LAUGHING AT THE TAO

Debates among Buddhists and Taoists in Medieval China

Livia Kohn

In the early centuries after the introduction of Buddhism to China, the new religion had to come to terms with the worldview of the Confucian elite, the inherent Chinese sense of ethnic superiority, and China's indigenous higher religion of Taoism. The Xiaodao lun (Laughing at the Tao) is an important document of the debates among Buddhists and Taoists, debates that contributed to the process of cultural adaptation. Livia Kohn's work offers rare insight into an important and hitherto largely unexplored episode in Chinese intellectual history.

"This book is rich and informed, relevant to an understanding of many facets of medieval China.... Kohn takes on a formidable task here, and her effort to provide an adequate historical and cultural context for her brilliant translation of the Xiadao iun contributes to the field an excellent historical and cultural analysis of those centuries."—Kenneth DeWoskin, University of Michigan

RELIGIONS OF INDIA IN PRACTICE

Edited by Donald S. Lopez, Jr.

The inaugural volume of Princeton Readings in Religions brings together the work of thirty scholars of the religions of India in a new anthology designed to reshape the ways in which the religious traditions of India are understood. The book contains translations of forty-five works, most of which have never before been available in a Western language. The selections are drawn from ancient texts, medieval manuscripts, modern pamphlets, and contemporary fieldwork in rural and urban India. They represent every region in South Asia and include Hindu, Buddhist, Jain, Sikh, and Muslim materials.
