

October
1994

Special feature

Brian Hill on self-managed learning

language teaching

The international abstracting journal for language teachers and applied linguists

Cambridge University Press

language teaching

The international abstracting journal for language teachers and applied linguists

(formerly Language Teaching and Linguistics: Abstracts)

Editorial Board

Valerie Kinsella
Jenny Pugsley

J. L. M. Trim
Editorial correspondence:

Compiler and Editor
English Language Division,
The British Council
Special adviser
Mrs Valerie Kinsella, 63 Long Ashton Road,
Long Ashton, Bristol BS18 9HW

Produced jointly by

The Centre for Information on
Language Teaching & Research (CILT)
20 Bedfordbury
London WC2N 4LB
Library open 10.00–17.00, Mon–Tues and
Thurs–Fri; 10.00–20.00, Wed;
10.00–13.00, Sat.

The British Council
English Language Division
Medlock Street
Manchester M15 4PR
061-957 7000

© Cambridge University Press 1994

Aims and features

language teaching is a compact digest of current thinking on the theoretical and practical aspects of learning and teaching languages. It aims to help people concerned with the subject to keep up to date with the latest findings with minimum expenditure of time and money. It aims to encourage cross-fertilisation of ideas between those concerned with the teaching of different foreign languages (e.g. French, German, English) as well as between practising teachers, applied linguists and educational researchers.

In addition to about 130 abstracts in English in each issue, there is a specially commissioned state-of-the-art survey article on an important aspect of language learning or teaching, which features a full bibliography.

There are also brief annotations of recent publications, together with a list of books received, information on where to find substantial bibliographies on particular topics, and details of research projects in various countries.

ISSN 0261-4448