
The Mirror of Language

A Study in the Medieval Theory of Knowledge

by Marcia L. Colish

Carefully tracing the development of the design theory in Augustine, Anselm, Aquinas, and Dante, this interpretation of medieval symbolism roots it in a verbal theory of signs derived from Biblical and classical sources. 90s net

The Presence of the Word

Some Prolegomena for Cultural and Religious History

by Walter J. Ong

'Now that the other eminent Catholic-electronic prophet, Marshall McLuhan, seems to have gone into orbit with his fantasy-probes, we shall no doubt need to attend more closely to Fr. Ong, who says so many of the same things but appears to say them more judiciously.'

M. R. AYERS

The Refutation of Determinism

AN ESSAY IN PHILOSOPHICAL LOGIC

An original contribution to philosophical studies which effectively shows the error in all the most plausible contentions of the Determinist, and has far-reaching implications for philosophical psychology.

METHUEN

A Critique of British Empiricism

Fraser Cowley

From the viewpoint of a phenomenologist, Fraser Cowley has written an interesting and persuasive critique of such empiricist philosophers as Hume, Russell and Ayer.

Pleasure and Pain

J. L. Cowan

Professor Cowan's basic thesis is that the best non-dualistic thought in modern philosophy and psychology has failed to recognise the solidity of the grounds on which mind-body dualism rests, just as dualists have failed to appreciate the devastating character of the arguments that can be marshalled against them.

Space and Time

Richard Swinburne

This major work is concerned with the properties which Space and Time must have as a matter of logical necessity and with the most general contingent spatio-temporal properties of our Universe.

The Individual in Society

A. L. MACFIE

Seeks to illustrate the massive series of studies by Adam Smith through which he hoped to complete his system of moral, social and natural philosophy. 'Professor Macfie has written an impressively important book.' New Society. 36s.

The Logic of Choice

G. A. D. GOTTLIEB

A critical study of the concept of rule used in law, ethics and much philosophical analysis which the author uses to investigate the concept of rationality. 30s.

Kierkegaard's Authorship

G. B. ARBAUGH and
G. E. ARBAUGH

The only comprehensive treatment of the popular writings of the eccentric Danish philosopher, poet and theologian who originated existential modes of thought. 63s.

Man in Search of Himself

JEAN CHARON

A physicist demonstrates the futility of total specialisation in this technological world and shows how the intellectual caveman can break free of his den. 'Dr Charon has made an impressive attempt to integrate the major activities of human existence.' SIR BERNARD LOVELL. 35s.

Portrait of a Man Standing

SALVADOR DE
MADARIAGA

The author sketches 'a portrait of life for our times'. He regards all man's activities as determined by two tendencies which enter into every form of life.

'Every page is stimulating.' Times Literary Supplement.

'One of the richest intellects today.' Irish Times. 30s.

Deity and Morality

BURTON F. PORTER

In examining the logical arguments associated with the Naturalistic Fallacy, the author is led to discuss mysticism, the Mediaeval attitude towards faith and reason and the linguistic approach to philosophical theology. 35s.

General Metaphysics

GOTTFRIED MARTIN

The author offers a systematic analysis of various interpretations of individual and general being. He presents the writings of Plato, Aristotle and Kant as paradigms of three standard metaphysical standpoints and shows how the generality present in the sciences of logic, arithmetic, geometry and physics, is given a characteristically different interpretation in each case. 60s.

The Senses Considered as Perceptual Systems

JAMES J. GIBSON

The author reconsiders the ancient problem of sense perception in a new way of considering perception and the senses together within the framework of evolution. The book contains many challenging issues which, together with its convincing conclusions, make it a work which will command the attention of academics and their students. 40s.

GEORGE ALLEN & UNWIN

THE IDENTITY THEORY OF MIND

C. F. Presley

What is the relationship between the mental and the physical? Does the Identity Theory—that mental states are as a matter of contingent fact, identical with states of the brain—provide a satisfactory answer?

This is the focal point of this series of papers presented by prominent philosophers from Australian Universities at the Annual Congress of the Australasian Association of Philosophy in 1964. Professor Presley of the University of Queensland provides a unifying introduction to a book which may well be used as a basis for the critical examination of the Identity Theory of Mind.

On Science, Necessity and the Love of God

Essays by SIMONE WEIL

Selected and Translated by RICHARD REES

In this, the latest of his editions of the work of Simone Weil, Sir Richard Rees has brought together material mainly from her notebooks and essays published posthumously. The first section of the book deals particularly with science and forms an important part of Simone Weil's general criticism of the moral and intellectual sterility of modern culture. The essays in the second part deal with Greek philosophy, literature and religion. 42s. net

John Locke: Epistola de Tolerantia

A Letter on Toleration

Latin Text edited by
RAYMOND KLIBANSKY

English translation by J. W. CLOUGH

This is a critical edition, with a new and more accurate translation, of Locke's letter written in exile in Holland in 1689 and published there anonymously. The history of the text is traced from manuscript material in Oxford and in Dutch libraries, and in an Introduction, Locke's theory is analysed and discussed. Second edition. 2 plates 40s. net

THE FUTURE OF MAN

by H. W. HEASON

Scientists become faced with an ever increasing dilemma the more advanced become their techniques. This is illustrated in ethical problems raised in regard to organ transplants and the development of ever more potent weapons of mass destruction. This book is intended to bring all this work together, and show that a brand new approach to science itself can be initiated.

WHAT NEXT?

by DAISY O. ROBERTS

Mrs Roberts believes that she has been the amanuensis of a research group on the other side of death which has been interested in probing problems of human life. The automatic writings consist of the experience of a doctor; a miner; a curio collector; a zoo attendant; a French prison guard; a Member of Parliament and a score of others.

MY FATHER'S HOUSE

by DEDIAN VANDERSTAA

After her 17-year-old daughter had suddenly passed away, the authoress felt so hopelessly miserable that she could hardly go on living and she prayed that, if there should be a personal existence after death, she might learn more of this. The phenomena began to happen that were convincing to her and which proved to be enlightening and comforting, so that she could go on living again.

SUN CHILDREN OF RA

by ASTA KINDLER

Unique and controversial book, written as fiction but based on stark fact, of the savage struggle between the Sun-children and the Giffnas. Alive with newly revealed occult truths and designations, the reader is transported to the realms of the unknown, of reincarnation and of a strange poignant love story.

A book for those with inquiring minds who are uncommitted to orthodox concepts, and who are willing to be deeply involved and disturbed by this great and startling work.
