'I find in the present volumes a particularly attractive quality of directness and simplicity that will do much to relieve the strain of unreality with which formal meditation is too often burdened. This may be due in no small part to the fact that we have here reflections not of one person but of many members of a group working together, and that over a long period of time they have been subjected to the acid test of practicality by actual use in community exercises.'

From Foreword by Card. Mooney.
