Proust in the Power of Photography

BRASSAI

Translated by Richard Howard

Drawing on his own experience as a photographer and author, Brassai discovers a neglected aspect of Proust's interests, offering us a fascinating study of the role of photography both in Proust's oeuvre and in early-twentieth-century culture. The book also features previously obscure photographs from Brassai's High Society series.

With Strings

CHARLES BERNSTEIN

"In With Strings, Charles Bernstein plays 'Charles Bernstein' with furious comedic virtuosity. . . . His work is iconoclastic and revolutionary. Bernstein's poetry, however, is driven by aesthetic as well as social passions. The poems that are With Strings are addressed to the great questions perpetually facing art: What is it? Why is it? How is it? And in this context, inevitably, the presence of artlessness is discovered close at hand, never to be subsumed. It is in poetry's encounter with what is never to be subsumed that the brilliance of Bernstein's work erupts."

Poetry and the Fate of the Senses

SUSAN STEWART

"This is a thrilling book, full of wonders of insight, interpretation, and learning. Susan Stewart is a critic whose prose is as poetic as her poetry; she invents while discovering. Her meditations on the history of poetry or the poetic are in themselves an original contribution to the philosophy of culture."—Hayden White

The Edge of Meaning

JAMES BOYD WHITE

"Vintage James Boyd White—a splendid and exciting book. In it he shows strikingly why, in his words, 'we never become fully defined by our language . . . there is always something before, or beyond, the words.' His examples from art, literature, and the law are exquisitely provocative. This is a book for those who ponder how we make meanings that carry us beyond what is immediately given in words and images. Bravo."
