NEW FROM CAMBRIDGE

The Social Survey in Historical Perspective, 1880–1940

Martin Bulmer, Kevin Bales and Kathryn Kish Sklar, Editors

This book traces the history of the social survey in Britain and the United States (with two chapters on Germany and France), discussing the aims and interests of those who carried out the early surveys, and the links between the social survey and the growth of empirical social science.

36334-9 Hardcover $64.50

The Making of a Saint

The Life, Times and Sanctification of Neophytos the Recluse

Catia Galatariotou

Each case of sanctification poses the same general question: How does an individual become a Saint? This pioneering study focuses on one case of sanctification in late twelfth and early thirteenth-century Byzantium, tracing the evolution of Neophytos's idiosyncratic pursuit of self-sanctification, and placing the Saint within the context of his society at large, in Cyprus and in the Byzantine world.

39035-4 Hardcover $64.50

The French Revolution and British Popular Politics

Mark Philp, Editor

Leading scholars explore the nature and origins of the ideological conflicts between reformers and loyalists, the impact of the war with France on the organization of the British state and its relations with its people, and the extent of the threat of revolution on both British and colonial territory.

39123-7 Hardcover $49.95

The German Experience of Professionalization

Modern Learned Professions and their Organizations from the Early Nineteenth Century to the Hitler Era

Charles E. McClelland

Modern learned professions (medicine, law, teaching, engineering, and others) developed in central Europe just as vigorously as in England or America. Yet their close relationship with state power led to a different historical experience of professionalization. This work explores that experience in a comprehensive way.

The Worlds of Christopher Columbus William D. Phillips, Jr. and Carla Rahn Phillips

"Mr. and Mrs. Phillips, both historians at the University of Minnesota, are characteristically meticulous.... they have the essential Columbus: his basic motivation, as they realize, was social ambition.... they bring out well the slow maturation of Columbus's intellect.... They write clearly, simply and conscientiously.... theirs is an excellent book for the Columbus beginner."

The Apotheosis of Captain Cook

Gananath Obeyesekere

In January 1778 Captain James Cook "discovered" the Hawaiian Islands and was hailed by the native peoples as their returning god Lono. On a return voyage Cook was killed in what modern anthropologists and historians interpret as a ritual sacrifice.

Questioning the circumstances surrounding Cook's so-called divinity—or apotheosis—and his death, Gananath Obeyesekere debunks one of the most enduring myths of imperialism, civilization, and conquest: the notion that the Western civilizer is a god to savages. Obeyesekere rewrites an important segment of history in a way that challenges Eurocentric views of non-Western cultures.

Impossible Individuality

Romanticism, Revolution, and the Origins of Modern Selfhood, 1787–1802

Gerald N. Izenberg

Studying major writers and philosophers—Schlegel and Schleiermacher in Germany, Wordsworth in England, and Chateaubriand in France—Gerald Izenberg shows how a combination of political, social, and psychological developments resulted in the modern concept of selfhood. More than a study of one national culture influencing another, this work goes to the heart of kindred intellectual processes in three European countries.

"This is an extremely important and innovative study of the historical origins of modern conceptions of individual subjectivity and inter-subjective community."—John E. Toews, University of Washington

Comparative Studies in Society and History is a forum for presentation and discussion of new research into problems of change and stability that recur in human societies through time or in the contemporary world. It sets up a working alliance between specialists in all branches of the social sciences and humanities. Debate and review articles bring the general reader in touch with current findings and issues.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Contributions may be descriptive, analytical, or theoretical. Any article not in itself comparative may be accepted if it lends itself to comment that will place it in comparative perspective. Correspondence with the editors prior to the submission of articles will help to enable them to obtain such comment or a companion study. Emphasis in comparative studies may be either on similarities or, if these are significant enough and call for some recasting of generalizations, on differences. All contributions and editorial correspondence should be sent to the Editors, Comparative Studies in Society and History, 102 Rackham Building, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48109-1070.

Two copies of each contribution, preferably accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope, should be submitted. Both text and footnotes should be clearly typed with double spacing and wide margins; footnotes should appear on separate pages at the end of the article. Illustrations may be included by arrangement with the editors.
