Hittite Etymological Dictionary

Volumes 1-2

1984. 14,8 x 22,8 cm. XX, 504 pages. Hardback DM 245,-; approx. £ 71.00 ISBN 90 279 3049 X (Trends in Linguistics, Documentation 1)

A comprehensive compendium of the vocabulary of the Hittite language, detailing the attestations, forms, derivations, and origins of words. Intensified investigation of Hittite since mid-century requires a new and up-to-date synthesis. Hittite is one of the great languages of the Ancient Near East, and its recovery is one of the great achievements of twentieth-century scholarship.

Contrastive Linguistics

Prospects and Problems

Edited by Jacek Fisiak

1984. 14,8 x 22,8 cm. X, 449 pages. Hardback DM 158,-; approx. £ 45.80 ISBN 90 279 3260 3 (Trends in Linguistics, Studies and Monographs 22)

Collection of papers covering various aspects of contrastive linguistics. Among the topics are contrastive phonology, syntax, test linguistics, pragmatics, and applications of contrastive linguistics to language teaching. The languages investigated include English, German, Irish.

Carnival!

1984. 14,8 x 22,8 cm. VIII, 169 pages. Hardback DM 68,-; approx. £ 19.70 ISBN 3 11 009589 0 (Approaches to Semiotics 64)

These are scholarly studies of the nature of Carnival in general and, in particular, the longest is a study of the Brazilian Carnival, through one of its main manifestations, the Samba-School. The analysis uses a semiotic approach, which allows the understanding of the cultural meaning of this performance, by means of its several codes (mainly visual and aural) and overcoding. The study of the Brazilian Carnival is heavily illustrated.

Forthcoming:

The Biology and Evolution of Language PHILIP LIEBERMAN

Language is the principal ornament of human intellect – the badge our species traditionally flashes to set itself off from the beasts. Yet mutations large enough to account for human language in a single step are extremely rare and usually lethal. Must language be explained by such an improbable evolutionary stroke? Lieberman proposes a bold new approach to this perennial puzzle in The Biology and Evolution of Language.

Lieberman's approach synthesises much of the recent research in the biology of language and draws on information from anatomy, neurophysiology, and behavioural biology. Using the synthetic theory of evolution, he develops a model of human language that differs profoundly from the philosophically based models typical of most linguistic studies. He argues that the biology of human language is the result of many evolutionary compromises and that the discontinuity between the organs of human language and the analogous organs in related species is not as great as it has been assumed.

The Biology and Evolution of Language provides both an introduction for the non-specialist and an occasion for expert debate. about $\pounds 22.05$ 384pp illus. 0-674-07412-2

Language Learnability and Language Development STEVEN PINKER

Language Learnability and Language Development is the most comprehensive effort to date to apply a single theoretical perspective to the mass of data in language acquisition. Steven Pinker avoids the trap of reducing language acquisition either to linguistic theory or to developmental data – in this brilliant study he merges the two into an explicit and comprehensive learning theory. He then tests his theory of how the child succeeds at learning a language by examining the acquisition of five separate areas of grammar: phrase structure, inflection, control and complementation, auxiliaries, and the lexicon. The result is a major contribution to a topic that has been central in linguistics for the past twenty-five years.

Semantics and Cognition

RAY JACKENDOFF

Semantics and Cognition addresses meaning in human language from two complementary perspectives. From the point of view of linguistics and linguistic philosophy, what is the nature of meaning, such that we can talk about what we see? From the point of view of psychology, what does the grammatical structure of natural language reveal about the nature of perception and cognition? The book develops the position that the study of semantics of natural language is the study of cognition, and that grammatical structure offers a much more important source of evidence for the theory of cognition than is often supposed. £26.10 Hardback 288pp 0-262-10027-4

Linguistics (Second Edition)

An Introduction to Language and Communication ADRIAN AKMAJIAN. RICHARD DEMERS & ROBERT M. HARNISH

This new edition of Linguistics has, on the basis of classroom use, comments from linguists via a questionnaire, and letters sent to the authors, been rewritten and reorganised to meet the needs of teachers and students. The book now contains a new section, Human Communication and Cognitive Science, which contains a rewritten chapter on pragmatics and new chapters on the psychology of language and language acquisition.

Modularity in Syntax

A Study of Japanese and English ANN K. FARMER

'Ann Farmer's Modularity in Syntax develops a comprehensive approach to a variety of topics that have been central to recent investigations in the theory of language. She shows how many problems of English and Japanese grammar received natural solutions within her modular theory

. The result is a substantial contribution to linguistic theory, offering an important and in many ways novel perspective that merits careful study. Noam Chomsky

Journal of Literary Semantics

An International Review

ISSN 0341-7638

Editor: Trevor Eaton Academic Headquarters: Language Centre, University of Kent at Canterbury/England

The aim of the Journal of Literary Semantics is to concentrate the endeavours of theoretical and applied linguists upon those texts traditionally classed as 'literary' in the belief that such texts are a central, not a peripheral, concern of linguistics.

The journal publishes articles on all aspects of literary semantics: articles of a philosophical nature attempting to relate the study of literature to other disciplines, such as psychology, neurophysiology, mathematics, history; articles dealing with the educational problems inherent in the study of literature.

The journal will also publish reviews of books whose subject matter is germane to literary semantics. Books for review should be sent to the Editor.

J.L.S. appears in annual volumes, each volume consisting of three issues, appearing in April, August and October.

Talk Never Dies The language of Huli disputes

LAURENCE GOLDMAN Laurence Goldman's study of the Huli people of Highland New Guinea provides much valuable ethnographic material on the area. The main focus of the study is a sociolinguistic analysis of idiom, metaphor, and patterns of figurative and allusive speech in the context of the structure and management of verbal disputes. Dr Goldman bases his analysis on full transcripts of dispute cases, presenting a new framework for the study of multiple claim disputes.

Editorial Board: B. J. Blake, N. R. Cattell, B. Comrie, R. M. W. Dixon, M. A. K. Halliday, J. D. McCawley, B. J. Rigsby, A Wierzbicka.

AJL is concerned with all branches of general linguistics. Preference is given to articles of theoretical interest, especially — but not exclusively — on languages of and in Australia. Besides articles and reviews, AJL has a Notes and Discussion section and, from 1982, an annual bibliography on Australian languages. Articles published include:

Volume 1: B. Comrie, Ergativity and grammatical relations in Kalaw Lagaw Ya (Saibai dialect): A. Wierzbicka, Case marking and human nature; J. D. McCawley, Notes on the English present perfect; R. M. W. Dixon, Grammatical reanalysis: an example of linguistic change from Warrgamay (North Queensland): P. H. Matthews, An ordinary grammarians view of Chomsky's island conditions; F. Merlan, Some functional relations among subordination, mood, aspect and focus in Australian languages; P. Austin, Case marking in southern Pilbara languages.

Volume 2: R. M. W. Dixon, The grammar of English phrasal verbs; A. Dench, The development of an accusative case marking pattern in the Ngayarda languages of Western Australia; D. Eades, You gotta know how to talk . . .: information seeking in South-East Queensland Aboriginal Society; B. Comrie, Future time reference in the conditional protasis; J. Newman, Predicate adjuncts; C. Goddard, Case systems and case marking in Australian languages: a new interpretation; A. Shnukal, You're getting somethink for nothing: two phonological variables of Australian English. Volume 3: N. V. Smith, On interpreting conditionals; V. H. Dudman, Tense and time in English verb clusters of the primary pattern; J. R. Martin, Participant identification in English, Tagalog and Kåte; P. Mühlhäusler, Stinkiepoos, cuddles and related matters; B. J. Blake, Structure and word order in Kalkatungu: the anatomy of a flat language; S. Romaine, On the productivity of word formation rules and limits of variability in the lexicon; M. A. K. Halliday, On the transition from child tongue to mother tongue; B. M. Horvath, 'Learning to talk' in the new paradigm.

Volume 4: G. R. Guy & J. Vonwiller, The meaning of an intonation in Australian English; K. Allan, The component functions of the high rise terminal contour in Australian declarative sentences; J. Penhallurick, Full-verb inversion in English: A. Siewierska, Phrasal discontinuity in Polish: M. Laughren, Warlpiri baby talk; A. Wierzbicka, Cups and mugs: lexicography and conceptual analysis; S. Romaine, Relative clauses in child language, pidgins and creoles; — and others.

AJL appears in two issues of c. 142 pages per annual volume. Subscription rates: Vols 1 (1981) and 2 (1982), each: A$20, US$16.50, £12.50 Vols 3 (1983) and 4 (1984), each: A$25, US$21, £16. Orders should be sent to:

THE LINGUISTICS ASSOCIATION

The Linguistics Association of Great Britain was founded in 1959 to promote the study of linguistics and to provide for its members both a forum for discussion and facilities for cooperation in furtherance of their interest in linguistics. The Association holds annual spring and autumn meetings, at which original papers are presented in plenary sessions and in workshops devoted to special interests.

COMMITTEE MEMBERS

- Chairman: Professor Neil Smith, Dept. of Phonetics and Linguistics, University College, Gower Street, London WC1E 6BT
- Hon. Secretary: Dr Richard Coates, School of Social Sciences, University of Sussex, Falmer, Brighton BN1 9QN.
- Membership Secretary: Dr Andrew Crompton, Dept. of Linguistics, University of Nottingham, University Park, Nottingham NG7 2RD.
- Meetings Secretary: Dr Max Wheeler, Dept. of Linguistics, University of Liverpool, P.O. Box 147, Liverpool L69 3BX.

Persons interested in linguistics are eligible for election as members, subject to the approval of the Committee. Subscribing members may receive the Journal of Linguistics at the special rate of £ 10.00 per annum. Application forms for membership may be obtained from the membership Secretary, Dr Andrew Crompton, Dept. of Linguistics, University of Nottingham, University Park, Nottingham NE7 2RD.

- Treasurer: John Payne, Dept. of General Linguistics, University of Manchester, Manchester M13 9PL.
