Journal of Early Modern History

Contrasts, Contacts, Comparisons

Editor-in-Chief: Heiko A. Oberman
(University of Arizona)

Managing Editor: James D. Tracy
(University of Minnesota)

Book Review Editor: Anthony Black
(University of Dundee)

The 'early modern' period of world history (ca. 1300-1800) was marked by a large increase in the level of global interaction. Between the aftermath of Mongol conquest in the East and the onset of industrialization in the West, European expansion set the framework for new kinds of contacts and collective self-definition. The Journal of Early Modern History offers a broad audience of historians explorations of different cultures on a given theme, whether in explicitly comparative studies, or by the grouping of studies (or books reviewed). One of the elements juxtaposed in this way will often be European, but not always. In addition, there will be articles dealing with two or more elements of the same culture, or bringing quite different kinds of source materials to bear on the same phenomenon. Its coverage is broad, both geographically - Europe, the Americas, Asia - and in terms of subject matter. Half of the articles will treat subjects which are not primarily European.

Art and Politics in Early Modern Germany

Jörg Breu the Elder and the Fashioning of Political Identity, ca. 1475-1536

Pia F. Cuneo

An exploration of the interaction between art and politics in early modern Germany, this work focuses on art, political in content, produced by the Augsburg artist Jörg Breu the Elder during the second and third decades of the sixteenth century. The book argues for the function of the art as fashioning political identities. The artist Jörg Breu is first introduced. His work for the city of Augsburg and for Habsburg and Wittelsbach rulers are examined. These works are placed within their historical context and analyzed according to how they articulate themes of warfare, ceremony, and history in order to construct political identity. The analysis of Breu's city chronicle and of the response of his art to political contest is particularly useful for historians of art and of politics.

Pia F. Cuneo, Ph.D. (1991) in Art History, Northwestern University, is Assistant Professor of Art History at the University of Arizona. She has published on the work of Jörg Breu the Elder and on the art of Renaissance Augsburg.

The Impact of the Kabbalah in the Seventeenth Century

The Life and Thought of Francis Mercury van Helmont (1614-1698)

Allison P. Coudert

"If he had lived among the Greeks, he would now be numbered among the stars." So wrote Gottfried Wilhelm Leibniz in his epitaph for Francis Mercury van Helmont, whose views influenced Leibniz, contributed to the development of modern science, and fostered the kind of ecumenicalism that made the concept of toleration conceivable.

The progressive nature of van Helmont's thought was based on his deep commitment to the esoteric doctrines of the Lurianic Kabbalah. He co-edited the Kabbala Denudata (1677-1684), the largest collection of Lurianic Kabbalistic texts available to Christians up to that time. Although difficult and arcane, its subject matter illuminates the faith in science, the belief in progress, and the pluralism characteristic of later western thought. The Lurianic Kabbalah thus deserves a place it has never received in histories of western scientific and cultural developments.
