

News and Notes

Activities

James B. Christoph is the first recipient of the Indiana University Arts and Sciences/Graduate School Alumni Association award for distinguished teaching in the social and behavioral sciences.

Harlan Cleveland, Director of the Hubert M. Humphrey Institute of Public Affairs of the University of Minnesota, was guest speaker at the General Accounting Office Honor Awards Ceremony, Wednesday, November 19, in the Pension Building.

Jack Goldsmith, professor of public policy and administration, California State College, Bakersfield, has been awarded a $300,000 grant by the National Endowment for the Humanities for a project entitled "California Odyssey: The 1930s Migration to the Southern San Joaquin Valley." Professor Goldsmith will serve as project director for the 2½-year project which will focus on the impact of the 1930s migration on cities, towns and rural communities in this five-county area. The California Odyssey Project has three components: the oral history program, the historical studies program, and the public programs series.

Stephen M. Gorman, North Texas State University, was an invited participant in a briefing session for the new Ambassador to Peru at the Department of State, October 8-9, 1980.

Samuel Gove, Director, Institute of Government and Public Affairs, University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign, was elected to active membership in the National Academy of Public Administration.

Richard Merritt, head, Political Science Department, University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign, was one of two dozen scholars from 13 nations invited by the German Academic Exchange Service (DAAD) to observe the West German general election in October.

Charles Press, professor, received a "Distinguished Faculty Award" from Michigan State University.

James Seroka, Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, has been awarded Fulbright and National Academy of Sciences Awards for study in Yugoslavia during the academic year 1980-81. His research will deal with the administration of public policy decisions in rural county government institutions.

Russ W. Smith, North Texas State University, is the winner of the Edwin O. Stene Award for the best paper published in the Midwest Review of Public Administration in 1979. The award was announced at the Midwest Regional Meeting of the American Society for Public Administration in St. Paul, September 16, 1980. He also has been appointed Undergraduate Section Representative for the Southwest Region to the National Association of Schools of Public Affairs and Administration (NASPAA), and was an invited participant in an Office of Personnel Affairs symposium on "Issues and Future Directions for Research on Federal Managerial Career Patterns" in Washington, October 26-28, 1980.

C. Neal Tate, North Texas State University, was elected Secretary of the Southwestern Social Science Association at its annual meeting in Houston, April 4, 1980.

David Vogel, University of California, Berkeley, has received a grant from the Center for Law and Economic Studies of Columbia University to analyze the influence of business on clean air policies. He will be spending the fall, 1981 semester as a sabbatical visitor at the London Business School.

Brian Weinstein, Howard University, has been awarded a fellowship by the Indo-U.S. Subcommission on Education and Culture for 1981. He will study language planning in Tamil Nadu and West Bengal.

Howard J. Wiarda, professor of political science at the University of Massachusetts, has been reappointed for a second year to his research position at the Harvard University Center for International Affairs.

New Appointments

Kennette M. Benedict, appointed assistant professor, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign; formerly of Douglass College and the Eagleton Institute of Politics, Rutgers University.

Lance Elliott Brouthers, North Texas State University, appointed assistant professor.

John J. Carter, assistant professor, Central Methodist College.

Jonathan P. Casper, professor, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign; formerly of Stanford University.

Chang-hyun Cho of Pembroke State University has been appointed as a member and elected chairman of the Subcommittee on Internal Operations of the Federal Advisory Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Melvin J. Dubnick, associate professor, University of Kansas; formerly of Loyola University of Chicago.

Alan C. J. Feng, Director of World Cultures Center at Cheyney State College, Cheyney, Pennsylvania.

R. Kenneth Godwin, associate professor, University of Arizona; formerly Oregon State University.

Malcolm Goggin, assistant professor, University of Houston; formerly Stanford University.

Peggy Heilig, assistant professor, University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign; formerly Lake Forest College.

Chiang C. Lin, professor, Grambling State University.

John Kincaid, assistant professor, North Texas State University.

Roger D. Masters has been named John Sloan Dickey Third Century Professor at Dartmouth College for a term of five years (1980-85). This chair provides support for innovations in undergraduate curriculum and teaching. Professor Masters' projects include an interdisciplinary program linking the study of human nature in anthropology, biology, and political theory; new technologies of instruction; and an annual lectureship in honor of the late Arthur M. Wilson.

Dale H. Poel, assistant professor, School of Public Administration, Dalhousie University (part-time), and Director, Evaluation Research Associates, Halifax.

Norman C. Thomas appointed Charles Phelps Taft Professor of Political Science at the University of Cincinnati.

Mark J. Wattier, formerly of Samford University, was appointed assistant professor, Murray State University, fall 1980.

Kenneth E. Winker, Ph.D. candidate, School of Criminology, Florida State University, was appointed instructor of criminal justice, Department of Political Science, Murray State University, fall 1980.

Dina Zinnes, Charles Merriam Chair of Political Science, University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign; formerly Indiana University.

Visiting and Temporary Appointments

David E. Apter, Henry J. Heinz II Professor of Comparative Political and Social Development, Yale University, has been appointed a Phi Beta Kappa Visiting Scholar for 1980-81.

Ruth Bamberger, associate professor, Drury College, appointed Honorary Visiting Research Fellow in the Department of Sociology and Social Policy at the University of Durham, England. The appointment is from January through June of 1981. She will be researching Sex Discrimination in the British Insurance System.

Harold Brown, Distinguished Visiting Professor in National Security Affairs, School of Advanced International Studies, Johns Hopkins University; formerly Secretary of Defense.

News and Notes

Donald A. Downs, lecturer for the winter term at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

Heinz Eulau, William Bennett Munro Professor of Political Science at Stanford University, has been appointed a Phi Beta Kappa Visiting Scholar for 1980-81. He is past president of the American Political Science Association, and a fellow of the AAAS and the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

John H. Faughn, instructor of criminal justice, Department of Political Science, Murray State University, received a Summer Professional Improvement Leave grant from the university to pursue doctoral study at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, summer 1980.

Gene J. Garfield, associate professor, Murray State University, received a Summer Professional Improvement Leave grant from the university to study the foreign policies of the Federal Republic of Germany and the Peoples' Republic of China, summer 1980.

Samuel Hendel, visiting professor of political science (part-time) at Barnard College during the spring semester of 1981. He will teach a course on "Problems in Civil Rights and Liberties."

Bruce Jacobs, University of Rochester, is spending 1980-81 as guest scholar at The Brookings Institution. His leave is being supported by grants from The Ford Foundation and Florence V. Burden Foundation. During the year he is studying the public policy implications of home equity conversion into increased incomes for the elderly.

Harold K. Jacobson, professor at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, will serve as acting chairman of the Department of Political Science at the University of Michigan during the winter term, 1981.

Garth N. Jones, professor of political science, University of Alaska at Anchorage, was granted sabbatical leave 1980-81. He spent seven months in Indonesia under a World Bank project to develop organizational and system design to resettle two and a half million landless and near landless persons, May to December, 1980. From February to June 1981 he will be a Fulbright Scholar in Taiwan.

Hamilton Jordan, former Chief of Staff at the Carter White House, has accepted a one-year appointment as a "distinguished visiting fellow" in political science at Emory University in Atlanta.

Robert Kaufman, visiting lecturer, University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign.

Jack Lewis, visiting assistant professor and Director of the Year-in-Japan Program, University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign.

William F. Larsen, Chairman, Department of Public Administration, Florida Atlantic University, has received an appointment from the Organization for European Cooperation and Development (OECD) and will go to Istanbul, Turkey to serve as visiting professor in the Faculty of Administrative Science at Bogazici University for the first half of 1981.

Wesley McDonald has joined the faculty of Elizabethtown College as visiting assistant professor of political science.

Jim Nowlan, visiting associate professor and Director of the Master's in Public Administration Program, University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign.

Gregory Sanjian, visiting lecturer, University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign.

Robert J. Steamer, professor of political science at the University of Massachusetts at Boston, has been appointed Honorary Research Fellow at the University of Exeter in Great Britain for the spring term 1981.

Shawky Zeidan, visiting professor of political science, University of Pittsburgh for the spring 1981 semester.

Administrative Appointments

Walter E. Beach, Senior Staff, Advanced Study Program, The Brookings Institution.

Henrik N. Dullea, Acting President, College at Purchase, SUNY.

F. Chris Garcia, professor of political science, has been appointed Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of New Mexico.

Philip S. Gillette, Old Dominion University, has been appointed interim director of the Graduate Program in International Studies (M.A.I.S.) for 1980-81. While filling this post, he will continue as chair of the Department of Political Science and Geography.

Charles Henry, Denison University, has a National Endowment for the Humanities Post Doctoral Fellowship in Afro-American Studies for 1980-81 and will become chairperson of the University of California, Berkeley, Afro-American Studies Program in 1981.

C. Richard Hofstetter, professor and chair, Department of Political Science, University of Houston.

James F. Horan, acting associate to the President and Director of Policy Analysis and Planning at the University of Maine in Orono.

Hoyt King, head, Department of Government and Public Affairs, Tennessee State University.

Fred Lazin, director of the Urban Studies Program at Ben Gurion University of the Negev, Beersheva, Israel, after a one-year leave at the School of Architecture and Urban Planning, University of California, Los Angeles.

Alvin Magid, chairman, State University of New York at Albany.

William E. Markus, chairman, Department of Political Science, Duquesne University.

Kenneth T. Palmer, acting chairman of the Political Science Department at the University of Maine in Orono.

Richard B. Parker is the new editor of The Middle East Journal and director of publications, Middle East Institute. He was U.S. Ambassador to Algeria in 1975-77, to Lebanon 1977-78, and to Morocco 1978-79. He is also a member of the Department of Government and Foreign Affairs at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville.

John Paul Ryan, director of research, American Judicature Society.

Bruce L. R. Smith, Senior Staff, Advanced Study Program, The Brookings Institution.

C. Neal Tate, North Texas State University, appointed chairperson.

Franklin Tugwell, associate professor of government at Pomona College, has been named deputy assistant administrator for development technology for the U.S. Agency for International Development (AID).

Promotions

Louise Comfort, professor, San Jose State University.

Ann Diamond, assistant director, Legal Policy Studies Program, American Enterprise Institute.

Michael E. Good, associate professor, Ohio Wesleyan.

Robert Jackman was promoted to professor, Michigan State University.

Bernard Klein, acting provost, formerly Vice President for Labor, Urban and Metropolitan Affairs; also professor of political science, Wayne State University.

Fred Lazin, senior lecturer, Ben Gurion University, Beersheva, Israel.

Kathleen H. B. Manalo, publisher, The Middle East Journal; formerly managing editor.

Chardean Newell, North Texas State University, promoted to professor.

Gary Orfield, professor, University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign.

Charles Ostrom, Jr., was promoted to associate professor, Michigan State University.

Michael Preston, associate professor, University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign.

Abdul H. Rifai, professor, Berea College.

Retirements

A. Kenneth Hesselberg, chairman and professor of political science, Duquesne University.

Louis Friedland, professor, Wayne State University.

Max Mark, professor, Wayne State University.

Corrections

The dissertation in progress of Stephen Carey, "The Effects of Congressional Subcommittee Confidence on Appropriations of Governmental Agencies: One Appropriations Subcommittee and Four Agencies," Howard University, was incorrectly listed as delete from the 1980 Annual Dissertation list, PS, fall, 1981, page 546. PS regrets the error.

Gary Copeland and Tom Wander were incorrectly listed as holding new appointments at Ohio University in the fall PS. The correct listing should have been: Gary Copeland, assistant professor of political science and research appointment at the Carl Albert Congressional Research and Studies Center, University of Oklahoma at Norman; and Tom Wander, assistant professor of political science and assistant director of the Carl Albert Congressional Research and Studies Center, University of Oklahoma at Norman. PS regrets the error.

The address of Karen Beckwith, the co-chair of the 1981 Annual Meeting panel, "Women, Women's Movements, and the Role of the State," was incorrectly listed in the fall PS, page 483, as the Department of Political Science, Oakland University, Rochester, Minnesota instead of the correct state, Michigan. PS regrets the error.

The following persons, who pre-registered for the 1980 Annual Meeting and should have been listed in the Program, were inadvertently omitted. They are: Michael Lipsky, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, served as discussant on Panel 10-3, Legal Activity as Political Participation. Sheldon Edner, Portland State University, was the co-author of a paper, "Citizen Attachment to Neighborhood Organizations and regional government: The Problems of Constituency Building," written for a Neighborhood Organization Research Group panel. George Klein, Western Michigan University, served as a discussant on the Comparative Socialist Studies Committee panel, "Yugoslavia Amidst World Crises: After Tito, What?" Theodore Robinson, University of Oklahoma, co-authored the paper "How Black Minorities Fare Under Various Electoral Systems," written for the Representation and Electoral Systems Panel 3. It is regretted that their names were not included in the final program.

In Memoriam

Denna Frank Fleming

Denna Frank Fleming died in Nashville, Tennessee on September 3, 1980 at the age of 87. He was professor of political science, emeritus at Vanderbilt University.

Fleming taught at Vanderbilt for 33 years, retiring in 1961. He had been chairman of the political science department at Vanderbilt from 1940 to 1951, and research professor of international relations from 1951 until his retirement.

During his most active teaching years Fleming made a lasting impression on many students. He was an unabashed idealist, convinced that world peace could be effected only by a system of world-wide collective security. He was a leading scholar and authority on the League of Nations, the World Court and the United Nations.

Fleming was often classified as a "Wilsonian idealist." Later in his career he was usually listed as a member of a very loosely-defined school of Cold War "revisionists." His two-volume work, The Cold War and Its Origins (1961) was criticized by some for an alleged polemical quality and for its assignment of substantial guilt to the United States for allowing a coldness in relations to develop between the U.S. and USSR. But others praised the work for its visionary quality and its sustained idealism.

Fleming's reputation as a scholar, however, rested on his earlier published works, which included The Treaty Veto of the American Senate (1930), The United States and the League of Nations (1938), and The United States and the World Court (1945).

In addition to his teaching and scholarship Fleming undertook various endeavors toward a better informed public on questions of international relations. He served as foreign affairs editor of the Nashville Evening Tennessean from