ENDING THE CHINESE CIVIL WAR

Power, Commerce and Conciliation between Beijing and Taipei

Jun Zhan, Preface by Walter C. Clemens, Jr.

The ferocious antagonism between Communist China on the mainland and Nationalist China on Taiwan has been one of the principal shaping factors in the postwar world. Given the seemingly irreconcilable hatreds involved, the burgeoning contact between the two sides is a truly astonishing development. By concentrating on "low politics" rather than "high politics," Jun Zhan explains how this transformation has come about while providing a fascinating history of the relationship between Beijing and Taipei

CHINA AND THE ORIGINS OF THE PACIFIC WAR, 1931-41

Youli Sun

"This important book sets a new scholarly standard for the study of Chinese foreign relations during the Republican era . . . [and] goes beyond the realm of traditional diplomatic history to re-create the political and intellectual setting in which Chinese foreign policy was conceived and determined."

—William C. Kirby, Harvard University

Following the Japanese invasion of Manchuria in 1931, the Chinese government spent a decade promoting an international coalition against Tokyo. The rationale for this policy was that as Japan's attempts to establish hegemony over East Asia inevitably threatened British, American, and Soviet interests, it could only be a matter of time before these powers recognized the need to intervene in direct support of China. That this assessment ultimately proved correct offered little comfort to the Chinese until 1941, but Youli Sun argues that this is the key to an understanding of Chinese policy.

THE EUROPEAN DIARY OF HSIEH FUCHENG

Envoy Extraordinary of Imperial China

Translated by Helen H. Chien,

Introduced and annotated by Douglas Howland

The undermining of Imperial China by the Western powers and the collapse of the Qing Dynasty in 1912 has too often led to an overstated condemnation of the Chinese government. This first English translation of Hsieh Fucheng's diaries gives a very different picture in its portrayal of a progressive, thoughtful, and deeply perceptive senior official and his encounter with the West. Hsieh Fucheng (1838-94) wrote this diary over a four-year period at the end of his career in Imperial service and it is an invaluable source for understanding the Chinese view on the friction between the Empire and the West.

THAILAND'S TURN

Profile of a New Dragon

Elliott F. Kulick and Dick Wilson

"[Thailand's Turn is] the best available 200-page introduction to modern Thailand, based on the authors' many years of acquaintance with the country."

—Far Eastern Economic Review

Thailand is the next country to watch in Asia. It is about to move into the select league of newly industrializing economies and its democratic politics are well advanced. The authors of this book examine all facets of Thailand's success — avoiding colonization, the effect of Buddhism, sound economic policies — and the problems which face the country, from environmental damage to AIDS.

From May Fourth to June Fourth

Fiction and Film in Twentieth-Century China

Edited by Ellen Widmer and David Der-wei Wang

What do the Chinese literature and film inspired by the Cultural Revolution (1966–1976) have in common with the Chinese literature and film of the May Fourth movement (1918–1930)? This new volume in the Harvard Contemporary China Series—now under the editorial direction of Harvard University Press—demonstrates that these two periods of the highest literary and cinematic creativity in twentieth-century China share several aims: to liberate these narrative arts from previous aesthetic orthodoxies, to draw on foreign sources for inspiration, and to free individuals from social conformity.

"Vogel...explains how government and industry have interacted in South Korea, Taiwan, Singapore, and Hong Kong turning charity case nations into business school case studies. [This book] may be the quickest dose of reality yet for anyone left with a romantic vision of Asia."

—David E. Sanger, New York Times Book Review

"Ezra Vogel has written an immediately attractive book...[His] account of the spread of industrialization in the four countries is always eminently readable, yet scholarly and authoritative, with just the right amount of sharp detail."

Japan's Political Marketplace

J. Mark Ramseyer and Frances McCall Rosenbluth

When discussing Japanese politics or the Japanese legal system, many scholars point to the peculiarities of the country's culture—its need for consensus, its rejection of individualism, its Confucian fascination with loyalty. Other scholars simply invent new theories ad hoc to explain what they see. But is Japan really so different that general social scientific theories don't apply? Mark Ramseyer and Frances Rosenbluth don't think so, and in this book they show how rational-choice theory can be applied to Japanese politics, with telling results.

ZEN AND THE WAY OF THE SWORD

Arming the Samurai Psyche

WINSTON L. KING

"A superb analysis by King, a renowned scholar of Far Eastern religions, of the curious marriage between Zen Buddhism and samurai fighting....

King expands at fascinating length on Zen/samurai swordsmanship, including the startling variety of sword strokes; details of how Japanese blacksmiths produce the incomparable samurai sword (the best in the world); and a cut-by-cut account of seppuku....

In a controversial but persuasive argument, King suggests that D.T. Suzuki, the most famous interpreter of Zen to the West, sanitized the Zen/samurai connection and that Zen, because it rejects the scriptural and literary traditions of more mainstream Buddhism, lacks 'intrinsic ethical quality' and thus can be adapted to fit any orientation—whether for peace or war.

Daring and stylish—a true Zen/samurai stroke of religious scholarship"—Kirkus Reviews. $25.00, 272 pp.

Martin J. Powers

Winner of the 1993 Joseph Levenson Memorial Books Prize given by the Association for Asian Studies for the best book on the premodern era

This book examines the art and politics of the Han dynasty and shows that both were shaped by the rise of an educated, non-aristocratic public that questioned the authority of the rich and royal at all levels. Powers's pathbreaking book casts new light on the whole development of early Chinese art and its relationship to issues of society, population, economy, taste, and ideology. 4 color + 198 b/w illus. $50.00

FROM

KODANSHA

Finally, a candid, controversial and frankly critical appraisal of Japan by one of her own most influential social critics.

What Is Japan? provides the ultimate insider's view of Japanese history, business, and character as well as a bold assessment of its future. Taichi Sakaiya is the author of the acclaimed The Knowledge-Value Revolution and a former official of the Ministry of International Trade & Industry.

"Taichi Sakaiya has provided a vivid, brilliant and objective insider's contribution to our understanding of the power and promise as well as the origins, myths, paradoxes and vulnerabilities of Japan today and tomorrow....It is a fascinating work that deserves the recognition of both the professional and popular audiences."

—Professor Howard V. Perlmutter,
The Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania

"Taichi Sakaiya has a universal mind which he has turned to the task of understanding his own culture...each page brims with some insight or story of interest."

—Professor Philip Kotler,
J.L. Kellogg Graduate School of Management,
Northwestern University

"A tour de force! What is Japan? is packed with valuable insight... A must read...Even long-term Japan watchers will find that Sakaiya has added a new level of insight into what makes the Japanese tick. Don't miss this book."—Professor Warren J. Keegan, Director, Institute for Global Business Strategy, Pace University

In Search of the Dharma
Memoirs of a Modern Chinese
Buddhist Pilgrim

Chen-hua

Edited and with an Introduction
by Chün-fang Yü

Translated by Denis C. Mair

This is the first and only book in English on modern Chinese Buddhism written by a practicing Chinese monk. Chen-hua provides a rare eyewitness account of Chinese monastic life and Buddhist practices before they were changed forever by the Communist revolution. It begins with his departure from home in northern China to study Buddhism in Kiansu and Chekiang in the south and ends with his rejoining the monastic order in Taiwan after spending several years as a draftee in the Nationalist army.

Following century-old traditions of Ch'an monks, Chen-hua made pilgrimages to all the major monasteries and holy sites, and sought instruction from many famous masters. His ordination at Pao-hua; "Buddha recitation weeks" at Ling-yen; scriptural studies at T'ien-ning; and a pilgrimage to P'u-t'o, the sacred island of Kuan-yin, are some of the highlights of this candid and perceptive book.

The Classical
Tibetan Language

Stephan V. Beyer

Among Asian languages, Tibetan is second only to Chinese in the depth of its historical record, with texts dating back as far as the eighth and ninth centuries, written in an alphabetic script that preserves the contemporaneous phonological features of the language.

The Classical Tibetan Language is the first comprehensive description of the Tibetan language and is distinctive in that it treats the classical Tibetan language on its own terms rather than by means of descriptive categories appropriate to other languages, as has traditionally been the case. Beyer presents the language as a medium of literary expression with great range, power, subtlety, and humor, not as an abstract object.

He also deals comprehensively with a wide variety of linguistic phenomena as they are actually encountered in the classical texts, with numerous examples of idioms, common locutions, translation devices, neologisms, and dialectal variations.

PURPOSE AND ORGANIZATION

The Association for Asian Studies is a scholarly, non-political, and non-profit professional association open to all persons interested in Asia and the study of Asia. It seeks through publications, meetings, and seminars to facilitate contact and exchange of information among scholars and to increase understanding of Asia. The Association for Asian Studies is the largest society of its kind in the world. Its 7,000 members include scholars, teachers, business people, diplomats, journalists, and interested laypersons.

Founded in 1941 as the Far Eastern Association, the organization was renamed the Association for Asian Studies in 1957 to reflect the wider geographic interests of its membership. In 1970, four elective area Councils—South Asia, Southeast Asia, China and Inner Asia, and Northeast Asia—were established to guarantee each area constituency its own representation and a proportionate voice on the Board of Directors. In 1977, a Council of Conferences was established as a liaison with eight regional conferences throughout the United States to serve the needs of those interested in Asian studies in different parts of the country. The Association is a member of the American Council of Learned Societies and the National Council of Area Studies Associations, actively participating with its sister societies in a wide range of activities, including joint participation in research and informational exchanges.

Publications of the Association include The Journal of Asian Studies, the Bibliography of Asian Studies, Doctoral Dissertations on Asia, the Asian Studies Newsletter, the Monograph Series, and committee publications. The Association holds a three-day meeting each spring devoted to planned programs of scholarly papers, round table discussions and panel sessions on a wide range of problems in research and teaching, and on Asian affairs in general. From time to time, it sponsors, through its committees, special conferences on research problems and other matters of topical interest.

MEMBERSHIP INFORMATION

Membership in the Association for Asian Studies is open to all persons interested in Asia and the scholarly study of Asia. BEAUTIFUL IMPERIALIST

China Perceives America, 1972-1990

David Shambaugh

From President Nixon's historic visit to China in 1972 to the aftermath of the Tiananmen tragedy, this book examines the changing perceptions of the United States articulated by China's "America Watchers," whose occupation is to interpret the "beautiful imperialist" for China's elite and public.

"David Shambaugh has uncovered a story that shocks and dismays me because I for one . . . was innocent of the extent to which the supposedly best-informed Chinese are both ignorant and critical of America."

—Lucian W. Pye, The China Quarterly

"This path-breaking study . . . concludes that there is a large perception gap in U.S.-China relations. . . . [Both] sides are imbued with a severe case of cognitive dissonance, wishful thinking, misinformation, and misperception."

THE TIBETAN EMPIRE IN CENTRAL ASIA

A History of the Struggle for Great Power among Tibetans, Turks, Arabs, and Chinese during the Early Middle Ages

Christopher I. Beckwith

This narrative history of the Tibetan Empire in Central Asia from about A.D. 600 to 866 depicts the struggles of the great Tibetan, Turkic, Arab, and Chinese powers for dominance over the Silk Road lands that connected Europe and East Asia. It shows the importance of overland contacts between East and West in the Early Middle Ages and elucidates Tibet's role in the conflict over Central Asia.
