

Island of Shame

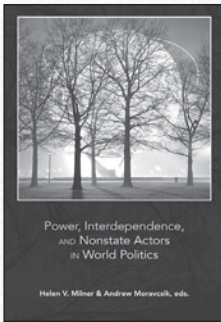

The Secret History of the U.S. Military Base on Diego Garcia

David Vine

“The story of the U.S. base on Diego Garcia, and the cruel displacement of the island’s people, has long been hidden from the American public. We owe a debt to David Vine for revealing it to the larger public.”

Power, Interdependence, and Nonstate Actors in World Politics

Edited by Helen V. Milner & Andrew Moravcsik

“Robert O. Keohane is a giant in the field of international relations. . . . This edited volume by former Keohane students and colleagues is a fitting tribute to his oeuvre, pushing his thinking on power, interdependence, and the role of nonstate actors into previously understudied domains and dimensions of institutionalism.”

The Politics of Global Regulation

Edited by Walter Mattli & Ngaire Woods

“The financial crisis that began in 2007–2008 is the worst since the 1930s and the failure of global regulation is all too apparent. This book explains systematically the conditions that make global regulatory capture possible and demonstrates through a wide range of case studies how it might be averted.”

Boundaries of Contagion

How Ethnic Politics Have Shaped Government Responses to AIDS

Evan S. Lieberman

“Boundaries of Contagion usefully separates the public health issue of which HIV/AIDS policies work best from the political science issue of which political forces are involved in shaping and constraining such policies. The analysis focuses rigorously on the political science issue without neglecting the public health issue.”

“With erudition and verve, Rodney Bruce Hall brings constructivism fully into the mainstream of political economy analysis of central banking. Monetary governance, he argues, is inherently social, based ultimately on relations of trust and collective assignments of authority. The book is both insightful and provocative.”

Why are hopes fading for a single European identity? Economic integration has advanced faster and further than predicted, yet the European sense of “who we are” is fragmenting. This ambitious survey of identity in Europe captures the experiences of the winners and losers, optimists and pessimists, movers and stayers in a Europe where spatial and cultural borders are becoming ever more permeable. A full understanding of Europe’s ambivalence, refracted through its multiple identities, lies at the intersection of competing European political projects and social processes.
