNY-Buffalo Leo Strauss by George Anastaplo, Loyola University of Chicago Michael Oakeshott by Aryeh Botwinick, Temple University. The series editors also envision works on the following seminal figures: Arendt, Camus, Gandhi, de Beauvoir, Grant, Maritain, Niebuhr, Dewey, Habermas, Vogelstein, MacPherson and Weil. The editors invite submissions from both established scholars and newcomers with some record of publication. Initial letters of inquiry should include a prospectus outlining the contributions of the proposed thinker, a tentative chapter outline, and the author's curriculum vitae. For more information please contact Professor Kenneth L. Deutsch, Department of Political Science, SUNY-Geneseo, Geneseo, NY 14454-1401. Telephone (716) 245-5371.

About the Editors

Kenneth L. Deutsch is Professor of Political Science at SUNY-Geneseo and co-editor of Leo Strauss: Political Philosopher and Jewish Thinker (Rowman & Littlefield, 1993).
