CONTENTS

PAGE

The Law of Aerial Bombardment in the 1991 Gulf War	Michael W. Lewis	481
The author analyzes the extent to which the air campaign in the 1991 Gulf war conformed with international law, describing the role and effectiveness of the Judge Advocate General's Corps in advising commanders on the law of armed conflict. After discussing the merits of various criticisms of the campaign, he concludes that it was conducted with appropriate legal oversight, but that even appropriate legal oversight cannot prevent civilian suffering during wartime.
Enhancing the Legitimacy and Accountability of Prosecutorial Discretion at the International Criminal Court	Allison Marston Danner	510
This article inquires into both the political accountability of the ICC Prosecutor regarding the considerable discretion invested in him by the Rome Statute and the extent to which he will be able to claim legitimacy. The author argues that the Prosecutor can contribute to the ICC's legitimacy through good process, which should include the public articulation of prosecutorial guidelines that will shape and constrain his discretionary decisions.

THE AMERICAN SOCIETY OF INTERNATIONAL LAW

The American Society of International Law was organized in 1906 "to foster the study of international law and to promote the establishment and maintenance of international relations on the basis of law and justice." Society membership is open to all persons of any nationality and profession who are interested in its objectives. Dues are: regular, $150; special category, $100; new professional, $75; retired, $100; student, $25. Sustaining Memberships—contributing ($250) and patrons ($10,000)—are also available. Corporations may join ASIL as institutional members ($2,000). The Society is incorporated by Act of Congress approved September 20, 1950 (64 Stat. 869).
